VOL. LIII NO. 45 Weymouth, Mass., Friday, November 7, 1919 PRICE SIX CENTS

Coolidge Had 1543 And Long Only 974

Last year Richard H. Long carried Weymouth by a plurality of 12, but this year he led in only one precinct, and was 568 behind in the town. It was a landslide for Gov. Calvin Coolidge in Weymouth, as it was throughout the State of Massachusetts, only a very few towns and cities favoring Long. The total vote of Weymouth was: Coolidge, 1543; Long, 974.

Coolidge carried precinct One at North Weymouth by 135 votes; Two at East Weymouth by 78 votes; Precinct Three at Weymouth Landing by 46 votes; Precinct Four at Lovell's Corner by 142 votes; and Precinct Five at South Weymouth by 242 votes. The only Precinct to give a Long majority was Precinct Six at East Weymouth which was reduced from 96 in 1918 to 74 this year.

Without exception all the other candidates on the Republican ticket went out of Weymouth with a plurality, but none with an opponent received more than Gov. Coolidge. Lieutenant Governor Cox had a total of 1500, Secretary Langtry 1484, Burrell for treasurer 1414, Cook for auditor 1451, and Allen for attorney-general 1467.

The vote by precincts was:

Senator McIntosh also carried five of the six precincts and had a total of 1302, to 950 for George E. Mansfield, and 109 for David Perry Rice.

The vote of Weymouth was 547 larger than last year, being 2589 this year, and 2042 in 1918. Every precinct showed an increase as will be seen by these figures:

Norwood, a cider mill, in Ipswich, Mass., which was in operation in Washington's day, will be closed after this year's run. The present owner W. J. Norwood, has operated the mill 40 years.

The City Council of Hartford, Conn., has unanimously adopted an ordinance providing for daylight saving in next year, beginning with the first Sunday in April and ending with the last Sunday in September.

The historic American flag which flew over the Capitol during the war sessions of Congress, has been sent to Gov. Holcomb of Connecticut by Secretary Glass, as a reward for the state being first in over-subscriptions to the Victory loan. Connecticut over-subscribed its quota 49.95 per cent.

Mixing drinks came very near being fatal for George O'Hare, a Lawrence, Mass., young man who was found unconscious on the street. It was claimed that he had been drinking a mixture of denatured alcohol and Jamaica ginger. O'Hare, who was arranged on a drunkenness charge, was sentenced to the state farm.

A powerful wireless station with a radius wide enough to reach any of the Atlantic ocean fishing banks is being established at the Rockland, Me., terminal of the East Coast Fisheries Company. By means of this radio service the company will be enabled to keep in constant touch with all of its steam trawlers operating on the banks.

Fred W. Baer, of Kansas City, newly elected president of the International Association of Fire Fighters of the United States, at the annual convention of the Massachusetts state branch of the international in Boston, declared that the fire fighters will not participate in any nationwide strike if one should be called because of anti-strike legislation in Congress.

The lumbermen, pulp and paper manufacturers and timber owners of New England, met at Portland for explanation, discussion and advice relative to the forest industries questionnaire recently sent out by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Representatives of the bureau and of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association were present and gave individual assistance in filling out the questionnaire, which was designed to secure such data as may permit the bureau to deal intelligently with the income and profits tax returns of the forest industries. The questionnaire also was intended to permit those taxpayers to put their case fairly before the Federal Government, especially as to claims for depletion and depreciation deductions.

Simée Pilchee, a native Korean, rara avis always, since such people seldom stray outside their own country sought enlistment at the Army Recruiting Station, Boston, but they had to reject him because of the Naturalization Act, which prohibits the granting of any more first papers to aliens until after the election. Simée, declared that no story of Japan's abuse of Korea was likely to be an exaggeration. He was born in Seoul, where his father was a successful banker and the owner of a part of a gold mine he said. Contrary to Korean custom, he strayed afield and was sent to the United States to study electricity, with a view to becoming a radio expert. Seven months ago, he said, funds from home stopped coming and his father informed him that the Japanese had wiped out his fortune and craftily robbed him of his commercial concessions.

An important development of water power for electric purposes, is under way in Washington County at Columbia, Me., where the Washington County Light & Power Company will construct on Pleasant River a dam 450 feet long and a large power house. The dam will have a fifty-foot head, giving abundant energy, for serving many towns in that vicinity with electric power and light and an unusual opportunity for the establishment of important manufacturing enterprises. It is expected that the dam will be completed next spring. When the additions now in the process of construction at the Ellsworth plant of the Bangor Railway & Electric Company are completed the capacity of this station will be increased by about 3500 horsepower to a total of 6500 or more than two and a half times the energy necessary to operate all the street cars on the system.

A thief entered a home in Medford, Mass., ransacked several rooms, pocketed a gold watch and a bunch of jewels belonging to a lady occupant of one, stole a valuable pipe from a male roomer, pulled on a pair of new shoes belonging to another, grabbed a pair of trousers and started for the door. Just then a wooden leg dropped from the pantaloons. As it struck the uncarpeted floor with a loud thud the frightened burglar emptied his pockets of the loot he had stolen and with a yell dashed from the premises.

CAPE COD CRANBERRY CROP 340,000 BARRELS.

In his final cranberry report, Field Agent V. A. Sanders of the Bureau of Crop estimates places the total crop at 340,000 barrels compared with 195,000 last year; 120,000 in 1917; 337,700 in 1916 and 90,966 the ten-year average. This season has been practically no frost or freeze damage. Span worm damage was rather heavy; but the fruit worm injury was unusually small.

The unrest and shortage of labor resulted in less effective control over the picking with large wastage of berries left on the ground, more damage to vines; more vines put into the boxes so that the net amount of berries that a given quantity harvested screens out is less than usual. The sugar situation has greatly reduced the demand for several weeks, necessitating holding more of the Early Blacks than usual. Anticipated improvement in the market is expected to move the berries more freely in November.

Eighty-one growers, comparing the crop harvested in their locality with last year's crop show an average gain of 103%; while the average of 23 cranberry men of wide information puts the total crop at 338,000 barrels. The 193 Oct. reports show that 45% of their crop has been shipped; and 55% is yet on hand. The crop is about 49% Early Blacks; 38% Late Howes; and 13% all other varieties.

Marshall Eaton, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Eaton of Natick, Mass., accidentally shot himself through the left side with a shot gun, while hunting, and died shortly after at the hospital.

Maote Tsao, of Shanghai, China, who is at present a student in Harvard university, was recently an interested visitor in two Danbury, Conn., machine shops where hatting machinery is made, for the manufacture of felt hats. While there he stated that he was obtaining information in this line with a view to opening a felt hat factory in Shanghai as soon as he has completed his college course. He said that he was acting upon the suggestion of a number of Chinese manufacturers, with whom he and his family were acquainted and friendly, and he added that these men have never visited this country, but have necessary capital and have instructed him to acquire information concerning the felt hat industry and the machinery necessary for operating such an industry along modern lines.

Percival W. Clement, millionaire governor of Vermont, sitting upon a platform before 300 delegates to the first convention of the Vermont branch of the American Legion at the state armory, Burlington, was called upon in explicit terms by the ex-soldiers of his state to explain a letter bearing his signature in which there were statements considered by the legion representatives as insulting to men who wore the uniform in the world war. The demand came from Maj. Horatio Nelson Jackson, of Burlington, decorated twice by the French and once by the American government for bravery in the medical corps, who was temporary chairman. A storm of applause from the floor of the convention hall greeted the words of Maj. Jackson, while not a voice was raised in defence of the Governor.

No citizen of the United States may be discharged from naval stations until all aliens have been dropped from the payrolls, according to an order received at the Charlestown Navy Yard from Secretary Daniels. The order said: "In view of the obligation of decreasing the number of employees, necessitated by the reduced appropriation for the conduct of naval establishments and the expectation of further curtailment of appropriations for the next fiscal year, it is hereby directed that in effecting any reduction in forces that may become necessary on account of lack of work or the lack of funds, to furlough or discharge no citizen of the United States until all aliens have been separated from the service. The term alien shall not be interpreted to apply to citizens of our island possessions."

Michael X. Moskus, of Chicago, convicted of making blasphemous statements in the course of three lectures at Rumford, Me., recently, was sentenced to serve not less than one year nor more than two years in State prison by Judge John A. Morrill, in the Supreme Court. Exceptions were allowed by Judge Morrill and the case will go to the law court. Moskus was admitted to $1500 bail pending the outcome of the appeal. Moskus, who claims to be a Socialist, was arrested at Chicago on the charge of publicly blaspheming in three lectures before the Lithuanian Liberal Society at Rumford. He was alleged to have ridiculed views of the crucifixion, the Holy Trinity and other subjects of religion. During cross-examination at the trial, he said he did not believe in God and that religion did not appeal to him.

High standing in school four years ago won a husband for Miss Doris Paquin of Greylock, a suburb of North Adams. Her name was printed in the honor roll of a French newspaper and this finally found its way to Louis Desire Langlois of Thetford Mills, Canada, serving in France with a Canadian regiment. He wrote to her from the trenches, and after some little delay the girl answered the letter. Other missives followed, and after the young Canadian's discharge from the army he went to North Adams and married the girl.

TOO HARROWING.

"Mrs. Jagsby has for years had a curiosity to see the inside of Mr. Jagsby's favorite saloon, where he used to purchase most of his packages."

"Quite natural."

"Yes, and it was gratified the other day. Mrs. Jagsby dropped in with two or three other ladies and had ice cream soda."

"I don't suppose she could induce Mr. Jagsby to go along?"

"No. He was afraid he might break down."

Doubtful.

First Traveler—Well, good-by. Please to have met you and made your acquaintance. Hope we shall meet again soon and cement this pleasant friendship.

Second Traveler—So long, old chap, and if ever you come within a few miles of my home I sincerely hope you will stop there.

Fair Warning.

Edward, a six-year-old urchin, accidentally cut his shoe with his knife and his father proceeded to scold him at great length for his carelessness. The little fellow listened patiently for a time, then, looking at his father, said:

Bill Goat—There's a nice dress shirt, and my doctor has forbidden a starch diet!

Colossal Finance.

Though figures higher still may go I'll take no heed of the amount. A billion is not much, I know, But it's as high as I can count.

Home Wreckers.

"Ah, a window full of home wreckers."

"What do you mean?"

"I was referring to that imposing display of gas stoves."

"Still, I don't understand."

"They are home wreckers for brides brought up on jazz."

Limit of Safety.

"Doesn't seem to be any limit to what you fellows think you can charge?"

"Yes, sir, there's a limit. For instance, if I charge you too much for cleaning your straw hat, you'll get a new lid."

Both in Fact.

First Relative—The idea of old Uncle Peter devising all his money for the erection of a mausoleum over his remains. It's just willful waste.

Second Relative—Huh! I call it wasteful will.

A Look Ahead.

"Can you really tell anything about the future?"

"Oh, yes," said the fortune-teller "I know, for instance, that my landlord ain't going to get his rent next month."

Bait.

"Isn't that wrap a little large for you?" asked the husband.

"Yes," said the wife. "The cook is preparing to leave, and I'm getting clothes near enough to her size to keep her interested in lingering."

Courage Indispensable.

Whether you be man or woman you will never do anything in the world without courage. It is the greatest quality of the mind next to honor.—James Lane Allen.

NO WORK FOR HER.

"So you've discharged the cook?"

"Yes. It seemed silly to retain her when I can't get food enough in the house to keep her busy."

Perversity.

Perhaps their money pleasure brings To those who hoard, But there's a joy in doing things One can't afford.

Putting on Side.

Diner—How is it that the terrapin on your bill of fare is always struck out?

Candid Walter—That's just a fancy touch, sir. We never had a terrapin in the joint.

Obliging.

"I told Jack I would like to see him try to kiss me."

"What did he do?"

"Well, Jack always tries to do what I like."

Too Dangerous.

"An aviator cannot brag of his family."

"Why not?"

"Because in his case there is little cause for boasting of descent."

Naturally.

"Why did you advertise that rank play of yours at a howling success?"

"It was one when we tried it in the dog towns."

Bludgeons for Blockheads.

A word to the wise—a club to the otherwise.—Boston Transcript.

Ragtime Literature.

"Why do you object to ragtime?"

"It puts tunes into my mind that I can't forget. And I don't dare whistle them in public because of the words they suggest."

The Real Test.

"Suppose Job had some of our modern afflictions."

"Yes, and suppose Solomon had to give judgment as umpire in a baseball game."

A Little Formality.

"Well, if you've had ten years' experience taking care of children, I think you'll do."

"I'll just take a look at the children and see if they'll do."

Those Girls.

Edna—So you've broken with Jack.

Edith—Yes, he was entirely too hard to please.

Edna—Gracious! How he must have changed since he proposed to you.

Hard Pressed.

"You seem thoughtful, girlie."

"Yes, papa wishes to know my reasons for wanting to marry Algy."

"Well?"

"I'm trying to think up a few."

Didn't Know All the Parts.

"Pa, what is sine qua non?"

"Don't ask me. I haven't had the ear long enough to understand all those technical names yet."

Its Object.

"They say this face reconstruction system is something novel."

"There are certainly many new features about it."

Freedom.

Freedom may come quickly in robes of peace, or after ages of conflict and war; but come it will, and abide it will, so long as the principles by which it was acquired are held sacred.—Edward Everett.

MOTOR TRUCK ON FARM IS USEFUL

Of Utmost Importance to Get Various Foodstuffs to Market in Quick Time.

BIG VEHICLE IS EFFICIENT

Increased Number of Trips Alone Places Car in Lead and Proves Its Economy—Heavy Truck Has Many Advantages.

Time is the farmer's capital. The difficulty of employing adequate help has discouraged more than one practical farmer from raising the crops which would pay him the greatest profits.

Always he has realized that to market the crops was of such prime importance that he could not afford to "stub his toe" by growing foodstuffs which he would not be able to get to market on time.

Frank Andrews of the department of agriculture, bureau of crop estimate, has made a very careful investigation of the uses of the motor truck on the farm and the results he has arrived at are amazing. Mr. Andrews says in part, "the estimated cost of hauling in wagons from farms to shipping points averaged in 1918 about 30 cents per ton mile for wheat, 33 cents for corn and 48 cents for cotton; for doing the same hauling in motor trucks the averages are 15 cents for wheat or corn and 18 cents for cotton. The motor truck will make an average of 3.4 round trips per day over an average route from farm to shipping point of 11.3 miles, while wagons will make but 1.2 round trips over an average haul of 9 miles. The increased number of trips alone will place the motor truck in the lead and prove its economy. The fact of the matter is that, taking wheat as an example, the average wagon load was 56 bushels, while that of the load of the average motor truck was 84 bushels."

Found Most Efficient.

Not only are the heavy duty trucks used exclusively on farms, but in many sections where market gardening is done the trucks of 1½ to two ton capacity are found most efficient by the truck gardeners. Where the farm is big, and the crops are staples the heavy-duty truck is most effective, but for the smaller farms the 1½ to two ton truck is found most desirable, and every investigation made in recent years has proven that this size of truck is the one best suited to use on the farm.

The most important points for the man operating a farm of any size to consider are these: Primarily the truck saves time; the farmer can get his breakfast at home, go to market and be back in time for dinner, which was an utter impossibility when horse and wagon were used.

Releases Five Acres.

It takes five acres of land to raise bedding and feed for every horse on the farm. When the motor truck supplants four horses it releases 20 acres of valuable land, which may at once be utilized for the growing of crops which will pay a substantial profit. When the truck is idle it doesn't cost a cent. When the horse isn't working he must eat just the same.

Against the possible 100 miles a day which the truck can travel under load a good average team of horses can travel 20 miles in ten hours—that is going ten miles loaded and ten miles empty over good roads.

Think of the uses to which a truck can be put on the farm! It will haul produce to market and bring a return load of supplies to the farm. It will haul water to the live stock; it will haul wood for fuel; bring the implements to and from the fields; haul manure to the fields and bring back a load of stones on the return trip; will haul baled hay to the barns, corn bundles to the silage cutter; handle the grain, that is, both the corn on the ear and the threshed grain to the bin. It will haul live stock to market, thus making a saving of 5 to 8 per cent over the shrinkage caused by driving stock on the hoof.

Many Advantages.

A motor truck offers the farmer the advantage of prompt delivery of his perishable produce, thus reducing waste through decay, as when handled by wagon or railroad, and turning into cash crops which would otherwise be lost. Through its speed it enables him to run his farm with less help. It increases the radius of land profitable for market gardening and small farms around the cities, and will pay for itself in the first six months of use through the actual net saving it will make on any modern farm.

With all these advantages and with the absolute certainty of successful operation, there is no good reason why the American farmer should hesitate to purchase motor trucks today.

REPAIR PIT DONE AWAY WITH

Uncomfortable Place Has Been Replaced by More Convenient Scaffold, as Illustrated.

The repair pit is, at best, a most uncomfortable place to work in, and to do away with it a large public garage has resorted to the method shown in the illustration. A trap was cut in the floor above the repair shop and the car to be repaired was driven over the hole in the floor. A scaffold, having a platform about 4 feet square, was then wheeled into place, underneath the hole. On the platform is a small bench with a vise, and drawers for nuts, bolts, etc.

The result has been a saving in time, for the workman has a place in which to work, plenty of room to move about, and he can work steadily without having to climb down for tools.—W. R. Davis, in Popular Science Monthly.

Do not overload.

Cover your spare tire.

Use plenty of air.

Keep an air-gauge handy.

Keep grease and oil away from rubber.

Test supposed leaky valves with a cup of water.

Do not neglect to change the oil in the crankcase because it is a dirty job.

Don't run closer than 15 feet to any vehicle, person or animal moving in front of you.

Don't disregard the child on the curb. Remember, he can start quicker than you can stop.

MEDICAL CORPS USES RECRUITING TRUCK

The automobile truck shown in the illustration is used as a traveling recruiting station for the United States army general hospital No. 3, at Colonia, N. J., and is gaining a great many recruits.

It was photographed in Broadway, near Forty-seventh street, while on its way to Chicago.

Several sections of the rail fence near the bridge were pushed over into the water. This fence is a single rail supported by an iron bar drilled into heavy granite blocks so the task of replacing them will be a difficult matter. One of the smaller portable steel buildings belonging to the Brooks Skinner Co. was tipped over and dumped into the river. The same gang also opened one of the old family tombs at the Old North cemetery and made a ghastly display of parts of the bones among the people at Thomas' Corner later in the evening. —On Wednesday evening, Henry E. Hubbard, the newly elected president of the Good Fellowship Club invited the ladies and gentlemen present at the Old North Chapel, to places at three tables laden with most substantial and appetizing food. Following the supper, Mrs. James B. Jones, chairman of the supper committee, began the auctioneering of one pound of sugar. The bidding progressed rapidly from 11 cents to $5, and seemed hopelessly stalled at that figure. Charles Barrows, however, took the floor, and amid merriment and cross bidding succeeded in raising the bid to $12, at which figure it was sold. Charles Coe outlined the plans of the club for the year. Mr. Brines, industrial secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Massachusetts, and Rhode Island was then introduced, and entertained the audience by the teaching of a French song and several solos. His address was upon the work of the Y. M. C. A. in industries. A resolution was adopted calling upon the senators and representatives in Congress to support the Williams resolution, looking to the protection of the Armenian people. The supper committee included Mrs. James B. Jones, Mrs. Charles Mackay, Mrs. Henry Hubbard, Mrs. Fred Hilton, Mrs. Charles Barrows and Mrs. Parker Pearson. Our Charge Accounts Are Not Expensive Things

Not Even To Us. Certainly Not To Our Customers.

Of course, once in a blue moon someone forgets to pay a bill and moves to Montana—but accidents will happen.

We don't think of charging these slight losses to our other customers any more than if our delivery wagon broke down we'd charge them for the repairs.

And compared to our customers' convenience and their appreciation of this service of ours, the so-called "cost" of carrying credit accounts is nothing at all.

Prove It For Yourself.

Come into our store and see whether our prices are higher than in stores which will not give you credit.

Then consider all the other services we perform for you in addition. Deliveries, telephone service, expert salesmen, the best groceries and provisions we can buy.

And the benefit of our thorough knowledge of the grocery business. We know the reliable brands and we tell you about them.

For example there is Ryzon Baking Powder. When the General Chemical Company placed Ryzon on the market we were eager to try it. They called it the "Perfect Baking Powder" and once we tested it we knew why.

It is 40 cents per full pound.

THE MONDAY CLUB

With a charming reader, a popular quartette, and a wide-awake orchestra, the Monday Club delightfully entertained about 500 guests at the Masonic Temple on Monday evening.

The hall was prettily decorated with ferns, chrysanthemums, asters and autumn foliage. Along the front of the platform was a bank of ferns, and from each chandelier was suspended a basket of flowers and autumn leaves. Foliage was hung between the chandeliers, and flowers were located at other points.

While the guests were assembling, DeNeil's orchestra furnished inspiring music, and later played for the dancing.

A cordial welcome was extended by Mrs. Alice Pierce Jewell, the president of the club, who also announced coming events. She said the annual "Guests' Night" was in charge of the executive committee, and introduced Mrs. Ada Dillingham Pray, the chairman.

Mrs. Pray said the club had planned what they expected would prove a pleasing entertainment. After the concert there would be dancing, but for those who do not care to dance there would be a social time. She then introduced the Pilgrim Male Quartette, and Miss Maud Barry Carpenter, the reader.

All the numbers of the quartette proved entertaining and popular, opening with "America," and including "The City Choir," a medley of Southern songs, and for encores "Nellie Gray," "The Trombone" and other favorites. Mr. Fitzgerald gave a pleasing tenor solo, and was recalled. Dr. Clark also sang bass solos which were much enjoyed.

Seldom has Weymouth heard such a delightful reader as Miss Carpenter. Her selections included "The Little Prince," "The Picnic" and a "Sketch at the Movies," and encores were demanded.

At the close of the concert all present were invited to the dining room where ice cream and cake were served. Returning to the hall, dancing was enjoyed, closing a delightfully pleasant evening.

The executive committee of the club which made arrangements for "Guests' Night" includes: Mrs. Ada Dillingham Pray, Mrs. Lottie G. Sampson, Mrs. Elizabeth Alden, Mrs. Ivy Hilton and Mrs. Harry Doe.

OLD COLONY CLUB

President's Day was observed by the Old Colony Club of South Weymouth on October 30, and proved a very successful and interesting meeting. An unusually large number of presidents attended. Not only representatives from all surrounding towns were present, but presidents from Dorchester, Wollaston, Quincy, Medford, Brockton, Winthrop, Taunton and as far away as Plymouth honored the club. Another welcomed guest was the President of the Daughters of Maine.

The president of Massachusetts State Federation of Women's clubs, Mrs. Minot G. Baker, was the guest of honor and spoke most interestingly to the club members. She called us rightfully an "extravagant nation" and emphasized the necessity of conservation along all lines. "Spend wisely, save conscientiously, conserve in our homes, health, comfort and happiness."

Mrs. George E. Crawford, the District Director spoke on thrift and home. Mr. Edward Abner Thompson held all in his presentation of the melodrama of "Hiawatha" accompanied by musical numbers of ancient Indian melodies by Miss Rice. He had a most pleasing voice and the music added materially to the effectiveness of the entertainment.

All this engaging program ended in a social hour which did credit to that committee. Visitors were made especially "at home" and enjoyed with the club the girls from the local High School Orchestra. Miss Craibe was the hostess.

The club meets November 13, to hear Mrs. Grace Poole in "Current Events." Miss Evelyn Light of the First Church, Berkeley street, Boston enjoyed before by the club, will sing.

The Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, meets in Brockton on November 13. Miss May Moran and Mrs. Crocker will represent the local club. A party of club members plan to attend and brown tickets for any others caring to go can still be obtained from the president, Mrs. Frank Hanson.

Last week the local carriers from the Post office were accompanied by the inspectors sent out from the Boston headquarters, to determine the exact amount of work required from each man in his daily routine of duty. As a result of the inspectors' reports, orders have been received for each carrier to cover route twice each day. It is, of course, a source of general satisfaction to residents in the outlying districts, who, since the service was established 17 years ago have been favored with but one delivery each day. Residents of Main street, below Nash's Corner, and from the junction of Pine and Pleasant streets over "Mosquito Plain," will welcome the announcement. But it is viewed quite differently by the carriers, and it seems on careful consideration, an imposition to ask the men to perform this extra service. The same force of men have been giving service for the past 8 years, but it would seem now that additional men would be required to relieve the present force, under the circumstances, the postal authorities should give the matter their careful consideration.

Combination 5 held their monthly meeting in the Engine Hall, Tuesday evening. It had been the desire of the company to present Ernest Blanchard, one of the recent beneficiaries of the company, with a gift, but he failed to attend the meeting. At 8 o'clock with Chauffeur Hunt at the wheel, the members left the house as though in response to still alarm and picked Mr. Blanchard up at his residence in Independence Square bringing him back to the station. Captain W. B. Baker in behalf of the company then presented Mr. Blanchard with a mahogany clock, which was a complete surprise.

Friday afternoon at 2:30 funeral services for Rodney Willis, 3 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Holbrook were held at their home 181 Pleasant street, with Rev. O. A. Price of the Old South Union church officiating. Burial was in Mount Hope cemetery.

on the subject of shortbread, so popular with Scotch and English folk.

"But, good as was the old-fashioned kind," remarked our hostess, "it was so extremely rich that the heavy taste lingered long after eating."

"Well," said Betsy, "there's nothing like that about the shortbread we have at our house—Lorna Doone Biscuit."

"I was talking to mother about squares that come already baked and ready to serve, any time."

"I was talking to mother about them only the other day," said Lorna Doone, "and she said that she had a chance to all the appetizing, so really fashioned enough to be good—sweet enough to be a constant inducement to eat more. The name LORNA DOONE is on every biscuit."

Sold by the pound and in the famous In-er-seal Trade Mark package.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

"The anxiety of some people to make new friends is so intense that they never have time to have old ones."

HOT SOUPS FOR COOL EVENINGS

The expert soup-maker will obtain delicious flavors by using leftover meats and vegetables. After cooking the soup should be strained and thickened as usual with a binding of butter and flour cooked together.

Corn Chowder.—Take about four teaspoonsful of fat salt pork cubes and fry them out; add one sliced onion and cook five minutes, stirring often to keep the onion from burning. Parboil four cupfuls of potato slices in water to cover, drain and add the potatoes to the fat and onion, with two cupfuls of boiling water; cook until the potatoes are soft, add a can of corn, a quart of milk, salt, pepper and buttered crackers. Serve with the buttered crackers on top. This recipe will serve six.

Cream Soup.—Put thin slices of bread as thin as shavings with a small amount of butter in a saucepan and brown; pour over enough boiling water to make the soup needed, add salt to taste and let the mixture boil up; then remove the saucepan and stir in a large cupful of cream, the thicker the better. Be sure to have it well salted or the soup will taste flat.

Cream of Peanut Soup.—Put a cupful of peanut butter into a quart of milk, add salt, cayenne, a tablespoonful of grated onion, a bay leaf, celery salt, and cook ten minutes in a double boiler. Moisten a tablespoonful of cornstarch with cold milk and stir until smooth, add to the soup and cook ten minutes. Strain and serve with cubes of toasted bread.

Quick Egg Soup.—Stir a teaspoonful of beef extract into a quart of boiling water, add a grated onion, celery salt, salt and pepper to taste. Pour boiling hot into a tureen with four tablespoonfuls of boiled rice and two well beaten eggs.

Split Pea Soup.—Pick over, wash and put to soak in plenty of cold water one cupful of split peas. In the morning cook in two quarts of water, add a two-inch cube of salt pork and one sliced onion. Cook and stir often until the peas are soft, rub through a sieve, thicken with two tablespoonfuls of flour and butter, add milk to thin the puree to the desired consistency. Season well and serve very hot.

Ordinarily we find in people the qualities we are mostly looking for or the qualities that our prevailing characteristics call forth. The larger the nature the less critical and cynical it is, the more it is prone to looking for the best in others.—Trine.

CHEESE DISHES.

Cheese naturally suggests itself as a substitute for meat, since it is rich in the same kind of nutrients which meat supplies; it is also a food which is staple and may be used in a variety of ways.

Stuffed Potatoes With Cheese.—Split hot baked potatoes lengthwise, remove contents without injuring the skin of the potato. Mash the potato, add seasoning and enough hot milk and butter to season well; beat until light, then refill the skin, piling it up lightly; do not smooth the top. Sprinkle with grated cheese and reheat in oven until cheese is melted and a delicate brown.

Rice Baked With Cheese.—Cook a cupful of rice in a large amount of boiling water, at least three quarts, adding a teaspoonful of salt. When tender drain and cover the bottom of a buttered baking dish with a layer of the rice; sprinkle with grated cheese, a dash of cayenne pepper and add milk to half fill the dish; cover with crumbs and bake until the milk is absorbed and crumbs brown.

Pittsburgh Potatoes.—Cook one quart of diced potato cubes with a small minced onion until the potatoes are nearly tender; add a teaspoonful of salt and half a can of minced red peppers and cook until the potatoes are done. Drain and put into a baking dish. Make a sauce of two tablespoonfuls of butter and flour, one teaspoonful of salt and a pint of milk, then add one-half pound of grated cheese. Pour this over the potatoes and bake until a golden brown.

Baked Fish with Piquant Stuffing.—Bass or any firm-fleshed fish of moderate size may be used for baking. If the fish lacks fat insert strips of pork in gashes along each side of the fish.

Baked Eggs With Cheese.—Break four eggs into a buttered baking dish and cook in a hot oven until they begin to turn white around the edge. Cover the eggs with a white sauce and over this a cupful of cheese and bread crumbs well mixed. Season and brown the crumbs in a hot oven.

Egg shells should be carefully scraped out with a teaspoon; someone who has tried it says that the bulk of one egg is saved in the scraping of a dozen shells, and with eggs worth four or five cents apiece, it is worth while.

Nellie Maxwell

HOUSEKEEPER MAY DETERMINE WHETHER SHE IS GETTING MEAT OF DESIRABLE QUALITY

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When the retail meat dealer buys from the wholesaler, he does not depend altogether on the wholesaler's honesty and good faith to secure the grade of meat he wants for his trade. Instead, keeping in mind certain points and characteristics which determine grades of beef, the retailer, before he buys and pays for it, decides for himself whether he has been given what he ordered.

The housekeeper should be quite as familiar as the butcher with the various grades of beef. Few housekeepers, however, have this knowledge. Even those women who pride themselves that "cotton mixed" is not sold there for linen, buy beef, week after week, year after year, and depend altogether on their butcher's honesty. Not until it is cooked and served do they know whether they have been given the "choice" meat they asked and paid the price for, or only that of "medium" or "common" quality. Linen buying is only occasional, but meat buying is daily, and every woman should be familiar with the different grades of meat. Toward this end the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, has defined the four grades of beef.

How Beef Is Usually Graded.

The "choice" grade of beef denotes the best quality usually found in the markets. Only a limited amount of what is known as "prime" beef is offered in most markets. This grade is usually offered in limited quantities during the Christmas or holiday seasons, and immediately following livestock shows. "Choice" beef has a moderately even covering of fat on the outer surfaces. This fat is smooth in appearance and white in color, but is not in excessive amounts. The color of the lean meat is light red, with traces of fat distributed through the lean on all cuts, which are taken from the loins, ribs and some parts of the round. Choice meat is firm to the touch and of fine grain. There must be no watery appearance on the freshly cut surfaces.

The "good" grade of beef is next in quality to "choice" and may differ slightly in all points or correspond in some points to "choice" and differ materially in others. The covering of fat is not so smooth and uniform, but must be white in color and dry in appearance. The color of the lean meat in this grade also varies slightly and may be of darker hue than the "choice" grade, but it is not dark. "Good" beef is of smooth grain and has traces of fat, which is white or creamy in color, distributed through the lean.

Most Beef Is "Medium."
The bulk of the beef offered for sale in most markets is of "medium" grade. In this there is usually very little and often no covering of outside fat except on the loin and rib cuts. The fat is not evenly distributed. During the summer and fall months "medium" grade beef has a watery appearance and the color of the lean meat varies considerably, but is usually dark, even when freshly cut. "Medium" beef has a tendency to turn still darker very quickly after being cut. The grain is coarse and not uniform, and there are no traces of fat distributed through the lean.

The "common" grade is the lowest quality of beef offered for sale in a fresh condition to the trade. One of its prominent features is the high percentage of bone in proportion to the meat. There is only a slight covering of outside fat on the rib and loin cuts. "Common" beef has a flabby appearance, is dark in color, and coarse in grain. A few traces of fat may be discerned, but they usually are of a yellow color and are unevenly distributed.

No Time to Stop Learning.

A man should always keep learning something—"always," as Arnold said, "keep the stream running"—whereas most people let it stagnate about middle life.

Again Peace on Earth.

"Jones doesn't believe in promoting the good old idea of 'Peace on earth and good will toward men.'" "What makes you think so?" "He has bought his son a cornet."

SELECTION AND CARE OF USEFUL UTENSILS

First Decide if Device Will Pay for Itself in Long Run.

Often They Are Cumbersome and Difficult to Clean—Few Drops of Water Sprinkled on Duster Takes Up the Dirt Easily.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Before buying any household device, decide whether it will pay for itself in the long run by saving time and strength or wear and tear, or if it will make some especially disagreeable task less unpleasant. Devices which can be used for many purposes are seldom employed by the housekeeper for more than one, and often they are more cumbersome to handle and less easily cleaned.

Long handles on brooms, brushes, and dusters save the back, the office of home economics kitchen of the department of agriculture suggests.

A cleaning cloth should be soft and loosely woven, so that it will take up dirt easily and itself be easy to clean. A duster takes up dirt better if a few drops of water or oil are sprinkled on it. Beware of too much moisture or oil, for it leaves streaks. For wiping very dirty places use soft paper, cotton waste, or rags, which may be thrown away. Keep the cleaning things together in a convenient place. Put them away clean. Hang brushes, mops and brooms when not in use.

Clean string mops by shaking over a damp newspaper or a can. Never shake in the open air unless you are sure the dirt will not trouble you or your neighbors. Wash occasionally in hot water with washing soda or soap and dry quickly. Sprinkle a few drops of oil on the oil mops after cleaning.

Clean carpet sweepers frequently. Empty the box on damp newspaper and use old scissors and buttonhook or coarse comb to remove the hairs and dirt on the brushes. Keep the bearings oiled.

Slices of fresh cucumber are a very good tonic for the skin.

Always empty the water out of a kettle before refilling it.

Potato salad should be made of cold boiled, not baked, potatoes.

Iced tea is improved by some slices of orange as well as lemon.

The pantry shelves are best covered with white oilcloth, cut to fit.

The stove will keep its polish if it is rubbed daily with a newspaper.

Use Borax in tepid water for washing silk handkerchiefs. Iron dry.

PLUSHES THAT RIVAL FURS

The production of furs appears to lag a long way behind the demand for them if one can judge by prices they bring today as compared to those of three or four years ago. In the past year price and real value appear to have little relation in fur garments: the most plentiful of pelts, undyed and undisguised in any way, are made up into garments that are as expensive as good and substantial furs ought to be. Really good furs have soared up and away until they have passed beyond the horizon for the woman of modest income. It was inevitable that plushes should forge ahead at the same time but in their real value and price go hand in hand as they should. Plushes have been made to imitate furs very closely in a group known as fur fabrics and they are used for all garments that are made of fur. A good plush is much to be preferred to a poor fur from almost any point of view. It is just as warm, it looks better and wears better. Furs have been very closely imitated in these substantial fabrics. A short cape-like coat of moleskin plush, also a wide scarf of duvetyn made up with this fur fabric, and a hat to match, invite consideration as shown in the picture above. The coat does away with sleeves and substitutes for them pointed pieces that give it the effect of a cape. There is a full shawl collar and a belt that slips through slashes at the back and front where it fastens with a buckle. This model has the easy lines of a cape, is graceful and may be worn slipping off the shoulders. When its warmth is needed and it is belted in it sets close to the figure. This season has witnessed the return of long, wide scarfs to favor along with a great variety of other neckpieces. Fur fabric and duvetyn are combined to make the ample scarf pictured above long enough to protect the chest, encircle the throat and fall over the shoulder. The scarf is the most easily adjusted of neckpieces and admits of several ingenious arrangements. The clever hat to match suggests the popular Napoleon shape and is trimmed with an ornament made of ostrich plumes that looks like a flat tassel. It has the approved drooping pose at the side.

SOFT AND STURDY SWEATERS

Soft and sturdy yarns, closely and firmly knitted into sweaters and sweater coats with little ornamentation and much warmth—these are the outstanding style features in this year's products. There is a reaction away from strong contrasts in color, but variations in the weave or knitting serves for decoration. Above all the new sweaters and sweater coats look warm; their collars take their cue from those of coats; they are ample and cozy. There is nothing frivolous or inconsequential about these new models; they are business-like, snug-fitting, and neat.

A great many sweaters and sweater coats are knit with caps to match. There are occasional collarless models provided with a scarf in a lighter color and finished with a fringe of yarn. Very long sleeves that are rolled back at the hand, pockets finished with a band in the color of the scarf having a narrow yarn fringe below it, and buttons set close together add dignity to a handsome sweater of this kind. There is a cap to match with a huge but flat pompon made of loops of yarn on the top of it. This is a sweater de luxe, especially when it is knit by hand.

The two models pictured are meant for good service and entice their wearers into the open air. They are machine knit and made in several colors, blue and gray being the favorites.

Very heavy yarns are used for them and most of them are knit with caps to match to accompany the sweater, when skating, tobogganing or other winter sports engage their wearers. The sweater coat pictured wears up the front with bone buttons and is provided with patch pockets and a belt of the knitted material. It has a rolled collar and depends for ornamentation and snug fit upon variations in its knitting. A border at the bottom, bands on the pockets and cuffs are all put in by running the stitches in a horizontal direction. Worn with a heavy woolen skirt and a hat this sweater will serve for practical wear on the street in the morning and for school.

The gray sweater of very heavy yarn with sailor collar and cap to match, is meant for sports wear. Every athletic girl will see its advantages. The new sweaters may be had in a variety of colors.

THE WHITE CHURCH

(Congregational) East Weymouth

Rev. Edward Torrey Ford, pastor. We are happy to accept the suggestion coming from American Legion headquarters, that our next Sunday morning church service set forth the principles upon which the new patriotic organization seeks to build itself into the best thing in American life. "The American Legion Program" will, therefore, be the pastor's sermon topic on Sunday morning at 10:30 service. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the close of the morning service.

The Church Bible School will convene at noon. The people's Sunday night service at 7 o'clock offers a cordial welcome to all who enjoy a brief, brotherly and stimulating religious service. The pastor will begin a series of helpful Sunday night addresses upon the general topic, "The Values in Our Religion." This week the topic—"Our Consciousness of God." (a) What do we mean by it? (b) What is it worth to us? (c) May we all have it? (d) How shall we possess it?

It is believed that not a few religiously inclined people in all our communities have religious ideas that are more or less hazy and ill-defined. But a religion that lacks power must inevitably be a religion without power. One of the imperative needs of today is to give our religious convictions a sharper focus. This does not mean theological emphasis. It means spiritual realization. It is the principle of "efficiency" applied to religion. The special object of the proposed series of Sunday night addresses is to clarify our thinking, vitalize our conviction, and visualize our goal as Christian people of purpose.

We cordially invite the attention of the public to this series of addresses and a special suggestion is offered to our young people and to such as have within a comparatively recent period begun the openly declared Christian life. Remember, the White Church opens its doors and its heart to all who value its fellowship.

The open air gospel meetings in Jackson Square are closed for the winter and cottage meetings will be held week nights in various places as calls are made for them.

Christian Science Church Dedicated

Dedicatory services were held morning and evening Sunday at the Christian Science Church on Greenleaf street, Quincy. It is the habitual custom of churches of this denomination not to dedicate their buildings until they have been freed from debt. The mortgage on the Quincy church was paid in full a few weeks ago. The structure cost complete between forty and fifty thousand dollars, and the money to pay for it was raised in a remarkably short space of time.

The services were simple, and varied but little from those ordinarily held on Sunday. The evening service was a repetition of the one in the morning. The chief departure from the regular order of exercises was the reading of an historical sketch by Mrs. Charles A. Kohler, who is the only charter member of the church now residing in the Quincy district. The following are extracts from Mrs. Kohler's sketch:

The Quincy church owes its beginning to the efforts of a loyal student of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy who formerly lived in Braintree. Through the efforts of this student a meeting was held May 3, 1901, in a private house at Braintree, with six persons present. The number increased until twenty or more attended the services, and then a Christian Science Society was organized and public meetings were held in Pythian hall. On December 29, a Sunday School was formed with ten pupils.

In January of the next year a regular organization was decided upon, and "First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Braintree, Mass." was organized with twelve charter members. An old homestead was leased and remodeled to make it suitable for church purposes.

The first service was held Sunday, February 23, 1902, with an experience and testimony meeting on the following Wednesday evening. In April a reading room was opened in the same building. After two years this building became so crowded that Sunday services were resumed in Pythian hall, and later the whole second floor of Long's block was rented.

In 1904 the church gave a lecture in Music hall, Quincy, and sentiment began to crystallize in favor of moving the church to Quincy because of the more central location. On March 14, 1911, the church voted to make this change. Alpha hall was obtained for the services, and the first meeting was held there May 3, 1911.

The name of the organization was then changed to "First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Quincy, Mass." with the full approval of the Board of Directors of the Mother Church in Boston, of which this church is a branch. In 1912 the church was incorporated under the by-laws of Massachusetts, and the same year purchased the land on Greenleaf street where the present edifice stands.

In February, 1916, contracts for a church structure were signed and in April the first earth was turned over. The cornerstone was laid in July, at 6.30 in the morning, in a pouring rain, with the officers of the church and the building committee present. On Sunday, June 3, 1917, one year later, the first services in the new building were held, and the same afternoon a lecture was given in Music hall.

It is interesting to note that one of the first cases of healing in Quincy took place in 1886, close to the spot where the present church stands.

The church on Greenleaf street is one of the handsomest church structures in the city, although neither pretentious nor elaborate in its design. It is built of stone and stucco, and contains an auditorium which will seat over four hundred people, with a Sunday School room almost as large. A fine Skinner pipe organ has been installed since the church was first completed.

The present Readers of the church are Mr. and Mrs. Lewis C. Strang of Weymouth Heights, while the president of the church is Mrs. Frank Sprague of Wollaston. The organist is Mrs. Eugenia Schwind of Wollaston.

K. OF C. INSTALLATION

The installation of the newly elected officers of Weymouth Council, Knights of Columbus, took place Sunday afternoon in Columbus hall, East Weymouth, before a large gathering. District Deputy Thomas H. Buttiner officiated. It was the most impressive ceremony ever witnessed by the Council. Three State officers were present. Addresses were made by Rev. A. J. White, State Deputy W. J. Day, State Secretary W. C. Prout, and State Warden John S. Quinn. The newly remodeled lodge room was used for the first time.

Good for a Rainy Day.

It is announced that treasury savings certificates in denominations of $100 will soon be obtainable.

It should be announced that never were reasons for investing in them more urgent than they are now.

Every sale will help to substitute a sense of security for the "spirit of unrest." It cannot be otherwise.

The greater the number of certificates sold, the greater the assurance that sheet anchors will not drag.

They are a policy of insurance against almost any strain to which our "institutions" may be subjected.

Besides, they are handy things to have around. They are as serviceable as umbrellas on a rainy day.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Industry's Heavy Toll.

It is hard for the public to call up a picture of a war-disabled man without seeing an empty sleeve or a wooden leg. During the war only 2 per cent of the disabilities were due to loss of limbs. In industry every year 20,000 limbs are lost. This is six times the number of amputations among American soldiers in the year of war.—From the Vocational Summary.

"Your Feet must be RIGHT, Son"

So says Uncle Sam to all of America's young manhood.

The Tru-pedic Shoe is the very best answer to this nation-wide demand for better fitting footwear, because it is built upon new principles which INSURE proper fitting shoes.

What distinctly marks Tru-pedics from the others, is the fact they are made in three types on the same style toe—infare, straight and outflare.
Science says "All normal feet are of one of three types and not of one standard type." This fact is now established after years of scientific research and study.

The Tru-pedic Shoe, in the right type for your foot, will prove to be one of the most attractive, as well as best fitting shoes, you ever had.
Come in and try on all THREE types.

NEWMAN TRAVEL TALKS

E. M. Newman, the popular travel-talker, is coming to Boston with the first "real story" of the historic happenings in Europe following the signing of the armistice. For five consecutive Friday evenings and Saturday afternoons beginning Nov. 14 and 15, at Symphony Hall, he will reveal with his living pictures the greatest or all tales, the story of the world remade. Armed with unusual credentials he toured Europe for five months and returned with the human side of the great war's happier after hours. This series of five traveltalks will be presented in the following order: "Alsace-Lorraine," "Occupied Germany," "Belgium Redeemed," "Poland Restored," "France Victorious."

TREMONT THEATRE

The comedy triumph of 333 nights in New York City—"Three Wise Fools"—will be the attraction at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, commencing Monday evening, Nov. 10, with matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays and a special holiday matinee on Tuesday (Armistice Day), the 11th.

The paradoxical title of "Three Wise Fools" had the wisecracks on Broadway guessing for several days as to what component elements of histrionic literature had been utilized by Austin Strong in constructing a comedy with such an ambiguous epithet. On the opening night at the Criterion Theatre the curtain had only been up a few moments until the captious critics realized that the "Three Wise Fools" referred to three staid old bachelors, prosperous and distinguished—a judge, a physician and a financier, who share one residence, an old fashioned home in Washington Square, the stronghold once of New York's ultra-conservative blue stocking aristocracy, and who, like the "Three Guardsmen" of Dumas, were "one for all and all for one."

East Weymouth Has Champion Laster

Sitting at his bench, all day long driving little nails the shoemakers call "tacks," Bichi Palmeri proves that he is the champion "side laster" of the Edwin Clapp & Son shoe factory in East Weymouth, says a recent issue of the Boston Post. It is not necessary to take the word of Palmeri, however, that he is the best side laster in the establishment, for this is the statement of big "Tom" Greaney, who has been foreman in the Clapp lasting room for many years.

When Palmeri is asked how he manages to do so much work in a day he smiles and replies that it is just as much a mystery to him as any body else. He almost always does 12 dozen side lasts in a day, which means thousands of strokes with his hammer.

The work that a side laster does is to connect the bottom part of the shoe with the "upper."

To place one shoe together in this manner requires 32 tacks, at least. Palmeri has worked in the Clapp factory for the past 16 years. He was born in Italy 37 years ago, but learned his trade in this country.

If there are faster side lasters in New England than Palmeri those who work with him would like to hear from them.

BROUGHT JOY TO ART LOVERS

Masterpiece of Painting, Recently Found in Spain, Has Stirred Critics and Connoisseurs.

A discovery that has given critics and connoisseurs of art in Spain a fine topic of conversation was made the other day when somebody found in an old barn at Extremadura an ancient painting of great merit, but with nothing about it that has yet indicated the name of the painter, the Christian Science Monitor states.

Manuel Cossio, an expert, declares it a work of "transcendent importance for the history of Spanish art," a precursor of the figures by El Greco and Zurbarán—but offers no opinion as to the identity of the artist. Mr. Exhevarrieta, a millionaire of Bilbao, comes forward with the large sum of money needed to persuade the possessor not to offer the picture for foreign purchase, and so it remains temporarily in the Prado museum while the government decides whether or not to acquire it permanently. The critics seem in agreement that the unknown painter painted it in the first half of the sixteenth century. Otherwise the world has found a new art mystery; and apparently, too, the man who owned the barn is as much surprised as anybody else.

The Cinnamon Creek Trick

By N. H. CROWELL

(Copyright.)

Biggs was the greenest-looking man that ever faced old Bill Williams, and did not flinch. On the occasion when he floated into the stuffy little Rock Gulch station and draped his spirituelle form across one end of Bill's desk, that gentleman removed his visual hardware and snorted in his wrath.

"And who in Trophet may you be?" howled old Bill, his whiskers twitching like an angry cat's.

Biggs smiled a cherubic smile and picked up one of Bill's letters with a casual air of interest.

"You don't know me, grandpa?" he remarked quizzically, as if in doubt.

"Ph! Ph! You—darn you—who—say, are you Biggs?" exploded the wrathful Bill.

"Biggs and me are the same gent, sir," responded the smiling visitor.

Williams surveyed the elongated figure with contempt rampant on his features.

"Well, you are a looloo, ain't you? You don't look about as sling hash—let alone lightning. Know what you're up against, don't you?"

"No, and what's more, I don't give a dang."

"Well, my ducky—my little insult to civilized society—you are billed to handle that Cinnamon Creek trick, and if you're not scalded by them blood-drinkin' dagoes inside of a week you can draw your pay. You hear?"

"I ain't at all hard of hearing, pa!" said Biggs.

Williams grew red, then purple and looked about to explode. At last he dashed fiercely from the room and slammed the door with a bang.

For a month Biggs had kept strict tab on the goings and comings of six sand trains and six hundred Italians. His office, a dismantled box car, was by no means prepossessing, but small defects were lost on Biggs.

Back of him stretched the huge pit, down into whose shifting depths locomotives jerked long strings of flats, which, passing beneath the magic of a row of furious steam shovels, emerged freighted with sand. Two hundred yards to the west was the Cinnamon trestle and beyond that the track melted away upward toward Peak City, a dozen miles as the crow flies, up the shoulder of the divide.

Biggs regarded the swarthy sons of the South with distrust, but he was too wise to tell them of the fact.

One cheerful incident had broken his monotony mercifully. That was when a lengthy and fervent reprimand, direct from a real roll-top desk, and covering the Williams incident, arrived. Biggs sighed, folded the sheet neatly, and stored it away in a secret pocket. Then he picked up the "Sleuth Library," opened to the chapter headed "The Plot Thickens" and got down to business.

It was now the third day that he had abstracted the reprimand and carefully perused its contents. Biggs was enjoying it to the full. He sat in the car, heels cocked up, holding the missive at arm's length before his eyes. Then he started up, listening. He heard a sound like the vigorous puffing of a locomotive, but yet unlike it.

Dropping down from the car, Biggs set off toward the trestle and presently came in sight of an engine, three cars, and a steam driver calmly settling down to work on a big pile as though dropped from fairyland.

Biggs recalled wiring down concerning the condition of that east end, but had never expected more than a visit from a red-shirted Irishman with sledge and wedges. Here was a pile driver in full blast.

Biggs strolled back to his car, sat down and resumed reading the thriller. He had made stirring progress and was within a lap or two of the bloody-handed villain when a piercing yell arose from the direction of the trestle.

Biggs dropped the book and leaped to the car door.

As he rushed around the curve that hid the trestle from view he saw a strange sight.

Running, crawling, scrambling across the trestle were the Italians, each armed with pick or shovel and making desperate efforts to close the distance that intervened between them and a group of seven men in blue jumpers who fled for dear life up the sinuous grade toward Peak City.

Wholly unable to grasp the meaning of it all Biggs' instinct turned him about and he sped for his instrument. He flung himself inside the car and reached for the key. But someone was calling him. He stabbed at the lever and answered.

"Runaway—sixteen loaded flats—clear away!"

That came from Peak City. Biggs jumped up and glanced at his watch by habit. The next he knew he was racing up the track toward the deserted driver train.

"Fools! Cowards! Knaves!" he groaned.

With a fierce pounding at his neck he mounted the locomotive at a bound and glanced back at the towering derelict. At sight of it came his first feeling of fear. If he only knew how to take it down, he thought! Then, with a shiver of intense anguish, he saw that the train was trapped by a half-driven pile!

With a cry that was half a whine he seized an ax that entered his range of vision and the next instant was blindly clambering among the brace timbers of the bridge.

"Chuck! Chuck!" The ax, swung by fear-nerved arms, ate into the wiry spruce.

The eighteen-hundred pound hammer resting on its crest was exerting its power. Biggs paused a brief instant in suspense—then the ax circled viciously and bit the wood.

"Crack-k!" Biggs shifted his foot to the angle of a brace and swung a last desperate stroke square at the bending fiber. Then he leaped away as pile and hammer plunged resistlessly down the clayey slope.

The next moment he was staring stiffly at the crumpled body of an Italian lying among the tools at the foot of the derelict and he knew the reason for the mutiny.

Then he observed his box-car station slide by and awoke to realization. A faint roar from far up the mountain spurred him on and he rushed forward.

He was scrambling over the coal pile to the engine cab when he felt the sudden interruption in flight that told of the application of air brakes. He glanced up and beheld a man handling the levers in the cab, not ten feet distant.

"Open 'er up! Let 'er out!" yelled Biggs, excitedly waving his arms toward the mountain behind.

"Guess not! She's running away—or was!"

"Sixteen loose flat cars back of us—sixteen!" screamed Biggs, as he slid bodily into the cab and struggled to his feet.

"Hell!" ejaculated the stranger. Then he pulled a lever way over.

"Who're you?" shouted Biggs.

"Goff, fireman, fresh from the water tank!"

His dripping garments corroborated his statement amply and forced a smile to Biggs' face.

Behind them the driver waved and swung in snaky circles.

"We're doing all she'll stand!" the fireman called.

"Guess we're tagged, all right!"

"What?"

"They're going to catch us!"

"We'll win by about six car lengths! Poke the fire!" he called.

"Hurrah! Man at switch!" shouted the fireman an instant later.

"That's Bill, bless his heart!"

"Homestretch!" called Goff, as he threw down the shovel.

The roar of the two catapults was now one thunderous roll. The tension grew almost overpowering and the men gripped their breath in expectation of a disastrous finish.

Four—six—eight long seconds ticked by and then the stiff figure of old Bill Williams flashed by. The fireman's face broke into a smile as he seized the lever.

Sizz-zz! went the brakes on the huge wheels and then, in a cloud of sand and dust, the fast-flying flat cars careened by—on the siding.

Another moment and the pile-up at the bump end of the dead switch occurred. Biggs and Goff dashed through a hall of sand and brought the train to a standstill a bare hundred yards beyond.

"Fine man, Bill!" he remarked earnestly, and the recipient grunted with grim pleasure.

Biggs was sent for and left on the first train. Confronting the roll-top desk, he exhibited the blisters on his palms, shook the sand from his shoes, and stood up bravely under the friendly pats from the rich and powerful.

Then they sent him back to the sand pit—just to get his grip.

BELLS MAKE SPLENDID MUSIC

Sweet Sounds Have Moved Many Great Writers to Record Their Tribute of Delight.

The lovely carillons of bells in Belgian towers have inspired many a poet, many an author. Rosetti, Stevenson, Thackeray, Thomas Hardy, Victor Hugo, Longfellow, Macdonald, Henry VanDyke and others have written of the music of the carillon.

The 45 bells in the tower of St. Rombold at Mechlin, or Malines, which were heard by Victor Hugo in 1845, gave birth to a poem which tradition says he wrote with his ring upon the window pane of a little inn in the middle of the night. The theme is a description of the wonderful carillon music at Malines.

Another writer, William Gorham Rice, who heard the great master of bells, Josef Denyn, play on the carillon of St. Rombold, has given a splendid description of the effect of this music upon him. He says:

"Sometimes in winter, after icicles have formed, there comes a thaw, and one by one they tumble down gently at first, then bolder in a mass they come till, like an avalanche, they crash down with a mighty roar. All of this the music suggested. It was low, it was loud, it was from one bell, it was from chords of bells, it was majestic it was simple. And every note seemed to fall from above, from such heights that the whole land heard its beauty."

Seven Wonders of the World.

Three lists are given of seven wonders. What are known as the seven wonders of the ancient world were: Pyramids of Egypt, Pharos of Egypt, hanging gardens of Babylon, temple of Diana at Ephesus, statue of Jupiter by Phideas, mausoleum of Artemisia, Colossus of Rhodes. Those of the middle ages were: Coliseum of Rome, catacombs of Alexandria, great wall of China, Stonehenge, leaning tower of Pisa, porcelain tower of Nanjing, mosque of St. Sophia in Constantinople. One list of the seven wonders of the new world are: Wireless telephone, airplane, radium, antiseptics and antitoxins, spectrum analysis, X-ray.

PEG'S SACRIFICE

By MARGARET WILDER.

Peggy was excited and happy. Sitting before the big mirror, she brushed out the tangled curly hair, singing to herself. Tonight, oh, what fun! That great big marvelous dance she had looked forward to for the last three weeks was really about to "happen." Before her on a chair lay the blue evening dress and slippers, and they actually seemed to match her shining eyes.

"Oh, mamma," she cried, as the door opened, "I'm just crazy to go—why—why mamma, what is it?"

Surprise and alarm were mingled in Peggy's voice. Her mother, sweet and young looking, came to her daughter's side and put her arm around Peggy's waist.

"Darling, I—I can hardly tell you. Oh, Peggy, what if I should ask you to give up that dance tonight?"

Peggy's eyes lost some of their glow. "Why, mamma—what's happened?" she managed to say.

Mrs. Palmer's voice broke a little. "Your Aunt Alice is ill out in Chicago. I just received this telegram from Uncle Jack, and he wants me to come there tonight. And—and—you know, Peg, I can't leave a two-year-old baby alone in the house and since he is not well anyway, I hate to entrust him to a neighbor, yet I hate—Peg, I hate to keep you home!"

Peggy's heart seemed to be sinking within her, but her sweet lips turned and smiled at her mother's wistful face.

"Run right along, mamma. Of course I'll stay with Bob Boy. Give my love to Aunt Alice, and just make her get well. Probably knowing you are near will do her more good than any amount of medicine."

Mrs. Palmer kissed her daughter several times, and Peggy understood the deep sympathy and appreciation which her dear little mother could not express in words.

At eight o'clock that night all was still in the Palmer house. Peggy sat by little Bob Boy's crib, musing. The music was starting now, she knew. She could picture the orchestra juzzing away at their many different instruments, and she wondered what the girls were wearing, and how pretty they looked.

Bob Boy was sleeping peacefully. Peggy's mother heart went out to her tiny brother, and she was glad a hundred times over that she had stayed with him, instead of leaving such a warm little bundle with some careless neighbor. But she could not help that dull ache in her heart, in spite of everything, but not a tear passed her eyes.

An hour dragged by, and the house was still as a mouse. Peggy leaned over her little brother and kissed him, straightened the cool sheet under his pink chin and then tip-toed quietly down the stairs. She went to the parlor window and looked out. What a night! A glorious moon hung low in the sky, and every little star twinkled and flitted with her, as if trying to entice her out into the night. As she looked she saw a tall, slender soldier boy limping along the sidewalk. She rested her head against the window sash and her thoughts flew back over the space of a whole year. She, too, had had a soldier boy, but he had not been her sweetheart. They had not known each other long enough for that.

Yet why had she watched the papers for every battle fought, in hopes of seeing his name, and why had she felt that stab of keen disappointment when the postman had failed to bring even one of those longed-for letters? She was watching the limping soldier as he approached with dreamy, wistful eyes, and not until he had actually turned and came up her front steps did she realize the truth. She heard the bell as in a dream; then the color rushed into her face, and she went quickly to the door.

The boy entered and looked intently into Peggy's flushed face.

"Peggy! Are you surprised?"

His voice was eager as he awaited her reply. Peggy couldn't speak. She didn't trust herself just then.

He continued: "I hope you don't mind my running in this way. Our ship arrived this afternoon. I have a day or so to go home before I leave for camp. My ticket is for the one o'clock train tonight."

Peggy suddenly took his big hand in hers.

"Roy, why didn't you write ever?"

"Because," replied Roy slowly, "just one little girl's image has been in my mind for this past year—it was yours, Peg—I didn't believe you cared—so—so—I was afraid to write for fear I'd say too much."

Suddenly Peg was in his arms.

"You—never, never could say too much!" She was half-laughing, half-sobbing.

Late that night after Roy had left Peg received a telegram. The crisis was past—Aunt Alice would get well—and they would pack mother off home tomorrow.

Peg prayed long and earnestly that night. She thanked God for his many blessings.

Refused Insurance

Mr. Dunning Left Service in Bad Shape, But Doan's Soon Corrected His Trouble.

Geo. Dunning, ex-Chief Boatswain Mate of the U. S. Navy, 470 Medford St., Somerville, Mass., says: "Every bit of trouble I suffered from my kidneys was a result of exposure at sea. I was retired practically an invalid. My kidneys became more and more irregular all the time and some nights I was forced to get up every half hour. The kidney secretions burned like fire and were filled with brick-dust-like sediment. My joints swelled and were inflamed. I couldn't bend over to lace my shoes and had to be helped up and down. Right after my retirement from service I tried to get insured, but was turned down because of kidney trouble. I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills and used sixteen boxes. By that time every sign of kidney trouble left me and my back was like iron; not an ache or pain left. I tried for insurance again and was declared a good risk. I give Doan's Kidney Pills credit for putting me in perfect health."

World's Largest Building Is a Tomb.

Now that the war is over, folks predict that there will be a big boom in building. Modern architects have done wonders, as every one who has seen the Woolworth building in New York or the Eiffel tower in Paris will admit, but human labor has not yet accomplished anything which will rival the ancient pyramids of Egypt.

The priests of Memphis informed Herodotus that the Great Pyramid was built about 900 years before Christ. Cheops, king of Egypt, had 100,000 men employed 20 years in the building of it, and laborers in those days didn't work union hours, either. The tomb of Cheops was built in a room beneath the bottom of the pyramid.

HISTORICAL PAPER

"The Old Colony Railroad" was the subject of an interesting historical paper read before the Weymouth Historical Society at the Fogg Public Library on Wednesday Oct. 29, by Warren Jacobs of Hingham, who for a number of years was ticket agent in the South Station, Boston, and is now in charge of the distribution of tickets. He has had access to much valuable data, and had with him several scrap books, pictures and other exhibits which were open for inspection.

Mr. Jacobs told of the incorporation of the "Old Colony" in 1844, of meetings of the incorporators held that year in South Weymouth, Plymouth, and Boston. Of the opening of the railroad from Boston to Plymouth, 37 miles, in 1845, with two trains daily each way, and two specials to South Braintree, of the opening of the Kneeland street station in 1847 and the establishment of the Fall River line to New York on the same date.

Told when the different branches were opened, the two tracks were laid, when consolidations took place, etc. Of the early engines and elegant cars, and much else of interest.

The Historical Society gave Mr. Jacobs a vote of thanks.

President H. H. Joy announced the gift to the Society of bound volumes of the Weymouth Gazette since 1869 which were examined by many with interest.

Another gift was a war flag—large American flag with the following inscription: "This flag floated over the U. S. submarine L-2, when it fought and sank the German U-65 off the Irish coast July 10, 1898—presented to Weymouth Historical Society by John Vinson one of the crew of the L-2."

W. L. Bates exhibited one of the original season tickets between Boston and South Weymouth.

Mrs. Rockwood related the fact that Mrs. Alfred Tirrell of South Weymouth, now 92, saw the first train run between Boston and Plymouth.

TEACHERS FEDERATION

Miss Mary McKimmon, principal of the Pierce school, Brookline, was elected president of the Massachusetts Teachers' Federation, at its annual meeting in Riverbank court, Cambridge, on Saturday, October 18. After considerable discussion, it was voted to amend the constitution so as to admit state and county associations. These associations include the Massachusetts Superintendents' Association, the Massachusetts Schoolmaster's Club, and the county associations.

Arthur Kallom, assistant director of the department of educational measurements of the Boston schools, gave an interesting account of the Boston survey to date.

Miss Barnes was appointed to represent the Federation on the National Physical Education Committee. Miss Mabel Anderson, chairman of the publicity committee, is to serve on the state committee for standardizing motion pictures.

Miss Annie A. Fraher of Weymouth was elected one of the directors.

100% FOR AMERICA

One of the guests of honor at the Welcome Home Banquet was Joseph Toohar, Ship's Cook 2 cl, U. S. N. Joe was a member of the crew of the U. S. S. Texas and bound for the Pacific. While under way from Hampton Roads he ran afoul of a dough mixing machine and received a badly broken arm. When the fleet reached Panama he was shipped back to the hospital at Hampton Roads. At the request of the Special Aid Society he was transferred to the Naval Hospital at Chelsea. The Toohar family registered 100% in the late war. Joe saw active service with the A. E. F. in France. He returned on the U. S. S. St. Louis and liked what he saw of Naval life so well that he immediately shipped as a landsman for ship's cook, Dennis, who had served a full hitch in the Navy, entered the Merchant Marine at the outbreak of war. By diligent study and hard work he has arrived at the position of second mate. He is expected home Christmas from a long cruise. Bill's military history began when he went to the border with Company K. He fought with that outfit in France and was twice wounded. He is now serving with the State Guard in Boston.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS

Roy Brackett, Supervisor of the Census for the eighth District of Massachusetts, which includes the counties of Norfolk, Plymouth and Barnstable, states that he will need about 285 enumerators for this district. Applications or requests for application forms should be sent to him immediately. His address is Supervisor of the Census, Bradford Building, Quincy, Mass. As a test of their fitness for the work applicants will be required to fill out a sample schedule and will be duly notified of the time and place for this test. So far as practicable the place selected will be one which is easily accessible.

AMERICAN LEGION.

Containing the report of the last meeting of Weymouth Post, American Legion.

The committee that attended the recent State convention held at Worcester submitted a report of what took place at the same. Due to diligent canvassing of this committee, the Post is to have the honor of being represented at the National convention to be held at Milwaukee in November, by Comrade Thomas McCarthy.

Chairman Herbert Rockwood, of the membership committee brought in additional names of members, but there still remains a large number of ex-service men of the town that have not joined the Legion. The charter closes November 11, and after that date the membership fee is to be advanced to $2. Join now and be a charter member and take advantage of the $1 rate.

Chairman Thomas McCarthy of the entertainment committee reported considerable favorable data regarding the Post entertainment and dance to be held at Fogg's Opera House, South Weymouth, Nov. 11, Armistice Day. A very attractive program has been arranged for the concert that evening after which dancing will be enjoyed until 2 o'clock. The music will be furnished by our new Legion orchestra under the direction of Comrade Frank Ventre. The boys are working hard to make this a gala night, so arrange to be with the boys from the town that helped to make such a historic day possible.

The next meeting of the Post will be held Nov. 17, in the G. A. R. hall at 7.45 P. M.

Members of the American Legion will endorse the following lament of a private published in the New Orleans Times—Picaune.

In the army they call me a private.

It is a misnomer.

There is nothing private about me.

I have been examined by 50 doctors and they haven't missed a blemish.

I have confessed to being married and having no children.

I have told my previous occupation and my salary.

I have nothing in my past that has not been revealed.

I am the only living thing that has less privacy than a goldfish.

I sleep in a room with countless other men and eat with about 900.

I take my baths with the entire detachment.

I wear a suit of the same material and cut as 5,000,000 other men.

I have to tell a physician when I kiss a pretty girl.

I never have a single moment to myself.

And they call me a "Private!"

MARRIED IN ENGLAND

The marriage of Norman H. T. Studley of this town and Miss Nesta H. Murray, daughter of Mrs. Helen Murray of Inverness, Scotland, took place at St. James Episcopal Church, Manchester, England, September 29, in the presence of relatives and friends, and was followed by a reception at the Queen's Hotel. After a brief honeymoon the groom rejoined his ship. The bride will leave shortly for her new home in America, where she will receive a cordial welcome. This, however, will not be her first visit to this country, as she spent some time here while receiving her education.

Mr. Studley first met his bride while stationed at the Naval Base at Inverness in 1918, he, at that time having been an officer on board U. S. S. Shawmut, one of the ships of the mining squadron of the Atlantic fleet. The happy pair have the best wishes of a host of friends for a pleasant and prosperous journey through life.

PRICE SIX CENTS

Review of Good Work

By the Special Aid

The annual report of the East Weymouth Special Aid Society:

The end of the year November, 1918 to November, 1919, has brought with it many rewards and a lightening of the routine work of the society. Our rewards have come to us in the satisfaction of being able to honor and help even in a small way the Service men as they have come home from overseas and from the camps in this country.

The Red Cross work stopped for several months after June 30 so the totals for 1918-19 show a corresponding drop.

Under the direction of the Sewing committee, the total number of articles completed were, 1211; knitted articles, 433; surgical dressings, 872. (For one month, November, finished this work). Almost all of these articles were made for the Red Cross.

The activities of the society have extended in various directions during the past year. A Lookout committee was appointed whose duties consist in keeping track of every man returning from overseas, sending each a letter of welcome, enclosing therein $5. Everyone who has needed special attention or financial encouragement has received it, in amounts varying from $5 to $60 apiece. Candy, cigarettes, fruit and magazines have also been sent to the soldiers still in the hospitals. Since February, 1919, 145 men have been remembered, with a total of $1,176 expended for this purpose.

In June a Welcome Home cabaret supper and dance was given to all East Weymouth Service men then home, with an attendance of about 150. Another one was given in October, taking in about 40 more on the supper, those returned since the first affair, and a dance for all East Weymouth soldiers and sailors.

In August, when the Town of Weymouth had their Welcome Home celebration, the Special Aid Society was represented on the committee. Last Christmas a money order of $2 and a Christmas greeting card, was sent to the 145 men then across. Also a flowering plant was given the mothers of the men who had died in the service, and at the time of the Y. D. parade a victory laurel wreath was sent to these mothers.

On Memorial Day a bouquet of flowers was also sent to the families in remembrance of these boys. The Red Cross cartons at Xmas were inspected by our Society in its capacity as a Red Cross branch.

Odd Fellows

Remember Service Men

Two events especially called the Odd Fellows of Wildey lodge to their rooms on Monday evening, Nov. 10, the occasion being a reception to their ex-service men, also a roll call.

The Fellows came early and at 7 o'clock filled the supper room to enjoy a feast prepared by a committee from Abigail Adams Rebekah lodge with Mrs. Lizzie Stackpole, P. G., as chairman. The supper consisted of roast beef, rice, potatoes, squash, all kinds of pies, ice cream, cake and coffee, and when the last man adjourned to the lodge room the "inner man" had been most bountifully satisfied.

A business meeting followed with N. G. Charles Sturtevant presiding. This was made as short as possible, due to the pressure of more important things ahead.

After a short intermission the evening program was resumed, and the lodge orchestra furnished the opening number. Very well chosen words were aptly spoken by N. G. Sturtevant, and everyone felt a welcome particularly our ex-service boys.

It fell to the lot of H. H. Joy to make these fellows feel that their services had been appreciated by Wildey Lodge, and as a token of this appreciation each one received something "that would go into the pocket". The gift was a silver pocket knife, bearing three links on the one side, and the boy's initials on the reverse side.

It was asked that these boys "line up". They did so, and with a stirring march played by the orchestra and headed by Brother Louis Ellis carrying the American flag, these thirteen boys (there are 14 in all) circled the hall three times amidst the applause of (Continued on Page 8)

The Maine House of Representatives passed a bill to provide a bonus of $100 to soldiers of Maine who served in the world war. Representative Lausier of Biddeford held up the bill temporarily, saying that he thought the soldiers should get more than $100.

Ralph Greenleaf of Philadelphia, pocket billiard expert and near champion, was arrested in Bridgeport, Conn., on a coroner's warrant in connection with the murder at Milford, Conn., of Benjamin Blukowitz of New York City, messenger for a New York broker, who disappeared with $178,000 Liberty bonds.

A gold medal and $1000 have been awarded by the Carnegie hero fund commission to Michael A. O'Garra, hero policeman of Everett, Mass., for saving a woman about to be drawn beneath the wheels of an express train. The award comes after an investigation of more than two years by the commission.

The "no coffee" rule was strictly enforced at the dinner held by the Portland Housewives' League, the 35 women attending stopped this beverage as a part of the boycott which they recently adopted, in accordance with the request of national headquarters. Butter and eggs are also under the ban of the league.

With the exception of Melrose, Mass., every community that had the opportunity to register at the polls its opinion on the 4 per cent. beer question voted to instruct its representatives to vote to legalize such a beverage. The vote was taken under the public opinion act and has no binding force on the legislators from the districts where it was cast.

The annual meeting of the Hampden County Association of Congregational Ministers was held at the Falls Congregational church, So. Hadley, Mass. The moderator urged at the opening that attention be given by Congregational Churches to the observance of Advent, Lent and Christmas. He also favored Sunday baseball of the amateur kind, with restrictions.

George J. Capewell, 76, founder of the Capewell Horse Nail Company, died, Thursday. He invested machines which made profitable the finishing of horseshoe nails by power processes. Tremendous receipts of fish have been distributed from Boston the present year, the total representing 104,246,008 pounds landed from 1833 vessels. Last year the receipts from 1831 vessels aggregated 96,151,185 pounds. During the past 10 months, notwithstanding a strike of fishermen that practically tied up the industry for six weeks, the receipts of seafood have been enormous.

The remains of Clarence E. Bailey, whose skeleton was found in the woods near Wickford, R. I., has been identified by his widow, Mrs. Lucinda J. Bailey of Lynn. Mrs. Bailey says that her husband, who was employed at the works of the General Electric Company as head of the machinists' department, became dissatisfied with his work and left his home at 522 Summer street, Lynn, on March 23, 1918.

Pinkerton agents, with the assistance of Inspector George Patterson of the Boston bureau of criminal investigation, arrested in a downtown hotel William Scott Hall, 38, years old, of 174 Grove street, Wellesley, who is wanted by the police of more than half a dozen cities for larceny by means of worthless checks. His victims include both business men and banks, the amounts ranging in each instance from $5 to $200.

Prof. Monahan of Amherst, expert for Massachusetts Agricultural College, has solved the mystery of the death of hundreds of fowls in Lenox henneries. The birds had tapeworms. Specimens of the fowls were dissected at Amherst and worms two inches long were found in the intestines. When attacked by the worms the fowls lose weight and strength and die. Famous Lee strains have been hit by the epidemic and the loss reaches thousands of dollars.

The brewers' test of the constitutionality of the prohibition enforcement act came before Judge Arthur L. Brown in the United States district court, Providence, and in the course of the discussion the court said he believed the prohibition amendment would not have been passed if it had not been worded so that it would not go into effect until a year following ratification. He added that there was no question in his mind but that the temporary war time act and the present act defeat the intention of the amendment to give a lapse of one year following its ratification.

Ninety-seven years was no deterrent to James Munroe Mott of Wellfleet, Mass., when it came to voting. This man, who will be 100 in less than three years, cast his ballot for the straight Republican ticket.

Drunkness is rapidly decreasing in Providence, since war-time prohibition went into effect. Prohibition has also had its effect on other fences. Patrolmen are getting as about the only excitement get is in trying doors. All but of the 311 saloons in the city closed. The liquor dealers here dict the ban will be raised by the die of the month.

The board of trustees of West University, Middletown, Conn., meeting held in New York decided increase by $1,000,000 the endowment of $2,000,000 authorized last June this total about $2,000,000 will be in increasing salaries of the faculty and in providing for needed additions to the teaching staff. Action taken making a first increase at on the basic salary of full professors $3000 to $3250.

A hold-up rivaling the daring exploits of the bad men of old days in the West took place in Portland shortly before 6 o'clock P. M. when two strangers, armed with revolvers, stood up Morris Goldhaber, an India street storekeeper, two Norwegians, a Biddeford man and a small boy in Goldhaber's little shop and relieved them of more than $300. The stranger wore no disguises, worked quickly and escaped without hindrance.

Winchell Smith actor and playwright, has given the blanket and surcingle presented to his father by the late Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt for the use of his famous stallion, Thomas Jefferson, to the Hartford tuberculosis relief committee. It is learned that the blanket won by the famous stallion has been turned over to the Road Drivers' Club and sold at the club's racing meet held at Charter Oak Park last Saturday. Thomas Jefferson defeated the fastest stallion in the country in a race held in Boston in 1876 for a purse of $10,000. He had a record of 2:23.

Miss Blanche Wildes, registered nurse of the Mass. state department of health, in an address, declared that "about one-tenth of the babies born in Massachusetts die before they reach their first birthday and that 40 per cent. of them die before they are a month old." One great reason she assigned is "because the mothers of these babies did not have good care before and up to the time of the baby's birth. After all," said she, "there are not many rules beyond right food, fresh air, sunlight and cleanliness." She expressed hope that a law will be passed obliging all cities school nurses.

Officials of the Club are exonerated criminal careers. Judge Dan Sossy, in a question on the death of a member of the Boys' Club camping party, who were drowned at Big Pond, East Otis, last July. The report says the immediate cause of the accident was a squall that caused panic among the boys in two boats. Judge Sossy says it may be that the club representatives might have taken more precautions relative to the supervision of the boys in the use of boats, but the evidence does not show that they failed to exercise the usual care and prudence in the conduct of such camps.

Christopher Preble, Seboc, Me., the noted bear hunter and trapper, is recovering from a set-to with a big black bear, in which he received one of the worst clawings in his long experience. He got the bear, which is No. 129 on his list. He was on a line of traps on Alder stream when he found that one of his bear traps was gone. The trail showed that a big bear was dragging it with the dog. He hurried along the trail and in jumping over a log ran plump into the bear. The bear made a rush at the hunter, but was held back by the trap and clog, and Preble, who had held on to his rifle, managed to roll over and, while lying almost on his back, fired, the shot going through the bear's brain.

The United States Trading Company, Ltd., of New York, doing business in Boston, has brought suit for $300,000 against Robert Montgomery of Boston in the Superior Court for Suffolk County for an alleged breach of contract. The plaintiff company says that it negotiated for the purchase of a Canadian steamship called the Gen. Turner, which was to be used in carrying trade between the United States and foreign ports. Montgomery, who it is claimed represented himself to be the virtual owner and man in control of the American Discount Company, agreed, it is alleged to guarantee the acceptance of drafts to the amount of $175,000 made by the United States Trading Company. Montgomery, according to the plaintiff failed to perform his contract.

With national prohibition steadily approaching in the United States, the smuggling of liquor across the Maine-New Brunswick boundary is becoming of daily occurrence. Fast automobiles make regular trips between provincial centres and the cities of Maine, and although the customs officials are alert, there are so few of them that it is impossible to guard all roads. Residents of Maine living along the border have no trouble in obtaining all the stimulants they want by stepping across the boundary line.

LEATHER FROM SKINS OF FISH

New Industry Is Established
Through Work of Experts.

SHOULD BE NO SHORTAGE

Bureau of Fisheries Makes Nets to Catch Sharks and Other Fishes, and Their Hides Have Been Tanned—Fishing Stations Established as Well as Exhibits of Shoes, Traveling Bags and Suit Cases.

At this time when there is increasing popular concern about the high and prospectively higher price of shoes, it is pertinent to direct attention to the fact that there should be no actual shortage of leather. While the war has interrupted and increased the cost of transportation of hides from South America, thereby enhancing the value of one kind of leather, it has been responsible for the creation of another kind of leather, leather from shark and other fish skins. Through the efforts of experts under the direction of the United States bureau of fisheries an important and entirely new industry has been established.

Experiments Succeed.

Experiments having been made to determine whether serviceable leather could be made from the skins of fish, Lewis Radcliffe of the fishing industries division of the bureau applied himself to the task of overcoming the difficulties encountered. Unsatisfactory attempts had been made at tanning, so scientific methods had to be brought to bear on the problem. An effective process of tanning was discovered and the next step was to secure a supply of skins and put it in operation. A special net was devised by the bureau, 600 yards long, 18 feet deep, 4-inch mesh. The top and bottom are lined with half-inch No. 18 thread rope, weighted with suitable lead below, buoyed by corks above. With one of these nets 2,000 big sharks were caught in ten days.

Fishing stations were established at Moorehead City, N. C., Fort Myers, Fla., and Edmunds, Puget sound. A New York company has a tannery in Newark, while the bureau of fisheries has a wonderful exhibition of fish leather in one of the rooms of its Washington building. There are to be seen tables of shoes, black and tan colored traveling bags, suit cases, music rolls, card cases, pocketbooks and novelties of various shades, plain, embossed and grained, that are a delight to the eye and without offense to the nose, although every one of them is made from a fish skin. Near by are sheets of leather, soft and beautifully tanned, that once had covered that useless fish, the shark, or a porpoise or a devilfish.

Superior Grade of Leather.

None but an expert would say they were not samples of superior grades of leather made from the hides of animals such as are commonly used in the trade. One likes to feel them and wonders at their pliability and their varied shades—gun metal, tan, terra cotta, red, blue, gray and brown, to those that seem like watered silk. The finish is superb.

Uses for all parts of the shark have been developed. The hides are made into leather, liver oil is obtained and sells at the plant, unrefined, for 80 cents to $1.10 a gallon, and the flesh and waste is turned into fish scrap to be used in fertilizer. Fish meat, a valuable animal food, also is a by-product. Shark meat for human consumption is sold and demand for it is increasing. Large quantities are reported in storage in northern cities, especially in New York and New England, where its popularity is most marked.

Far East Short of Rice.

The crop failures in the far East are causing grave anxiety in British North Borneo, and the prices of Siamese rice are more than three times as high as two years ago. The shortage is even now so acute that a food controller has been appointed. The government conducts the import of rice through agents, and the laborers in the estates have been rationed.

Daily Thought.

Every man is like the company he is wont to keep.—Euripides.

INVESTIGATION OF PROBLEMS RAISED BY ESTABLISHMENT OF RURAL EXPRESS LINES

Motor Trucks Used to Distribute Army Food in City of Washington.

F. H. Akers, Chicago, manager of a large automobile concern, has presented the results of some investigations relative to motor stages and freight lines.

While Mr. Akers believes in common with many other automobile men that rural express lines have a future before them, he has run across several problems which must be met and solved before they can be a complete success. He advocates the establishment of a rural express commission operating under the state government, and regulating rates, competition, etc., as a protection to this very young industry. Here is a case which Mr. Akers investigated:

"Not long ago one of our truck dealers in Washington saw a very feasible untraversed motor express route between a small town and a fairly good-sized city. A young clerk in a clothing store had consistently saved his money—had been reading the government's propaganda—and saw in the rural express idea an opportunity of becoming his own boss—a proprietor of a rural express line—with every chance to expand. The young man enlisted the help of the truck dealer. Together they canvassed the merchants in the town and were assured of enough business to make the line pay, providing a reasonable amount of freight could be secured in the city to haul back.

"The young man purchased the truck and soon had a thriving little business. Then another truck dealer got busy and persuaded another man to enter the business. A truck dealer in the city at the other end of the line induced a man there to inaugurate a line on the same route. Shortly there were four competitors on the one line and when the business was split four times there was not enough money left to pay gasoline bills.

Commission Needed.
"Had a properly constituted commission been established with the necessary authority to grant franchises and limited the route to two competitors the enterprise would have been a success. With the franchise there would naturally go some undertakings on the part of the truck owner. For example, he would have to give a bond to deliver on schedule the same as the parcel post contractor in any city, with a penalty attached for failure. Rates would be established by this commission. A truck owner should not be compelled to make rates so low that he can't give good service or yet, because of his franchise, be allowed to charge exorbitant rates.

"The return loads bureau, which is another factor in conducting the rural express system, is something else that will need careful attention. The evil of all loads being return loads, will be a menace to the rural express system unless carefully guarded against. It is the greatest system of transportation ever devised and as such should be protected from its pitfalls."

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

Replace the old rubber before it becomes entirely useless.

Slow down when a horse shows signs of fright and, if necessary, stop the engine.

Become thoroughly familiar with your local traffic regulations and follow them to the letter.

"The popular idea that repaired or questionable tires are used to best advantage on front wheels is a perilous one.

Clever Willie.

Glancing hastily over the pages of Willie Johnson's examination papers, the teacher was delighted to see that not one of the questions remained unanswered. But upon a more careful scrutiny her pride took a tumble. After nine of the twelve questions Willie had written politely, "I am sorry that this is a subject on which I have no information."

Lighter Than Cork.

Sunflower stalk pith, which is about ten times lighter than cork, is used in a life saving apparatus invented by a Russian.

REPAIR PIT DONE AWAY WITH

Uncomfortable Place Has Been Replaced by More Convenient Scaffold, as Illustrated.

The repair pit is, at best, a most uncomfortable place to work in, and to do away with it a large public garage has resorted to the method shown in the illustration. A trap was cut in the floor above the repair shop and the car to be repaired was driven over the hole in the floor. A scaffold, having a platform about 4 feet square, was then wheeled into place, underneath the hole. On the platform is a small bench with a vise, and drawers for nuts, bolts, etc.

The result has been a saving in time, for the workman has a place in which to work, plenty of room to move about, and he can work steadily without having to climb down for tools.—W. R. Davis, in Popular Science Monthly.

Do not overload.

Cover your spare tire.

Use plenty of air.

Keep an air-gauge handy.

Keep grease and oil away from rubber.

Test supposed leaky valves with a cup of water.

Do not neglect to change the oil in the crankcase because it is a dirty job.

Don't run closer than 15 feet to any vehicle, person or animal moving in front of you.

Don't disregard the child on the curb. Remember, he can start quicker than you can stop.

Her Last Social Function.

My small son on coming home from school one noon said to me: "Mother, I'm going over to Bundy's home this afternoon." On my asking what he was going for he replied: "Why, don't you know his grandma is having her funeral this afternoon?"—Chicago Tribune.

PUZZLED.

Bug Postman—I wish these fool bugs would have their houses numbered. How do I know where this belongs?

Unenforcements.

A law appeared. Men paused to look with satisfaction deep. It crept into a statute book And there it went to sleep.

Thorough Preparation.

"If it is your ambition to go into the movies, why do you devote so much time to the study of elocution?"
"I wish to become a director and producer and I want to develop enough eloquence to hold my own in an argument with the actors."

The Difference.

"I understood the college professor you were talking of had to give up his position, and is now a common laborer in a shipyard. What a fall!"
"Fall nothing! Now he rides in his automobile, and his family has steak for dinner."

An Acquaintance.

"I noticed you waved your hand to that traffic policeman."
"Yes," said the motorist.
"Old friend of yours?"
"In a way. He's carried me to court a few times."

GENIUS.

"Are you an expert accountant?"
"Yes, sir," said the applicant.
"Your written references seem to be all right, but tell me more about yourself."

"Well, my wife kept a household budget for thirty days. One night after dinner I sat down and in less than an hour found out how much we owed our grocer."

"Hang up your hat and coat. The job is yours."

Standards of Value.

"One of the summer boarders of ours is a regular profiteer," exclaimed Farmer Cornstossel.

"Why he's the one that pays the money."

"Yes. But he eats enough at one meal to put him ahead of the game for the rest of the week."

Runs in the Family.

"Jack Grabcois says the most valuable thing he acquired at college was a poker face."

Umph! I happen to know something about old Mr. Grabcois's record at the same institution and it's my opinion that Jack didn't acquire a poker face. He inherited it."

Price of Happiness.

No man can be happy when he despises his own acts, when he has any consciousness of wrong, whether of motive or act. No man can be happy when he harbors thoughts of revenge, jealousy, envy or hatred. He must have a clean heart and a clean conscience, or no amount of money or excitement can make him happy.—Exchange.

NOT MUCH DIFFERENCE.

"What's the difference between a pessimist and an optimist?"
"That's easy—a pessimist acts the way he feels, while an optimist acts the way he thinks he ought to feel."

An Epitaph.

Mean Hint.

"There is so much in that girl's manner which is put on."
"I suppose she wants it to match her complexion."

Would Tell It to Father.

She—I don't think father would ever hear of my marrying you.
"All right, then, we'll tell him ourselves."—Dartmouth Jack o' Lantern.

LEGION'S DANCE

The entertainment and dance held by Weymouth Post at Fogg's Opera House, Armistice night was a success in every way. People began to arrive at 7 P. M. At 8 when the new Legion orchestra opened the concert with "The Star Spangled Banner" it was estimated that 700 were in the hall. Comrades of the G. A. R. and the officers of the Special Aid Society were honor guests.

A large number of the veterans who had not enrolled in the Legion took advantage of the last chance to become charter members. V. P. Worledge, the new financial secretary was kept busy receiving applications for membership and passing out Legion buttons.

The capacity of the hall was taxed to the utmost every inch of the floor being crowded with dancers at all times.

The concert starting at eight and lasting until 9:30 was as follows:

CEMETERY FAIR

The thirty sixth annual fair of the Ladies Cemetery Improvement Association of Weymouth and East Braintree was held at Bates Opera House, Wednesday afternoon and evening, and there was a large attendance both afternoon and evening. The usual variety of fancy and useful articles, fruits, vegetables, food and candy was offered for sale.

In the afternoon there was a bridge and whist party in charge of Mrs. Jennie Worster, and in the evening the entertainment consisted of "The Magic Mirror" given under the direction of Mrs. Harry C. Newman, the following taking part: Mrs. Kate P. Thayer, Mrs. Franklin P. Virgin, Mrs. Frederick D. Nichols, Mrs. Percy E. Cook, Franklin Whitten, Edward Brown and Misses May Davis, Gladys Vining, Olive Gernym, Grace Crane, Mae Allett, Helen Hunt, Margaret Vining, Louise Hunt, Arta Holgate and Dorothy Avery.

FREDERICK CATE

Frederick Cate, for years one of the town's leading business men and a most estimable citizen, died at his home, 133 Washington street, Wednesday morning. He suffered a shock a short time ago. He was born in Gardiner, Maine, 69 years ago and had resided in this town for many years where he was engaged in the manufacture of women's wrappers. He never recovered from the death of a son, Lieut. Lawrence Cate of the Aviation Corps, who died at a southern camp a year ago. Besides his widow he leaves two daughters, Misses Dora and Hawthorne Cate, and two sons, Harold and Melville Cate. The funeral will take place from his home this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

BOARD OF TRADE

Frederick Humphrey presided at the November meeting of the Board of Trade on Wednesday evening. There was a general discussion on the proposed Town Hall for Weymouth, and some routine business.

An explosion at the Quincy Oil plant at Quincy Adams yesterday afternoon, resulted in a spectacular fire, and loss of $2,000.

Weymouth and East Braintree

The regular meeting of the Men's Club of the Universalist church will be on November 18, preceded by a supper at 7 P. M., served by the ladies of the church. The speaker announced for this meeting is Samuel Wood, Jr., of Quincy. All of our men are urged to come.

The social at the Universalist church last Friday evening was well attended. The committee was rushed to supply about eighty-five mouths. After all were amply filled, the play given by the young people was amusing. Miss Carrie Robinson then led in some of the Halloween games. Young and old entered with zest into the spirit of the contest. Dancing was enjoyed by the young people at the close. These socials are becoming most enjoyable for all who attend.

Many will be surprised to learn that Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Walsh have become non-residents. Their new address is 53 Claremont street, East Braintree.

Mrs. Laura A. Lynn died at the home of her cousin, Mrs. Ines B. Merrill, 400 Commercial street, East Braintree, Oct. 30. She came to East Braintree about six years ago. The body was sent to Clearwater, Florida, for burial. Mrs. Lynn had spent the winters in that place for a number of years. She was a native of New Hampshire.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gloster of Lisle street, East Braintree, a few days ago.

A large brick garage is being erected on Quincy avenue for George E. Fogg.

Mrs. Susie A. Sanborn of Chelsea has been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Perry.

Elmer, the four year old son of Mrs. Jennie Novelle of Quincy who has made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Thayer of Broad street, died Monday of pneumonia. Last year the boy's father died of influenza and the little fellow who was also sick at that time with the same disease never fully regained his health. He was taken ill Sunday with pneumonia and died Monday afternoon. The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 13, at 2 P. M. at the Baptist church officiated. Interment was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery, at Quincy.

There have been reports in several of the papers of parties in several towns picking roses from the bushes lately, the weather being unusually mild. Maurice Cleary of 23 Keith street went out in his garden Armistice Day and picked a bunch of nine handsome roses from one of his bushes.

Edward Hofess who has a position with the Massachusetts Highway Commission as chauffeur, and has been stationed for several months in the western part of the state, was in town over the holiday.

Louis St. Peter has taken the position of chauffeur with A. J. Richards & Son.

Daniel Donovan of Walnut avenue who has been under treatment at the Homeopathic hospital for some time, arrived home Tuesday, and is very much improved in health.

Ray Call, employed as a chauffeur, was quite badly injured on Tuesday. He was driving on Washington street near the home of John Holly when the machine skidded and turned turtle. Call was thrown out and quite badly cut about the head and face.

Edward Dwyer lost a pair of handsome grey horses valued at $600 at the Fore River Ship yard Wednesday. The horses were attached to a heavily loaded wagon and backed off a bank into the river.

Washington street between Washington square and Lincoln square has received its final coat of concrete, and is a street of which Weymouth may be proud.

The easterly sidewalk on the new Quincy avenue bridge has been opened for pedestrians, and is much appreciated. The block pavings on the bridge are nearly all laid and the bridge will soon be opened for travel.

Street railway rails have been laid on the bridge and on the Quincy side, but not connected. The approaches to the bridge will not be surfaced until next spring.

Dancing and pictures every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at the Bates Opera House.

Darius Smith of Broad street, a life long resident of this town, will be 91 years old tomorrow. Mr. Smith enjoys excellent health, has all his faculties and can read ordinary print without glasses. He was town clerk in 1865. He is one of the charter members of Delphi lodge, Knights of Pythias.

EAST WEYMOUTH and WEYMOUTH CENTER

Philip Miller, machinist's mate ICL, the last Weymouth man in France, is on his way home. For fourteen months he was attached to the U. S. S. Bridgeport which was the repair ship for the destroyer flotilla at Brest. He is en route to the Special Aid Society he tells of visiting Weymouth England, and seeing a tablet containing names of the Pilgrims who left Old Weymouth to settle in New England.

About 8 P. M. Friday a still alarm called Hose 2 to Alden's shop. The soot in the ceiling had caught fire but was quickly extinguished.

Saturday afternoon, an auto driven by Francis P. Dennison of 147 Middle street struck Mollie Daley, eight year old daughter of Jack Daley, as she was crossing Broad street near Shawmut. Bruised about the head and face, she was taken home by the driver.

William A. Connell, who is in charge of a store at Fitchburg, was given leave of absence to attend the Armistice celebration.

Lawrence Gallant has passed the civil service examinations for the Boston police force. He expects to be attached to the motor cycle squad.

Harry Morton has graduated from the Ford class. He is now driving a Chevrolet and, Sumner Peers is in possession of the Ford that was his.

The latest applicant for the position of America's foremost dare-devil left vacant by the death of Rodman Law, is Rifford Bedell, who sat without flinching while Eugene Smith applied one of Dominick Azzurze's razors to his defenceless face. Smith's approach and stance were perfect. His preliminary motions and practice swings looked promising. But then there is a difference between scraping insulation from wire and moving the stubborn human whisker. The exhibition drew a large crowd and some blood.

A severe attack of rheumatism has kept Henry Welch at home all week.

Some of the stores have reduced the sugar ration to a half a pound.

A few years ago when Foskett and Law and Abe Rousseau put on movie shows in East Weymouth it was considered a successful evening if the house was half filled. Now it takes two cops to take care of the crowds at the Wednesday and Saturday shows.

Invitations have been sent out by the local lodge of Odd Fellows for a Welcome Home banquet to be given November 18 to the Odd Fellows who were in the service.

That the new Legion Orchestra is there was proved beyond doubt Tuesday night. People who had come to look on, not to dance, were unable to resist the appealing jazz provided by the musical warriors. So entranced was one elderly gentleman he could scarce contain himself. With the aid of his walking stick he introduced many new steps. All through the evening he pivoted and gyrated about the hall in terpsichorean ecstasy. The swaggar stick trot threatens to become popular this winter with the more staid and conservative of the dancing element.

Mrs. Charles Harrington has sold her house on Shawmut street and will move to Wollaston where her son resides.

Officer Robert L. Burbank resumed his post in Jackson Square Nov. 2. Bill Gaughen who covered that beat for the past few Sundays has again been forced to resign from the police department. The law that prohibits a government employee from holding more than one job applies to Gaughen. He was recently given definite instructions to give up either the police work or his job at the Hingham Magazine. He chose to retain the latter.

Stephen Dwyer, formerly track greaser working out of the East Weymouth car barn, has been appointed inspector of sweeps on the Quincy division. George Collins who was a motorman has been made an inspector.

Representative Burgess H. Spinney has procured from Governor Coddie the quill with which he signed an act "To provide suitable recognition of those residents of Massachusetts who served in the army and navy of the U. S. during the war with Germany". He presented the quill to the Weymouth Post, one of the American Legion saying that inasmuch as he was the sponsor for that bill and worked hard for its passage, he thought the Post might be interested in having it in its possession.

To the list of citizen slackers should be added the names of those who attend a dance or entertainment next Tuesday night other than the one given by Weymouth Post 79 of the American Legion.

The fire at South Hingham last night which destroyed the barn of John E. Nelson, was plainly visible at East Weymouth; loss over $5,000.

Dancing and pictures every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evening at the Bates Opera House.

How To Pick a Winner

A long time ago we learned that to fill our logical place in the community we needed to do more than "Sell Groceries." We had to sell "Service."

Perhaps you don't know it, but we feel a keen sense of responsibility for everything we sell you. We feel it is our duty to know all there is to be known about the products on our shelves. So, when something new comes on the market we test it. Test it in our own homes. That's one way we render service.

A striking example of this is Ryzon, the Perfect Baking Powder. Now, we were among the first to realize that if Ryzon was all that it was said to be, we ought to know about it.

And now we do.

We know so much about it that we recommend it to you as the dependable, economical Baking Powder. We sell you your flour, eggs and other ingredients and we want your baking to be successful. There is no better way of insuring this, we feel, than by selling you Ryzon.

It is 40 cents per pound, and we would like to tell you something about the Ryzon Baking Book, which is a complete manual of baking edited by Marion Harris Neil, and comprising 200 tested recipes. Ask how to get this $1.00 book for 30 cents.

CATHOLIC CLUB

A social evening was enjoyed by the members of the Weymouth Catholic Club, on Monday. A most delightful musical program was rendered by an orchestra directed by Mrs. Haddon of North Weymouth. A group of songs by Mrs. DeYone of Dorchester added much to the pleasure of the evening. Little Miss Dorothy DeNeil's piano playing evoked much enthusiasm.

Refreshments were served by more than a score of efficient hostesses. Not the least interesting and attractive feature of this part of the evening's entertainment was the cooking in chafin dishes of delicious creamed lobster and appetizing rarebit. Coffee and cake were also served.

The great success of the evening was due largely to the executive ability of Mrs. Augustus Conathan and the enthusiastic assistance of her committee.

SPECIAL AID REPORT

To aid in starting the Weymouth Post No. 79, American Legion, this society presented the Post with $50. The Girls' Service Leagues have continued in obtaining their sewing material through us.

The Visiting Nurse Association was given $250 towards an auto for the use of the nurse. During the recent police strike woolen socks were sent to all the local men doing State Guard duty in Boston.

Hostesses for the dances, etc., have been furnished for the War Camp Community Service House in East Weymouth. Also for the Wendall House of the Special Aid for service men located in Boston, for one afternoon a week during the winter and spring.

The sum of $31.25 was donated towards furnishing a "Weymouth" room in the Wendall House, and $25 was sent to the Officers Service House, also run by the Massachusetts Special Aid.

In response to a personal appeal from a French family, 40 skeins of grey yarn were sent to devastated France. A donation of $12.50 was also made through the Massachusetts Special Aid towards the traveling Hospital sent to Serbia for the relief of the refugees.

The Executive Committee has voted to reserve $100 of the balance on hand towards a memorial Honor Roll to be given by all the Special Aid Societies when the new Town Hall is built.

The following report of the treasurer is submitted, as we feel that the people of East Weymouth are entitled to know how the fund has been expended that they gave so generously and freely, and which they entrusted to us to spend for War Relief Work, and for the comfort and help of our local Service men. The report shows a much depleted bank account, but we know that every dollar has been spent when and where there was need of it, for our motto has been "Spend and thereby serve."

Some time ago it was announced that a number of men of Lovell's Corner were interested and anxious to do something for the recreation of the young people of the community. In order that the effort might be as effective as possible, and to assure its success as a lasting enterprise, an effort is being made to become a part of some great organization, for instance as the Y. M. C. A. To our surprise this institution is organized in hundreds of communities in the United States, having no building, no equipment, and no paid leadership, but depending entirely upon voluntary interest and help. The association gives these communities aid and advice about popular lectures, moving pictures, play days, athletic meets, conferences, and other activities of interest to the whole neighborhood. A member of the local association becomes a member of the great world brotherhood, and has visitor's privileges wherever there is a "Y" and is also eligible to county, state, and national conferences as a delegate. A local working committee has been chosen of which J. B. B. Smith is president, F. W. Rea secretary, Walter Cole treasurer, and A. S. Emig publicity manager. Other members of the committee are Messrs. I. B. H. Hawes, Charles Turner, Wilfred Hayden, W. W. Pratt, Franklin Sherman, Bowdoin B. Smith, Oswald Charwood. Several steps are still necessary until active work for all can be started. A number of committees are at work on various measures. All are deeply interested and hard at work and definite announcement of the opening of the work should be made soon.

The Lovell's Corner Improvement Association had their annual supper in the church vestry Tuesday evening. Mrs. Charles White was chairman of the supper committee, assisted by Mrs. Walter Pratt, Mrs. Charles Turner, Mrs. Walter Cole, Mrs. James Smith, Miss Nellie Holbrook and Mrs. Bowdoin Smith. The Waneeta Club were the guests of the Association, furnishing a musical entertainment after the supper. A business meeting followed with the election of officers for the ensuing year as follows: President, James B. B. Smith, vice president, Walter Pratt; secretary, Mrs. Wilfred Hayden; treasurer, Mrs. Charles White; directors, Frank Rea, Mrs. Walter Pratt, and Mrs. Frank Sherman. Five new members were voted into the society. It was voted to change the business meeting from the second Tuesday to the third Tuesday evening in the month. Refreshments and songs, accompanied by Mrs. F. S. Boynton, were enjoyed after the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Virta of Pleasant street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son.

Charles Cough of Washington street is ill with scarlet fever.

The Ladies Aid will hold their all-day sewing circle at the home of Mrs. James B. Smith next Wednesday.

The Waneeta Club gave a "rama Love and Tea" at the Gardner chapel in South Hingham Oct. 31.

Miss Maria Hawes has been confined to her home with a cold.

Mrs. H. S. one is confined to her home with rheumatism.

The Ladies' Aid will hold a fair next Tuesday and Wednesday evening in the Porter M. E. vestry. The entertainment for the first evening will consist of a reader and music. HOUSE CLEANING SIMPLIFIED Easier to Keep Dirt From Walks, Steps and Porches Than to Clean Rugs and Carpets.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Keeping the dirt out of the house as far as possible is the first step in simplifying house cleaning. It is easier to keep walks, steps, porches, and sills clean than to remove the dirt from rugs and floors after it has been tracked inside the house. Clean sills and rubbers mean less dirt for the housekeeper to combat.

When cleaning, remove the dust thoroughly. Right methods mean rearing, not scattering the dust about to settle again.

Do the heavy cleaning a little at a time and avoid the spring and fall house cleaning.

Use water and cleaning agents sparingly. Too much of either injures wood and all finishes as well as weakening glue, paste, and cement. Always rub until dry the surface which has been dampened.

Train the family to leave things in place and in good condition. Good habits are worth cultivating, and this one also simplifies the work of the housekeeper.

DETERMINE AGE OF CHICKEN

Good Method Is to Grasp End of Breast Bone Between Thumb and Finger and Bend It.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A good method of determining the age of dressed fowls, according to specialists of the United States department of agriculture, is to grasp the end of the breast bone farthest from the head between the thumb and finger and attempt to bend it to one side. In a very young bird, such as a broiler chicken or a green goose, it will bend easily like the cartilage of the human ear. In a bird a year or so old, it will be brittle and in an old bird, tough and hard to bend or break. Unscrupulous dealers sometimes break one end of the breast bone before showing the bird on the market, in order that the buyer will believe the bird to be a young one.

Canned cherries and strawberries are quite as good for pie as the fresh fruit.

A garment may be much improved if worn buttonholes are worked over neatly.

RECIPE FOR COTTAGE CHEESE

Housewives Becoming Familiar With Value of Excellent Substitute for Meat.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Both city and country housewives have become familiar with the value of cottage cheese as a meat substitute. If your family is tired of your old recipes, in which the cheese is an ingredient, why not try some new, approved ones? "Cottage Cheese and Its Uses," Office of the Secretary, Circular 109, issued by the department of agriculture, will be sent to anyone who writes for it.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

All meals possible should be served on the porch or under a tree.

Plan the housework so it can be done in the cool of the morning.

Keeping the baby cool and quiet is one preventive of digestive troubles.

Wise John.

John was able to persuade Ruth to do most things he desired. One day the children, with their little cousin, Edward, decided to draw pictures, but Ruth was still without one until her mother came to her aid with a big new pencil, John, whose pencil was a blue stub, looked longingly at the new one and then, in a coaxing voice, said: "Ruthie, don't you want this nice pretty blue one? It just matches your eyes." Needless to say, John secured the long pencil.

To Keep Cider Sweet.

When fresh from the press add one-fourth ounce sulphite of lime per gallon of cider. Keep in tight, full barrels or kegs. The addition of sugar or glucose improves keeping qualities. Boiled cider also keeps well, if sweetened. Addition of mint, wintergreen or other flavors adds to quality.

Wax Figures of Ancestors.

Many ancient families in England have stored away life sized figures in wax of their ancestors, made at the time of the original's death. The Duke of Norfolk has the figures of three wives of one of his ancestors, which are kept in a glass case at one of his country seats.

NEW DEPARTURES IN THE TROUSSEAUX

The little company of fine fabrics for underthings which women usually consider when the trousseau must be planned include batiste, nainsook, wash silk, satin and crepe-de-chine. But crepe georgette had only to knock at the door and it was admitted to this charming company; the sheerest and daintiest, but the least practical member of it. However, it is there among the others and destined to stay, for in spite of its delicacy it is not fragile. This is one of the new departures in the styles for underthings. Another is the use of colors instead of white in materials and printed as well as plain patterns.

For the purpose of decorating, lingerie laces, ribbons and needle work of various kinds have not found any rivals. Little chiffon roses find a place on the sheerest garments and narrow ribbons are used in frills and shirtings on them. But these are for luxurious and little-used garments. On those that are more dependable, rosettes and bows that can be pinned on and ribbons that can be easily taken out or put in, with the usual lingerie laces and stitchery, are used.

Not all undergarments are frilly and lacy—there are many very plain things, simple and tailored, that content themselves with hem-stitching and perhaps a single prim little bow for decoration.

But not to this class belong the night dress and envelope chemise shown in the picture. Batiste and all the silks available for undergarments are to be had in printed designs similar to that used for these two pretty garments that are the glory of the trousseau. Here they are made of flowered wash silk, with frills of lace about the neck and sleeve openings and frills of ribbon about the bottom. Pretty bow knots made of shirred ribbon, having chiffon roses set in them, are set on the front of both the night-dress and the chemise. Light pink is the favorite color for undergarments but other colors are used. The sheerest fabrics are not often chosen in white, but cottons and silks that are to be often laundered are better in white than in colors. Batiste in light pink stands rubbing well and has made an important place for itself in American made lingerie.

Silk and cotton, chamois or washable kid gloves, are preferred for gloves that must be often cleaned, and they are the only practical kinds for business women, or others who must wear them every day. Chamoisette—cloth that looks like chamois skin—is made in all the glove colors and white, and it is the most satisfactory material for everyday wear. Gloves made of it should be washed in lukewarm water with a bland soap, rinsed and hung up to dry. If stitched with black it is better to wash in cold water; squeeze as dry as possible in a soft towel and dry quickly to keep the black from running. Pieces of Turkish towel stuffed into gloves of this kind will help to prevent the color from spreading while they are drying, and also prevent drying in streaks, which sometimes happens when the gloves are hung up to dry without this precaution. With gloves as with stockings, it is best to have several pairs and wear them in rotation, washing them when soiled. Three pairs will insure clean gloves for a week, even in the smoke-laden air of cities.

Cotton and silk gloves may be very successfully darned, using a glove darning in the fingers. Double finger tips in silk gloves are worth the extra price they bring, for it is more difficult to darn silk gloves than cotton ones.

How to Care for Kid Gloves.

There are right and wrong ways of putting on gloves. The right way does not injure them; the wrong way weakens and tears the skin or fabric in a very short time. Black kid gloves should be kept in paraffin or oiled paper. A black glove is a white skin painted. This paint will harden and dry if not properly cared for. All gloves should be kept away from salt or damp air as much as possible. They should be kept dry, but away from heat. Time and great care should be taken in putting them on the first time, so that the seams may not be stretched.

Cleaning Kid Gloves.

After the gloves have been cleaned with petrol or benzine, and they are quite dry, place them on the hand and stroke firmly with a bone saltspoon, beginning at the finger tips and working down to the wrist. This smooths and polishes the kid, and the gloves keep clean much longer.

Mending the Gloves.

Use cotton thread for mending kid gloves, as silk thread will cut the kid. Do not use the over stitch, as it always shows so plainly. Take a stitch on one side of the seam and then a stitch on the opposite side, and draw them together. This keeps the regular seam intact and conceals the fact that the glove is mended.

To Keep Evening Gloves Clean.

To keep evening gloves clean in a street car or train draw a pair of loose white silk or lisle gloves over the kid. The outer gloves may be easily drawn off and slipped into muff or pocket.

Long Gloves, Cut Off.

Cut off the hand part of long gloves. The arm part is perfectly good. Take it to a glove factory, and have a short pair of gloves, that match in color, sewed on the arm part, or you can do it yourself, using a feather or embroidery stitch.

The onlookers. As they resumed their seats they were given a rousing three cheers and "tiger" by the brothers.

Wildes lodge, I. O. O. F., No. 21 has been in existence since March, 1875, 44 years of wonderful service. There were 18 original members, two of whom are living. These two charter members were present, John H. Stetson, P. G., and George Bowker, P. G., who could not but feel as he glanced over the 140 Odd Fellows present and quite a few resident Odd Fellows, that as they had builded they had also builded well.

J. Burton Reed, P. G. and John Barnes spoke feelingly of our boys and what Odd Fellowship means, and Charles Merritt, P. G., recited a poem he had written in the earlier days of lodge, which was enjoyed by all.

Other remarks followed and the resident members had many experiences, reminiscences and comparisons to make and showed how Odd Fellowship is enjoyed and practised in all parts of these good United States.

Mr. Leavitt, tenor soloist, with his pleasing voice and appropriate selections added much to the pleasure of the evening. And when "good nights" had been said, and all the lights were turned low, each one felt no moment had been wasted and that their time had been well spent.

HE GETS THE TRADE

The constant drop of water wears away the hardest stone
The constant know of Towser masticates the toughest bone
The constant wooing lover carries off the blushing maid
And the constant advertiser is the man that gets the trade.

Don't ever think that printer's ink is money to the bad,
To help you fail a role of ale there's nothing beats an ad.

You can't fool people always, they've been a long time born
And most folks know that man is slow who tooteth not his horn.

Three Months Sentence For Grave Desecrators

McKinley Huffines and Otis Serrite, sailors in the United States Navy, and attached to the training school at Hingham, were given sentences of three months in the House of Correction by Judge Albert E. Avery when he found them guilty of desecrating graves at the Old North cemetery, North Weymouth.

The two men were arrested by the naval authorities at the request of the Weymouth police. According to the testimony of the Weymouth police the men forced the door of the Dunbar family tomb, and while one stood on guard the other entered the tomb, broke open three coffins and scattered the contents on the floor of the tomb. The police claim the men were looking for jewelry.

The men in court admitted entering the tomb but denied forcing the door which they claim was open. They also denied breaking open coffins and scattering bones on the floor of the tomb. They told Judge Avery that they entered the tomb out of curiosity and did not look for jewelry.

A naval officer testified that the men had recently joined the navy and had no previous war record.

LADIES AUXILIARY MAKE PRESENTATION TO KING COVE BOAT CLUB

The Ladies Auxiliary of the King Cove Boat Club of North Weymouth held its annual gentlemen's night Saturday, Nov. 1, in G. A. R. hall at East Weymouth. Supper was served at 6.30 in the lower hall, covers being laid for 150 guests. Mrs. Hannah Abbott was chairman and had the following committee: Alice Horton, Agnes Abbott, Mary Flint, Edith Loud Sadle Miller, Lucy Miller, Gertrude Souther, Bertha Leach, Bertha Bailey and Kate Holbrook.

At the head table were seated: President Grace Walker and Mr. Walker; Lyman Pratt, president of Boat Club and Miss Dowling; Vice President Andrew McCulloch and Mrs. McCulloch; Lester Culley, the treasurer, John Wolfe, the secretary and Mrs. Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Turner, members of the orchestra and representatives of the press.

After the divine blessing by Mr. Turner, the guests made inroads on the bountifully laden tables—Escalloped oysters, baked beans, cold ham, salads, rolls, coffee, cake, ice cream and fruit made a most excellent supper.

The Hallowe'en decorations made the banquet hall gay, while the witch's caps worn by the waitresses and the Hallowe'en gown worn by the chairman, lent a festive air to the occasion.

After supper the banquet hall was cleared and the company enjoyed the musical program arranged by Mrs. Bailey given in the upper hall. The program included:

March—Piano and traps—Mrs. Bailey and Mr. Nash
Song—Milton Richmond
Song—Virginia Ash, with Ukelele accompaniment
Song—Mrs. Philbrook
Remarks by President Walker
Song—Milton Richmond
Song with Ukelele accompaniment, Virginia Ash
Song—Mrs. Philbrook
March—Mrs. Bailey and Mr. Nash

The speech of Mrs. Walker, responded to by Mr. Pratt of the Boat Club was very much to the point. The club has very much outgrown its present quarters at King Cove Beach and it is the sincere desire of each and every member of the Auxiliary, as well as the Boat Club, to erect a suitable club house. Land has already been purchased, and for the past year the ladies of the auxiliary have been scheming in every way to make money to help on the building proposition.

In a few well chosen words President Grace Walker made known the desire of the auxiliary and supplemented it by presenting to the men of the club a check for $300. to be used in making the foundation for the new building. A tiny set of tools including shovels, hoes, axes, hammers, etc., was also presented and a model of the new club house cleverly constructed by the ladies was shown.

President Pratt thanked the ladies on behalf of the club, and echoed their wish that the next gentlemen's night be held in their new club house. After the entertainment, dancing to the strains of Hutton's orchestra was enjoyed till a late hour.

NOLAN—McCAFFREY

Holy Family church at Rockland was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday evening, Nov. 5, when Miss Margaret Mary McCaffrey was married to Edward Francis Nolan of South Weymouth. The ceremony was performed at 5 by Rev. E. J. Fagin, pastor of the Holy Family church.

They were attended by Miss Alice McCaffrey, sister of the bride, as bridesmaid and William Nolan, brother of the groom, as best man. As the bridal party entered the church, Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Charles Morgan, followed by a soprano solo by Miss Agnes Donovan. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white georgette with pearl trimmings and a veil caught up with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of roses falling from a pearl prayer book. The bridesmaid was handsomely gowned in a beautiful dress of orchid georgette and charmeuse, with a beaded black picture hat, and carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served to immediate relatives at the bride's home on Union street, followed by a reception from 8 to 10 to a large circle of friends from Boston, Brockton, Weymouth, Abington and Rockland.

The home was very prettily decorated for the occasion with cut flowers and potted plants, the parlor being in pink and white and the dining room blue and white. The young couple received under a floral arch, assisted by the bridesmaid and best man.

The bride's gift to her maid was a pearl rosary and the groom presented the best man with gold cuff links.

During the evening piano solos were given by Charles Kelliher, Esther Parker and Lawrence Crowley, vocal solos by Agnes Donovan, Gertrude Kelliher and John Crowley, and selections by an orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Nolan were the recipients of many beautiful gifts of cut glass, silver and linen. They left late in the evening on a wedding trip to New York and Washington. The bride's traveling suit was of blue velvet with picture hat to match. On their return the young couple will take residence on Union street, South Weymouth.

Cutlery and Silverware

Is Yours Sufficient for the Thanksgiving Houseful?

The Carving Set—Does it fill your needs at the table and your pride?

The Silverware—Is there sufficient without the family using old and worn pieces?

We suggest that you look them over now. Good cutlery is not so expensive that you should allow your pride to suffer for a new up-to-date set. Mother should not be obliged to go out and wash forks when the pumpkin pie is ready. Perhaps the old set of silverware's worn. Get a few pieces now of a new up-to-date pattern and fill out the set as you wish.

Our stock is a most complete one and we would be pleased to show it, and if you wish, to help you make selections.

A Literal Sky Pilot.

The circuit rider and sky pilot of old are giving place to a modern and more literal sky pilot, who promises to take up their work and carry it on more widely than they could ever have hoped. Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart of Frankfort, Ky., chairman of the filitrac commission of her state, arrived in New York recently to purchase an airplane, which, she announced, would be the first of a fleet to carry on the work of the commission. There are many people in mountain fastnesses whom it has been impossible to reach even with automobiles or mules, she said; hence the airplanes, by which, it was thought, the whole territory in which the commission is interested could be covered in one-twentieth of the time now required.

Meteorites of Great Age.

Meteorites of indicated great age, are not found in museum collections, and it is suggested that such specimens may disintegrate and disappear from the rocks within a relatively short time after falling.

The British Museum, however, has acquired a slice weighing somewhat less than a pound from a meteoric iron that is believed to represent an ancient fall, says the Newark News. The slice is from one of two similar masses that were found in January, 1905, within a few miles of Dawson, Klondike, and that, from their position in the oldest gravels of the district, are thought to have rested there since the Pliocene age.

UNSHAKEN TESTIMONY

Time is the test of truth. And Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test in Weymouth. No Weymouth resident who suffers backache or annoying urinary ills can remain unconvinced by this twice-told testimony.

Doan's Kidney Pills have been a reliable kidney remedy for us. My mother had faith in them and I remember seeing them in the home when I was a girl in Belfast, Ireland.

(Statement given May 5, 1913)

On March 20, 1917 Mrs. Fryer said: "My faith in Doan's Kidney Pills is as strong today as ever. Doan's have never failed to give me wonderful relief."

"Your Feet must be RIGHT, Son"

So says Uncle Sam to all of America's young manhood:
The Tru-pedic Shoe is the very best answer to this nation-wide demand for better fitting footwear, because it is built upon new principles which INSURE proper fitting shoes.

What distinctly marks Tru-pedics from the others, is the fact they are made in three types on the same style toe—infant, straight and outlast. Science says "All normal feet are of one of three types and not of one standard type." This fact is now established after years of scientific research and study.

The Tru-pedic Shoe, in the right type for your foot, will prove to be one of the most attractive, as well as best fitting shoes, you ever had. Come in and try on all THREE types.

HOW WEYMOUTH OBSERVED HER 250 ANNIVERSARY

The following sentiment was then proposed:—"The County of Norfolk: though shorn of many of her fair proportions, she is still full of vigor and promise of length of days."

Hon. Nathaniel F. Safford, Chairman of the County Commissioners, made this response:—

Mr. President:—As was said in Europe that all roads lead to Rome, so, in our County of Norfolk, all thoughts and memories seem centering here, in old Weymouth, to-day. It is said that at Cintra, the native of whatever country recognizes some scenes of the father land. And so it is, when we gather on these oft-recurring anniversaries of the incorporation or settlement of these rural homes of the fathers of New England, whichsoever we revisit, we find the traditions of a kindred past, the associations of a common history, one single tongue, one language all can understand, that tells of the old town, the venerable meeting-house, the burial ground, the village school, the narrow lane, the rustic hedge or the "old oaken bucket that hangs in the well."

Though the date of the incorporation of the county may be within the fading memory of a remnant of living men, yet the ancient precincts of which the county is composed date their settlement among the earliest in the State. If I am right, Weymouth, 1624; Braintree, Wollaston, 1625; Dorchester (some portion of which has recently rejoined Suffolk), 1630; Dedham, 1635; which I believe embrace substantially the present territorial limits of the county, not forgetting Brookline, originally a part of Boston, and Cohasset, a part of the ancient Hingham.

How truly have these old precincts, in the varied vicissitudes of New England history, in stability of public judgment, in firm resolve and patriotic devotion, proved themselves worthy of their time-hallowed traditions.

For two hundred and fifty years, though oftentimes called to scenes of conflict, to defend their dwellings against the merciless savage in the bloody scenes of Indian warfare, in the French war, in the long and fearful agony of the Revolutionary struggle, in the second war of independence, till the last great conflict when the thunders of Gettysburg reverberated around the world, yet during all that period, no hostile cannon, engaged in military or civil strife among themselves, have ever traversed these quiet roads;—ever ready and valiant to defend their rights upon any other field, they have always united among themselves, to illustrate in their municipal and local history, the maxims which enjoin peace on earth and good-will to men.

Their first centennial found them still surrounded by circumstances of peril. On the frontiers were threatening of French and Indian wars; even before that period, it had been complained that the people took the oath of allegiance to the governor and not to the king. In the stern experience of colonial times, they stood unmoved in their opposition to the partisans of the crown, and in resistance to the lawless acts of provincial governors.

So, also, on a succeeding anniversary, one hundred years ago this day, were foreshadowed to them opening scenes of the Revolutionary struggle. One hundred years ago this day, the committee of fifty-one in New York determined that delegates be chosen to the general congress.

As I left my home this morning, I passed upon the right, in our town of Milton, the site of the old mansion of Hutchinson, which, in May, 1774, had become an uncomfortable residence for a royal governor, and at the declivity of the same Milton Hill, within the present limits of Norfolk, I looked upon another venerable mansion, the stars and stripes of the republic, unsevered, floating over it to-day, where were adopted the memorable Suffolk Resolves, of which county these precincts then formed a part.

Those resolves were the manifesto of the "County Congress" first held at Stoughton; then at Dedham, where sixty delegates represented every town in the county, notwithstanding the regulating Act of Parliament had prohibited town meetings; then by adjournment at Milton, on the 9th of September, 1774.

The resolves were reported by Gen. Joseph Warren, who, within one year after, fell a martyr at Bunker Hill. They were several times read, paragraph by paragraph, and unanimously adopted; and when, a few days later, they met the approval of the Continental Congress, just assembling at the Carpenter's Hall, Philadelphia, those resolves of duty and defiance made war inevitable and independence certain.

To that cause of popular liberty, the men of Weymouth were unwavering in their devotion. The communion of the colonies was, to them, a sacred communion. They were roused to action by the old drums that beat at Concord and rallied the troops to Bunker Hill. In after time, they were firm in their attachment and adherence to the constitution of the State, and in loyalty to the cause of the Union. Those eras of anxiety and peril are now overpast, and we have gathered on this auspicious anniversary, to renew our vows, to perpetuate, so far as in us lies, those blessings of civil and religious freedom which were acquired and achieved by the wisdom and valor of the fathers.

Remember what was said of the visit of a foreign prince to our shores; that he found here a nation of soldiers without an army; civil order without a police; wealth, luxury and culture without a court or an aristocracy; that he learned to mingle with the busy marts of men, without the intervention of chamberlains or courtiers; that he found respect without ceremony, and honor without adulation.

And thus, with each recurring anniversary, may there be fresh experiences that the Pilgrim spirit has not died—that it walks in noon's bright light—

"And it watches the bed of our martyr dead,
With the holy stars by night;
And it watches the bed of the brave who have bled,
And shall guard this wide spread shore,
Till the waves in the bay,
Where the Mayflower lay,
Shall foam and freeze no more."

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I was very weak, always tired, my back ached, and I felt sickly most of the time. I went to a doctor and he said I had nervous indigestion, which added to my weak condition kept me worrying most of the time—and he said if I could not stop that, I could not get well. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound my husband wanted me to try it. I took it for a week and felt a little better. I kept it up for three months, and I feel fine and can eat anything now without distress or nervousness."—Mrs. J. WORTHLINE, 2842 North Taylor St., Philadelphia, Pa.

The majority of mothers nowadays overdo, there are so many demands upon their time and strength; the result is invariably a weakened, run-down, nervous condition with headaches, back-ache, irritability and depression—and soon more serious ailments develop. It is at such periods in life that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will restore a normal healthy condition, as it did to Mrs. Worthline.

Courtesy is a rare gem, but may be had without price.

A Steam Shovelier

By R. RAY BAKER

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"There is no accounting for the tastes of some women when it comes to men," Glenquist observed, flicking the ashes from his cigar. "Maybe it's their intuition," he added, drawing his lungs full of smoke and exhaling through his nose.

The lawyer appeared more than usually loquacious this evening. He had a reputation for being rather taciturn when he was not in court, but with me he always threw off the cloak of reserve and chatted freely.

During our after-dinner chats, which always took place in his office on the seventh floor of the Boltwood building, we had decided the fate of bolshivism, solved the problem of H. C. L., settled the railroad ownership issue and thoroughly threshed out theosophy, spiritualism and new thought. Yes, we were congenial souls, were Glenquist and I.

As yet we had never discussed the most perplexing problem of the ages—love. Maybe it was because we were both confirmed bachelors and did not feel in a position to talk authoritatively on the question. However, the marriage of a mutual friend had brought the matter before us this evening, and casually I had inquired why Glenquist had never selected a lifelong companion.

"Suppose you tell your story," he suggested when I broached the subject. "Then I'll burden you with mine."

"I'll burden you with no story," I replied. "There's no story to it. I just naturally didn't take to the fair sex, or rather they didn't take to me. I guess it was mutual. Have you a story?"

For a moment he did not reply, and when he broke the silence it was to utter the words that opened this tale. "Furthermore," he went on, "it is strange that brains do not appear to be considered much of an asset to a man when he asks a woman to become his wife. At least that is the case with some women, and very good, bright and capable women, too, I mean. Perhaps, as I say, it is their intuition, or their ability to see far ahead."

In my case, perhaps, I deluded myself into thinking I had brains. Maybe I mistook my education for gray matter. Yes, there is a difference. A man may be fairly well educated and still lack an adequate amount of brains. On the other hand, without being conceded, it seems that I may claim to having at least a normal supply of thinking machinery. I am what you would call a successful criminal lawyer.

"I was terribly fond of Cassie Weldon six years ago. This was my home town, and also hers. We were classmates in high school, and when we were graduated I went to the university and she became a typist in a real estate office. During our last year in high school we had become very closely associated in social work and before we realized it were keeping steady company."

"When I was at college we corresponded regularly, and it seemed to me that she cared almost as much for me as I for her. I pictured her presiding in a nice little home when I got started on the road to success in my chosen profession, and although I did not broach the subject, I felt convinced she would see it that way. Perhaps I was somewhat egotistical, but really I do not believe it was that. To be sure, I was proud of the showing I was making in my studies and very hopeful of the future."

"Whenever I came home she professed to be happy over being with me, and I really believe she was. Our favorite pastime was walks in the woods with a camera, and I must confess that, deep down in a trunk, I still have a number of those snaps. Just for fun, I think I'll dig down and take a squint at them tomorrow."

"Things went on like this for some time, and I am sure that she did not keep company with any other particular fellow, although she occasionally went to dances and other entertainments with some male acquaintance who happened along and needed a partner for some special social event. This was only to be expected, seeing that we were not engaged and it not being natural for a young girl to stay at home and spend her evenings reading 'Robinson Crusoe' and 'Red Riding Hood.'"

"It finally dawned on me that I had better get busy. I was in the fourth year of my law course, but Cassie was growing more attractive each day, and as I was not home to look after my interests it behooved me to get an option on her hand."

"I had spent that summer working in an attorney's office in Clarksburg, and so had not seen Cassie any more during vacation than during the school term. It was in the fall, and I was home for a few days, when I felt that the opportune time had arrived."

"We were walking down one of the back streets on our way to the woods. A steam shovel was excavating for a skyscraper, and the noise seemed to give me nerve. 'Cassie,' I blurted out, 'don't you think that—er—it's about time we got—got—down to business and—well, become engaged?'"

"She was looking intently at the steam shovel. The thing appeared to fascinate her, with its chuggy-chug-chugging and its snorting as it strained at its base and seemed several times on the point of overturning itself, thrusting the huge shovel against the dirt wall and forcing it upward, gradually filling it, the tremendous, vibrating power of the machine winning against great resistance from the bank of dirt, as well as the law of gravitation.

"She watched the big crane swing the shovel round and dump its contents into a waiting wagon. Then the hoisting apparatus was again set at work on the bank of dirt and the process repeated. A lapse came with a break in the chain of wagons which carried the dirt away. Then Cassie turned to me."

"I knew this was coming—some time," she said, "and I dreaded the moment. Jim, I think a lot of you. You're very clever, but—there's one thing, a tremendous big thing, lacking in you. It's physical power, or the ability to control physical power. You may have a great mind, but you are puny physically. I admire strength, I admire power. If you were only like—like that steam shovel there, tearing away at the earth, crushing all resistance, I could be happy with you. Some day there'll be a mammoth building there where the machine is working."

"I can't help it, Jim, and probably it seems foolish to you; but I must tell you, no matter how it hurts, that if you were the engineer on that steam shovel you would stand a much better chance with me than you would as a lawyer. At least, you would be earning money with your strength, for the man that operates the shovel must be strong."

"I confess that little speech floored me. We started to walk away, but a wagon arrived, and the steam shovel started operations again, and Cassie had to watch it some more. I struggled, gulped and finally managed to say, weakly:

"Yes, and some day I'll have an office in that mammoth building."

"That was the last time I was ever with her. With mingled disgust, bitterness and sadness I went back to college and finished my course. I came home with my diploma and it was not long before I began to win success—success such as it is. I'm making good as a criminal lawyer. I'm winning victories right along in court, but when it comes to finances I admit I'm not overburdened. I have a few thousand in the bank and I'm making more every day, but I'll never be rich. Perhaps I would save more if I had an incentive—like that steam-shovel engineer has."

"You mean—" I broke in, my eyes popping with astonishment.

"Yes, I mean that Cassie somehow got acquainted with the engineer of the steam shovel and married him. She took that man, grimy and ignorant, who worked with his hands, instead of me, clean and educated, who worked with my brain."

Glenquist's cigar had gone out, and he rose and went across the room to a shelf where he kept matches. His cigar stand, at his elbow as he sat and talked, was never known to hold a match, although there was a place for a box of them. He took a few puffs and came back to the chair.

"Well, I made good on my boast that some day I would have an office in the skyscraper that was going up where the shovel was excavating," he observed.

He leaned back and looked dreamily into a nicotine cloud.

"It seems the engineer was rather clever in a way, at that," he continued. "At least he knew how to save coin, and somehow he managed to invest it advantageously."

He rose and went to the window, looking down on the traffic which slowly was being obliterated by gathering darkness.

"Come here," he said, and when I had obeyed, he pointed at a big yellow automobile just coming to a stop at the curb in front of the building.

"It's the owner of the building," he explained. "He usually collects my rent on this day of the month. He's coming at rather a late hour, but he's pretty sure he'll find me here."

We returned to our chairs, and Glenquist partook of a few puffs on his cigar.

"He'll be up here in minute," he said, "and I wish you'd observe him closely. He's the man I've been talking about—Cassie's husband."

Real Tobacco in Prussia.

Real tobacco, good tobacco, was once grown in more than one Prussian province, an exchange says. In Brandenburg, particularly, so much tobacco was cultivated that Frederick II felt called upon in 1776 to regulate matters. First the quantity was cut down, and later it was allowed to be grown only in districts in which agriculture did not flourish. In one year alone, 1781-2, 168,000 hundredweight was grown. In 1780 Frederick ordered a Berlin chemist, Achard, to experiment with the object of improving the quality of the tobacco. Attempts were made at Lichtenberg, near Berlin, to introduce Virginia tobacco, and Achard was given a handsome pension for life for his "services in improving tobacco cultivation."

Jade From Burma.

Practically all the jade now mined comes from Burma, though New Zealand is a producer of some note. China takes practically the entire output. In Burma the privilege of mining it has been held by the same Indian or Shan tribe for many generations. The method employed is the crudest. The Chinese prefer jade which is of a dark green color, free from all mottles, and jade of this grade is worth its weight in gold.

Etiquette of Walking.

When in the street, especially in daytime, a lady is not supposed to take a gentleman's arm, unless she is infirm or elderly, though she may properly do so at night. When walking with two ladies a gentleman may walk on the outside, or the inside, or, rather, the side from which he can best guard his companion or companions from obstacles or danger. It is not good form to take a lady's arm, unless to assist her in some way.

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be dependent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Adv.

SALESMANSHIP

By GRACE O. WEATHERBY.

(Copyright, 1919, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Betty did not heed the sunshine. She was seated on the rickety bench in the apple orchard, her favorite colie, Lieve, at her feet. Her usually sunny smile was missing. Betty was in dire trouble.

Suddenly the dog barked and dashed towards a figure in khaki that hobbled slowly toward them. Betty sprang to her feet, and followed at a speed that rivaled the dog's, and was soon in a pair of rather wobbly arms, the two clinging together silently. When speech was possible, Betty gasped. "Bob, we didn't expect you for another month! How does it happen that you are home so soon?"

"Well, sister mine, it was this way. We were booked to go at the time I wrote you, but unexpectedly we had the opportunity to get an earlier ship, and believe me—we took it! Nick and Dan are with me here. You don't mind, do you?"

"Bob," Betty drew her soldier brother down to the rickety bench. "Just to have you safely home again is all I care about. But who are Nick and Dan? I don't remember of hearing of them before."

"Oh, yes, I wrote you about them time and again. Just like you girls, never remember anything. Well, Nick and Dan and I were pals over there. We were in the same fights, hurt at the same time and in the same hospital, and as they both lived in cities, I invited them up here for a month or so to rest up and get fat before going back home. Mother says she is glad, and is feeding them on milk and chocolate cake this minute. Together they went to the house, and Betty was duly introduced to two tall young soldiers. Nick Parsons was very dark, his eyes and hair coal black and his skin rather swarthy. Betty liked him at once. Dan Scott was a refreshing contrast with his curly mop of red hair, and freckled face. For two weeks Betty forgot her troubles and was gloriously happy romping with the three young fellows, who speedily grew fat as their wounded bodies mended. One day Bob discovered his sister "in the dumps" as he expressed it. After a number of significant questions he prevailed upon her to explain.

"Well, Bobby, it is this way. You know I'm just crazy to get into business, and be a stenographer, and mother says I can't take a business course unless I find some way of earning the money for it. She doesn't like the idea, and says there is really no need for me to work but I'm going to, that's all! She said I could sell some of the farm truck if I liked, but I can't do it! People won't buy!"

"How do you go about it—selling it, I mean?" asked her brother.

"Why you know lots of farmers take their goods to the roadside and sell to the autoists that pass by. But somehow they won't stop for me!" Betty's voice ended in a wail.

Bob was very still for a minute, and then he asked her to show him the place where she sold from.

When they reached the farmhouse they found Nick and Dan both trying to tell Mrs. Dudley the same story of an adventure the two had in France, to the mingled amusement and bewilderment of that worthy lady. Into this peaceful group burst Bob and Betty.

He then explained how Betty had failed to sell her farm truck and unfolded his plan. The remainder of that day and all the next were busy ones for the four young people, but at length their task was done, and they were ready for the customers. By 9 o'clock the next day the autos began to stop at Betty's "store." The place was transformed. It was divided into three parts. Betty, in a crisp linen dress, had no cause for complaint as she sold basket after basket of ripe peaches and apples. Bob was seated before a long table on which was piled high "Golden Bantam Corn." Nick, as near Betty as possible, found himself very busy selling tomatoes, cucumbers and squashes. Dan was the banker and his money bags grew fatter and fatter as the day progressed. After a week Betty declared she had enough money to put her through a course in business college.

One night Nick and Betty walked down to the rickety bench in the apple orchard. Presently the young fellow asked seriously:

"Betty, what are you going to do with that money?"

"Do with it? Why, Nick Parsons, you know as well as I do what that money is to be used for. Education! Why, do you ask?"

"Well, I wouldn't use it that way if I were you."

"Why not?" Betty had risen and her eyes were dangerously bright.

"Well," drawled Nick, "I was thinking that money could buy a very nice little wedding dress!"

But Betty had waited for no more and ran swiftly down the orchard. Now Nick's legs and arms were O. K. and he made good use of both in the minutes that followed. "Betty, dear, listen to reason! I want you to—"

"Nick Parsons, you let me go! You know I can't—I'm going to work!" Betty was weakening and both knew it.

"Your mother doesn't want you to work, and Bob doesn't and I don't and so, won't you, Betty, please say yes!" Perhaps it was the moonlight, or maybe the scent of ripening apples, but anyway the money was used for a wedding gown after all!

GIRLS! DRAW A MOIST CLOTH THROUGH HAIR

Let "Danderine" save your hair and double its beauty

Oh, girls, such an abundance of thick, heavy, invigorated hair; a perfect mass of wavy, silky hair, glorious fluffy, bright and so easy to manage. Just moisten a cloth with a little "Danderine" and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this magically removes all dirt, excess oil and grease, but your hair is not left brittle, dry, stringy or faded, but charmingly soft, with glossy, golden gleams and tender lights. The youthful glints, tints and color are again in your hair.

"Danderine" is a tonic-beautifier. Besides doubling the beauty of the hair at once, it checks dandruff and stops falling hair. Get delightful Danderine for a few cents at any drug or toilet counter and use it as a dressing and invigorator as told on bottle.—Adv.

The Probable Period.

"How much longer," growled a guest, "are those old codgers over there in the corner going to continue to wrangle?"

"About an hour, prob'ly," replied the landlord of the Petunia tavern. "They are discussing the League of Nations, and they've got just as far as arguing yet. They have to fuss and yell and call names before they get it settled for today and start off madder than wet hens."—Kansas City Star.

INDIGESTION Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people—in fact about 9 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach.

There are other stomach disorders which also are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—belching, heartburn, bloating after eating, food repeating, sour, gassy stomach. There are many ailments which, while they do not cause much distress in the stomach itself, are nevertheless, traceable to an acid stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, cirrhosis of the liver, rheumatism, impoverished blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia and a long train of physical and mental miseries that keep the victims in miserable health year after year.

The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid stomach. A wonderful modern remedy, EATONIC now makes it easy to do this.

One of hundreds of thousands of grateful users of EATONIC writes: "I have been troubled with intestinal indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the gas and pain in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed."

We have thousands of letters telling of these marvelous benefits. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise.

Your druggist has EATONIC. Get a big 50c box from him today. He will refund your money if you are not satisfied.

CINCINNATI HAD MANY MANAGERS SINCE 1891

Charles Comiskey, president of the Chicago White Sox, was at one time manager of the Cincinnati Reds. He acted in that capacity from 1891 to 1894. He was originally a first baseman on the famous St. Louis Browns, four times pennant winner. The manager of the White Sox is William (Kid) Gleason.

Noted players who have managed the Reds since 1891 are:

- 1891-1894—Charles Comiskey, first base.
- 1895-1899—Wm. (Buck) Ewing, catcher.
- 1900—Bob Allen, shortstop.
- 1901—John (Bid) McPhee, second base.
- 1902-1905—Joe Kelley, outfielder.
- 1906-1907—Ned Hanlon, outfielder.
- 1908—John Ganzel, first base.

- 1913—Joe Tinker, shortstop.
- 1914-1915—Charles Herzog, shortstop.
- 1916-1918—Christy Mathewson, pitcher.
- 1919—Pat Moran, catcher.

CASEY RANKED HIGH ON GRID

Harvard Football Star Has Yet to Prove His Equality With Mahan, Declares Critic.

Football scribes of Boston and elsewhere are putting Eddie Casey of Harvard in the same class with Eddie Mahan. Well, Casey is good, there is no doubt about that, but it would be as well to hide the passing of November before placing him in the niche alongside one of the greatest, if not the greatest, backs of all time, says a writer in an exchange.

Casey, by the way, has already had his bloodied, metaphorically and literally. He participated in the Harvard-Yale 1916 game and in the first half got loose and ran through pretty much all the Yale team over a distance of some 50 yards for a touchdown. A Harvard man, however, was detected in the commission of a foul and the brilliant run went for naught. The pathetic part of it was that the run was not affected one way or the other by the foul. Then immediately after this hair-raising dash Casey was called upon to carry the ball again. That cooked him for the remainder of the game—that and Yale's dervish tackling.

CLAIMS WORLD'S RACE MARK

English Farmer Drives Mare Nine Miles in 28 Minutes, 12 Seconds, Breaking Record.

In driving his trotting mare Little Rice nine miles in 28 minutes, 12 seconds, at a meeting of the British National Trotting Horse Breeders' association, H. Smith, a gentleman farmer, claims the world's record for an amateur driver. The previous mark was 31 minutes 50 1-5 seconds.

THEN SICKING QUIT

Trying to earn a decision over Arthur Fletcher in a verbal tilt is one form of wasting one's time, as Eddie Sicking, former Giant youngster, now with the Phillies learned recently. In the course of the game between the Giants and Phillies in Philadelphia Eddie essayed "riding" Fletcher, but he came off second best.

"Hello, Old Man Fletcher," was Sicking's opening shot from the Phillies' dugout. "Are you still in there? I thought you were going to quit."

"Yes, I'm still here," countered Arthur. "But I haven't noticed your name in the box scores lately."

"Well," offered Sicking, after a moment, "you're getting mighty thin. Frisch and Baird have you worried, I guess."

"Maybe they have," was the reply. "But I didn't do any worrying when you were on our club."

There was no reply.

PITCHER JIM SCOTT HAS SIGNED WITH THE SEALS

"Death Valley" Jim Scott has accepted terms with the Seals for 1920, according to coast reports, thus setting at rest the reports that the big right-hander intends to retire from baseball. Manager Charley Graham believes Scott will be one of the league's leading pitchers next year.

BIG YEAR FOR ASSOCIATION

Turnstiles Show Paid Attendance Well Over 900,000 in President Hickey's Circuit.

This has been the most successful season in the history of the American association, with the turnstiles showing a paid attendance well over the 900,000 mark. So elated are President Thomas J. Hickey and his associates that they are talking of "next year," when many ambitious plans will be given a trial.

The principal reason for the elation of the A. A. moguls is that they kept their own counsel and decided to play 154 games, despite the advice of the timid majors and other minor circuits. As a result of their foresight in seeing that the national pastime was coming back strong after the war period, the association club owners were able to stage 14 more games than the bigger circuits, and the income therefrom was no small item.

Only two of the eight clubs in the association will show a deficit for the campaign, it is believed, and in neither case will the loss be unusual.

FOGGY?

If Bilious, Constipated or Headachy take "Cascarets."

Tomorrow the sun will shine for you. Everything will seem clear, rosy and bright. Your system is filled with liver and bowel poison which keeps your skin sallow, your stomach upset, your head foggy and aching. Your meals are turning into poison, gases and acids. You cannot feel right. Don't stay bilious or constipated. Feel splendid always by taking Cascarets occasionally. They act without griping or inconvenience. They never sicken you like Calomel, Salts, Oil or nasty, harsh pills. They cost so little too—Cascarets work while you sleep.—Adv.

For His Own Good.

"What became of Niblick who used to be in the ribbons and laces?" "We've transferred him to the hardware department," answered the manager. "He was getting too sentimental with some of our feminine patrons. If he's called to wait on a woman in the hardware department she'll probably be the kind who won't stand any foolishness."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

His Fear.

A gentleman of hitherto seemingly substantial intellect attended a burlesque show, and in the midst of the performance began first to mutter, then chatter, and presently to scream along in agonized tones. After he had been removed and a physician had ministered to him the sufferer explained:

"I feared I was losing my mind or my eyesight or both. I sat through fully half of the show, and did not see a trio composed of an impossible Jew adorned with a mangy beard and a spoon-shaped derby, an ostensible Irishman clad in pink neck whiskers and a young gent arrayed in the uniform of a naval officer."—Kansas City Star.

East Weymouth Special Aid.

Ten pounds of yarn was recently donated by the Special Aid in response to an appeal made through Mrs. Hawkes. The French family with whom her son Alton Hawkes had lived for several months had sent her such vivid pictures of the dire need of woolen garments in the devastated region that we wanted to help in even a small way.

Miss Georgia Cushing of 744 Broad street, has taken charge of the Red Cross knitting for the East Weymouth Special Aid. Children's stockings and sweaters are greatly needed by the refugee children of Europe. We have never yet failed to do our share for the Red Cross. Let us not put down our needles yet, for there are millions of almost naked bodies and feet among Europe's suffering children to be clothed. Layettes and children's garments may be had by anyone to sew at home, by applying to Mrs. Cornelius Lynch, Hillcrest road, or to the chairman. The call for workers may only last for a few months if all will help.

USEFUL WORK

The Old Glory unit, working under the direction of Mrs. Paul Dowd, have furnished funds to purchase a jig-saw for the use of convalescent sailors at the U. S. Naval hospital at Chelsea. Contributions of this kind enable those in touch with the hospital work to supply amusement and occupation to those who have been unfortunate, and who must have an opportunity to use and develop injured arms and limbs in order to bring them back to normal.

The KITCHEN CABINET

We scatter seeds with careless hand, And dream we ne'er shall see them more: But for a thousand years their fruit appears In weeds that mar the land, Or healthful store.

THINGS ALL COOKS SHOULD KNOW.

ALTHOUGH the trying of new recipes is a most fascinating entertainment for the lover of cookery, yet disappointment is sure to be our portion unless we know how to apply a few simple tests to every recipe before we risk wasting our precious foodstuffs.

Each kind of dish has some basic form. Knowing these, one may make innumerable variations. When one has reached this stage of knowledge, the taste and ingenuity of the cook will have a chance to develop.

In cake making we learn that there are but two kinds of cakes; those using some form of fat and those without, or sponge cakes.

In butter cakes the fat should be from one-third to one-half the quantity of sugar, depending upon the richness desired. Since the butter becomes liquid with heat we must take that into account when adding milk, water or coffee. The total amount of liquid should measure one-half the flour. The amount of baking powder is one level teaspoonful to a cupful of flour, this in using heavier flours like corn or rice flour should be increased to one and a half or two.

When a large number of whites of eggs are used, less flour is needed.

The following proportions are standard:

Use one-half as much liquid as flour for murrin and cake batters, remembering that fat is liquid as well as molasses.

One-third as much liquid as flour for soft doughs like biscuit.

One-fourth as much liquid as flour for stiff doughs like bread.

One-third as much butter as sugar for all butter cakes.

One to one and a half teaspoonfuls of baking powder for batters and doughs, increasing to two when heavy flour like rice or corn is used.

One-third as much shortening as flour for pastry.

One teaspoonful of soda to a pint of sour milk.

Weymouth Post Elects New Commander

At the election of officers held by Post 79, American Legion, the following were placed in office:
Post Commander, Thomas Coleman.
Vice Commander, Ambrose E. Monteth.
Adjutant, Pasquale Santacruce. (Re-elected)
Chaplain, Herbert Rockwood.
Historian, Charles W. Burton. (Re-elected)
Executive Committee for one year: Donald B. Francis, Basil Warren, George D. Gloster, Irving E. Johnson and J. J. Santry.
Executive Committee for two years: Russell Tufts, Carl O'Neil, Dr. Libby, Russell Riley and Arthur C. White.
The election of Thomas Coleman to the position of post commander was a surprise to many. Only recently discharged from the army he was unknown to a majority of the members. Just before balloting was to begin, Connie Condrick in a well worded speech presented a short history of Mr. Coleman's war record that swung most of the votes his way. Thomas Coleman enlisted before the Mexican trouble in the Quincy company of the National Guard. So popular was he that he was elected to a second lieutenantcy by the Quincy men. In a southern camp he was an instructor. Part of his duty was to impart military knowledge to other officers, many of them superior to him in rank. As a machine gun expert he performed valuable service in France. With his platoon he swam the River Meuse carrying machine guns. That platoon is said to be the only machine gun outfit to cross the Meuse. For that act he was decorated with the Croix De Guerre.
When the results of the balloting were read, Thomas McCarthy who was the other candidate for commander moved that Coleman's election be unanimous. The motion was passed.

Past Commander William A. Connell was not a candidate as his work keeps him away from Weymouth.
The Post is in receipt of a check for $50 from the North Weymouth branch of the Special Aid Society. A check for a like amount is being sent by the Weymouth Girls' War Camp Community Service.
Thanks to the efficient work of the membership committee, of which Herbert Rockwood is the hard working chairman, the Post now has 443 members. Mr. Rockwood hopes for 600 by January 1.
It was announced that $368.18 was cleared at the Welcome Home celebration. All returns from the Victory Ball have not been made but indications are that the Post will be over $200 to the good.
Thomas Terry who has been under treatment at a hospital ever since his return from France, was made a charter member. A relief committee was proposed to look up such cases as his and render what aid is possible.
Norman Walker, past financial secretary, was given a rising vote of thanks for services rendered in that capacity. That office is now temporarily held by V. P. Worledge who received a plurality but not a majority at the election. The office will be contested again at the next meeting, the first Monday in December.

Snow covered the ground yesterday morning and it looked wintry, while a strong westerly wind made it feel wintry. The snow remained all day.

House Damaged $2500 By Fire and Water

Yesterday morning, the coldest of the season, Box 21 called the firemen to the residence of George W. Perry at 48 Hillcrest road, at about 5.30. The firemen were late in getting to work effectively as several lengths of hose burst. Dense smoke drove the people from the house, but the fire damage was not heavy. The greatest loss was by water, as tons of water were poured into the house in trying to locate the fire. Fire was probably caused by electric wires, and the loss will amount to $2,500; covered by insurance. The East Weymouth truck broke down, and had to be towed home.

Enveloped in Smoke

Washington square was dense with smoke about 1.30 Wednesday afternoon from tar taking fire at the new block of L. F. Bates. Less than an hour previous a small stove had been set up in one of the new stores, and Mr. Bates had put a kettle of tar on the stove to heat. When he thought it was hot enough he started to carry the pail to the roof. But the bottom of the pail dropped out, and the tar took fire. Considerable tar was spilled on Mr. Bates' legs and feet, but fortunately he was not burned. In the rear of the building were a couple of loads of sand which proved more effective than water when shovelled upon the burning tar. Combination 3 responded with Chief Pratt and put out what little fire there was, there being little or no damage.

Norfolk Club Round-Up

Prominent citizens—members and prospective members of the Norfolk Club—gathered in large numbers at the Fogg Opera House last Friday evening for the annual "Round-Up" of the Norfolk Club.

Three long tables were set in the main hall. Among those attending were ex-Senator George L. Barnes, ex-Senator Kenneth Nash, Representative Burgess H. Spinney, Representative-elect Prince Tirrell, Assistant Registrar Thomas Nash, and others active in public life.

Prince Tirrell was the toastmaster. The principal speaker of the evening was Hon. Robert G. Washburn of Worcester, who was in the legislature for seven years, and told in a humorous way of life under the Gilded Dome. He gave some good wholesome advice to Weymouth's newly elected legislator.

On the menu for the evening were: Vermont turkey, live lobster, potato, onions, squash, turnip, frozen pudding, cake, and cigars.

Andrew McCarthy of Boston, sang popular solos, the club members coming in strong on every chorus under the direction of James W. Calderwood.

On the committee for the evening were President George Marshall, Elliot Veazie, Kenneth Brennan, Alfred Lord, John Poole, Wallace Lyons, Archie Blanchard, Frank E. Loud and George R. Seller.

For Odd Fellows

The Odd Fellows Opera House at East Weymouth was crowded for the occasion with Odd Fellows, Rebekahs and members of their families. The hall was very prettily decorated with American flags and red, white and blue.

Features of the program were tableaux of "Odd Fellows Welcome Home," "Red Cross" and "Rose of No Man's Land."

The opening overture by an orchestra was followed by invocation, Rev. Elbert W. Whipple of the First Universalist Church; address of welcome, Representative Burgess H. Spinney; address, Hon. Guy Ham of Boston; reading, Hoyt L. Conary of Waltham; address, Rev. Frank Kingdon of Methodist Church; singing led by the orchestra and Mr. Hanscom. A letter of regret was read from Gov. Calvin Coolidge.

Selections were sung by a quartette made up of W. R. Bunker, J. W. Gibbs, L. A. Hanscom and E. E. Cutler; an orchestra led by Arthur Fearling played concerted numbers; there was community singing and Hoyt A. Conary gave readings.

After the presentation and the singing of America, a lunch was served to all.

The committee for the evening included George H. Draper, Russell H. Knox and Walter E. Chessman.

STREET CARS VS JITNEYS

There are 13 articles in the warrant for the special town meeting, but all the interest centers about Article 2, to see if the town will contribute $400 for a continuance of the Pleasant street route of the Bay State system between East Weymouth and South Weymouth. The company has threatened to stop this service unless a contribution is made.

Another article calls for the acceptance of the so-called "Jitney Act," which will regulate and possibly eliminate the jitney service.
The committee for the town appropriation for street railways as a bad precedent. Friends of the street railway and friends of the jitneys are marshaling their forces.

The Appropriation Committee will report in the affirmative on most of the articles but are silent on the Jitney Act.

Please direct all mail for the Gazette or the Times to—"Gazette, Weymouth, Mass." No street address or box is necessary, and no name.

Mrs. Charles H. Daniels of Boston was elected president of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions of the Congregational church, Providence, which held its National convention there.

Dr. J. S. Norton of Shelburne, Vt. fined $48.20 in the Burlington court for not reporting four births. He is the first doctor in Vermont to be fined under the law which provides that the physician present at a birth shall report to the town clerk within 10 days.

Charged with masquerading in the uniform of a naval officer and passing worthless checks at Burlington, Montpelier and Wallingford, James Lewis Hurley of Bennington was arrested at Bridgeport, Ct. The arrest was made by the department of justice through G. C. Reeve of the Burlington office.

Eugene Brosseau, the middleweight champion of Canada, who appeared in a boxing match in Portland, is suffering from paralysis of the face and right arm, which, physicians say, is due to the condition of his blood. A consultation was held and it was announced that with proper treatment, Brosseau would recover.

The stockholders and directors of the Brockton Agricultural Society, which conducts the Brockton fair, met and re-elected President Fred P. Field and other present officers. Reports showed the gross receipts from this year's fair to be $173,610, of which $27,730 was profit. Next year the fair will be held Oct. 5-6-7-8.

"I can't dust that picture of Adm. Sims," said a domestic in the employ of Capt. and Mrs. Rufus Z. Johnson, Newport, R. I. The cook was immediately "fired." It developed that the interests from Ireland caused the outbreak. The refusal to dust the picture is said to be because of the attitude of Adm. Sims in his recent review of the Irish situation.

Seeking to enjoin the selectmen and the janitor of the Clinton, Mass. town hall from renting the town's $200,000 building for boxing bouts, the Rev. Dr. W. W. Jordan, the Rev. R. L. Clark, the Rev. James C. Duncan and seven other citizens brought a bill in equity in the superior court. The Wachusetts A. C. has for three months held boxing exhibitions in the hall every two weeks.

Tides and winds along the South Boston Strandway have cleaned one section of the beach of 44,000 cubic yards of fine sand placed there a year ago at an estimated cost of $26,400. Engineers in the public works department who have examined the beach report that most of the sand has either been washed out into the harbor or picked up by the wind and deposited at other sections of the beach.

Because all efforts to find a will made by the late James Pritchard, a retired groceryman of Burlington, Vt., who died the other day, have failed, the city of Burlington may get the property of the eccentric bachelor. His property is believed to be considerable. If the city gets the money, Pritchard leaving no known relatives of any kind, the fortune will probably be used for school purposes.

Warner R. Holt, who succeeded his father as paymaster of the Boston & Albany railroad when the latter retired after 43 years' service, has resigned. The son served the road 39 years. The Boston & Albany has had but two paymasters, Albert Holt and Warner R. Holt, father and son, in 1859, when the office was created and Albert Holt appointed, the first monthly payroll was $28,000. Now it is more than $1,000,000.

A preliminary injunction against the enforcement of war-time prohibition was granted by Judge Arthur L. Brown in the United States district court, Providence. The action was taken upon the petition of the Narragansett Brewing Company, which asked that U. S. Dist. Atty. Harvey A. Baker and Collector of Internal Revenue George F. O'Shaunnessy be restrained from interfering with the manufacture and sale of non-intoxicant malt beverages with not more than 4 percent alcohol content.

A letter received at the Boston Navy Yard from the bureau of supplies and accounts of the navy department stipulated that grape juice in small bottles was the only beverage which could be purchased for ships' stores. Violation of this order will be cause for disciplinary action. The bureau of navigation informs the navy yard that magnetic compasses will soon be issued containing a certain percentage of wood alcohol, and instructs commanding officers to warn men under them of the danger involved in drinking this spirit.

Marie—Did the new play make you cry?

Mayme—No, only during the dinner scene, when they put onions on the table.

Worse.
"That youngster of mine keeps interrupting me when I'm talking."

"You're lucky. My own year-old keeps interrupting me when I'm sleeping."

Overdoing It.

"What occasioned the sudden disappearance of Cascard Charley from Crimmon Gulch?"
"Too much safety first," responded Cactus Joe. "Just before the poker game started the boys caught him marking the deck."

She Was Optimistic.

"My dear," moaned the patient, as he tossed restlessly on his bed, "it's the doctor I'm thinking of. His bill will be terrible!"

"Never mind, Joseph," said his wife consolingly. "You know there's the insurance money."

Yes, Who?

"Here's a man who claims that a knowledge of Greek and Latin is necessary in order to write English correctly."

"But nowadays who considers it necessary to write English correctly?"—Life.

Natural Inclination.

"Why is it that a pretty girl would rather have silly compliments paid her than get bits of real solid information?"

"Because she doesn't care for anybody to give her a wrinkle or two."

APPROPRIATE.
"Do you wear an insignia in your golf-coat?"
"Yes. During the winter the moths laid out a complete 18-hole course on it."

The Locomotive.
The locomotive is content

It works without an argument—
Which is extremely fortunate.

"I see it is now proposed to have the word 'obey' stricken from the marriage ceremony."

"Yes, in the interests of economy! I've always held that insofar as that word was concerned the minister might just as well have saved his breath."

FOLLOWING UP A FABLE.

"Of course you remember the fable of the thrifty ant and the mendicant grasshopper?"

"Yes; the grasshopper, having sung all summer, was invited to dance."

"And then what happened?"

"Well, if the grasshopper was any good as a dancer, it ought to have made enough money to make the ant feel like small change."

Figuring the Chances.

"Tom," said his young wife, "I bought a ticket today for a piano that's going to be raffled off."

"Hm! How many chances are there?"

"A thousand. That's what decided me. Where there are so many chances as that one ought to stand a real good show, oughtn't one, dear?"

An Interest in the Business.

Old Pa Pscauds—I won't have you marrying a mere clerk. You tell that young man to keep away until he has an interest in his firm.

Myrtle Pscauds—Why, dad, he has that now. The manager told him he'd have to take some interest in his work or he'd lose his job and he's already done it.

Liberty's Foundation Stones

An Old Fashioned Thanksgiving Feast

Our rural ancestors, with little blent, Patient of labor when the end was rest, Indulged the day that heaved their annual grain, With feasts and offerings and a thankful strain.

The favorite way of celebrating Thanksgiving in New England was, of course, first with prayer and a sermon. In which the minister told his congregation the many things they had to be thankful for. The church was generally decorated with fruits and grains, and when the custom became national this was continued. The idea of the Thanksgiving dinner in New England was to have all of the fruits of the harvest, and turkey became the principal meat course because this bird was so plentiful and was caught in the wild state and prepared most appetizingly by the housewives.

Then there was pumpkin pie, and as cranberries grew in great quantities in New England states the sauce of that berry was a fitting addition to the turkey course. Plum cake, or, as it has come to be known, fruit cake, was a favorite for the Christmas holidays in England and was brought over with other dainties by the first of the settlers, and the recipes for making treasured by the housewives.

Meat pies, or, as we call them, mince pies, came later in the list of good things for Thanksgiving.

With the very earliest settlers the day was, indeed, a day of prayer, and little else besides, but later it became a feast day, as well, and it was a poor family, indeed, in New England that could not afford a turkey for Thanksgiving dinner.

Many Causes for Gratitude.

We have reason to be grateful for our abundant harvests, which suffice to feed us at home and empower us to give substantial aid to the starving war-wasted peoples abroad; to be humbly thankful for the wealth that enables us to succor those who have lost all that is so precious in our own eyes. In gratitude for our manifold national and personal blessings we all have occasion to "bless the Lord, and forget not all His benefits."

The breaking waves dashed high
On a stern and rock-bound coast,
And the woods against a stormy sky
Their giant branches tossed.

THIS famous poem comes to mind with each recurring Thanksgiving day, and carries us back to 1621 when the land was young and our pilgrim forbears were laying the first foundation stones of our great American republic. To them belongs the credit of having celebrated the first Thanksgiving day in New England, but not the first in North America. Historians remind us of the fact that in the year 1578 an English minister named Wollall conducted a Thanksgiving service on the shores of Newfoundland. The minister was with an expedition under Frobenius which brought the first English colony to settle on those shores.

It was in this pious spirit of gratitude that the Pilgrims on the "stern and rock-bound coast" of Plymouth "prayed God" in sincere gratitude for the way in which he had delivered them from all the dangers of the deep that the Mayflower had gone through. We of the luxurious plenty of our day would feel that we had little for which to be grateful if we had no more than the Pilgrims had on their first Thanksgiving day. Dangers known and unknown encompassed them round about, and their days were filled with hard labor, while their fare was of the plainest and the future was uncertain. But they had stout hearts in which hope ran high. Of the American Thanksgiving one historian says:

"The annual celebration, as we have it in its present form, is essentially of American conception. The settlers of Jamestown, the Dutch of New York, the Pilgrims of Plymouth, and the Puritans of Boston were in every respect devoutly religious people. They were cornerstones in the great temple of republican government on this side of the Atlantic. The first written constitution in all history was an American document, in that it was written in the cabin of the Mayflower on Saturday, Nov. 11, 1620, as that unique craft swung at her anchor in Provincetown harbor, the first six words being 'In the name of God, Amen.' This phrase laid the foundation stones of our western civilization. These men brought but little with them, but left much to posterity. If this were the only thing they left us, the American Thanksgiving day, their names would be immortalized. It gives joy to the humblest of peoples. On the following autumn there was held a 'grande thanksgiving.' The most condensed account of this 'grande thanksgiving' can be found in a letter written by Edward Winslow, sent to a friend in England, as follows: 'Our harvest being gotten in, our governor sent out four men on fowling, so that we might after a special manner rejoice together, after we had gathered the fruits of our labors. They killed as much fowl as with a little help beside served the company about one week. At which times among other recreations we exercised our army, many of the Indians coming amongst us, and among the rest of their greatest king, Massasoit, with some 90 men, whom for three days we entertained and feasted, and they went out and killed five deer, which they brought and bestowed on our governor and upon the captain and others.'"

The Thanksgiving Witch

THERE'S a witch in the kitchen
Who's baking and brewing,
And mixing and mending,
And sifting and stewing.
She is up to her elbows in raisins
And spices,
As she chops and she peels and she minces and slices.
Around her the fragrance of pumpkin pie hovers,
Each minute a new kind of dainty discovers.
As stirring and steeping, and basting and sieving,
My capable sweetheart prepares for Thanksgiving.

Of this witch in the kitchen has woven around me
A spell that in happy enchantment has bound me.
Compounded of fruit cake and cranberry jelly,
And dressing with onions deliciously smelly,
And turkey all crinkly and wrinkly and tender,
And celery, plum-topped, and spowgy and slender,
And her magic has made me determined to win her
To preside as my bride at my Thanksgiving dinner.
—MINNA IRVING.

Not Essentially American.

Our American Thanksgiving is usually considered our one native contribution to the holidays of nations, as its observance originated with the New England fathers. Perhaps the fathers themselves liked to think of it in this originative way and so wished it perpetuated—as something that had flowered on the bleak rock of their personal struggle. It was to be peculiarly their day, peculiarly a heroic New England day, an American day. So in a sense it is; so in a sense it is not. Many other nations have had such days of thankfulness.

For Past and Coming Mercies.

Thanksgiving is a season of appreciation for what has come to the country as well as for what it has escaped. On both counts the people of America have abundant reason on this day to express their gratitude in accordance with the national institution so wisely ordered long ago.

NEW PASTOR

Charles W. Allen, the new pastor of the Baptist church of Weymouth, was born in Lockhartville, N. S., educated at Acadia University, Wolfville, N. S., the Newton Theological Institution, Newton, and Currier School of Expression, Boston. Ordained at Newton Upper Falls.

He has held pastorates at Middleboro, Rockport, Milford, and Dedham, Mass. Entered Y. M. C. A. War Work August 14, 1918, and served as director of religious work in the United States Merchant Marine Base at East Boston until Sept. 20, 1919.

Appointed director of religious work at the naval receiving ship Hingham, Sept. 20, 1919. Accepted call to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church, Weymouth, Nov. 1. Expects to take up regular work at the church Dec. 1, and move family into the parsonage during the Christmas holidays.

QUINCY AVENUE BRIDGE

The first automobile went over the new Quincy avenue bridge Wednesday morning, but it was not on the program. The temporary bridge was closed to traffic on Monday, and while removing the drawbridge on Wednesday, William Brackett, one of the crew of the lighter, met with a serious accident. The windlass crankshaft became unmanageable and in flying round struck Mr. Brackett's leg, which was broken and severely lacerated. Dr. Mullen administered first aid, and the automobile of Harry L. White came over the bridge and took the man to the Massachusetts General Hospital. His home is in Boston.

Later in the day the Braintree steam road roller was at work on the approaches to the bridge and went over several times. The bridge will probably be opened for travel this week. There should be a celebration.

LET THE PAPER DO IT.

The other day several prominent citizens of Yazoo City were discussing a local situation and thought something should be done. After it was found that it was unpleasant, unprofitable and risky for any direct action to be taken by any individual or civic group, it was the consensus of opinion it was an opportune time for the newspaper to jump in with both feet and force the desired action.

There isn't anything strange about such proceedings as this, comments an exchange. There is hardly a week passes but the mail brings a letter to the editor from some one asking him to "jump on" somebody and nearly always the writer wants his own name kept secret.

If the newspaper were to do all that is asked of it by these people it would be a growling, snoring thing—and would accomplish nothing. The newspapers are ever ready to oppose wrongs, or fight for the right, to demand practical reforms, to praise the worthy and to blame the unworthy. But the truth is most of the demands that the paper "jump in with both feet and force action" are selfish propositions and are usually urged by the people who themselves are unwilling to do exactly what they request the newspaper to do.

SALE OF CIDER

The manufacture and sale of pure apple cider is permissible whether it is fermented or not, providing nothing has been added to increase its alcoholic content. This announcement was made by Acting Collector of Internal Revenue Andrew J. Casey, in response to many inquiries recently received by Internal Revenue officials about the use of cider for Thanksgiving.

HE GETS THE TRADE

The constant drop of water wears away the hardest stone
The constant know of Fowler masticates the toughest bone
The constant wooing lover carries off the blushing maid
And the constant advertiser is the man that gets the trade.

Don't ever think that printer's ink is money to the bad,
To help you jail a role of cable there's nothing beats an ad.
You can't fool people always, they've been a long time born
And most folks know that man is slow who tootheth not his horn.

Look at this Waffle Recipe

It's an exceptionally good one for making waffles, too.
1/2 pound of flour
1/2 teaspoonful of salt
2 eggs
1 pint of milk
2 ounces of butter
4 level teaspoonful of Ryzon

You can depend on the flour, the eggs, the butter and the salt always behaving in about the same way.

BUT the baking powder—that's another story.

If it's good, it means success—and a delicious breakfast. Everybody happy!

If it's poor stuff it will make a mess of things, perhaps cause a complete loss of the other ingredients and spoil the whole Sunday morning for the whole family.

That's why we wouldn't care to recommend a baking powder unless we knew all about it, unless we had tested it ourselves.

We do know RYZON and we urge you to try it because we know it will make you our friend.

It's always dependable; always of uniform high leavening power; always pure.

We also want you to get to know the RYZON Baking Book. Over a million of them are in use already in American homes. Ask us about it.

THE MONDAY CLUB

Again Masonic hall was filled to its capacity at the fourth meeting of the Monday Club on Monday afternoon, when the members of the Old Colony Club, South Weymouth, were guests.

The meeting opened with community singing, led by Mrs. Jennie B. Wopfer. The president, Mrs. Alice Pierce Jewell, presided, and gave the guests a most cordial welcome in behalf of the club.

Mrs. E. R. Sampson gave an interesting account of the State Federation meeting in Brockton last Thursday. A paper on Current Events was read by Miss Ina Leinonen.

The music of the afternoon was furnished by Mr. W. H. Smith and Mr. Vance O. Monroe, first and second tenors, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Bryant. Their solos and duets were greatly enjoyed and encores demanded.

The speaker of the afternoon, Rev. Frank Kingston of the M. E. church, was then introduced and held the closest attention of his audience throughout his remarks. His subject was "Some By-products of the War," which seemed particularly appropriate as we have just completed our first year since the signing of the armistice.

Mr. Kingston likened the World War to a gigantic destructive bonfire, which threatened to burn the whole world. He pointed out that there are, however, some things a bonfire cannot burn, and dwell most interestingly upon some discoveries we have made from the war, among these were: 1st, The value of the individual man. 2nd, Fundamental Brotherhood. 3rd, The discovery that there are other nations in the world. 4th, He made a plea for high ideals—individualism tempered with brotherhood—and true Americanization.

At the close of the program guests and members adjourned to the dining room where refreshments added to the social hour. Mrs. Abby Beals was hostess assisted by Mrs. Emerson Dizer, Mrs. Wilson Beane Mrs. Manuel Page and Mrs. Lena McGill who poured.

SONS OF VETERANS CREED

To be a true American and a good citizen.

To discountenance disloyalty in any form.

To revere the name of my ancestor who gave his service and made his sacrifices for the maintenance of the Republic.

To honor the memory of his comrades who served in the Union Army and Navy by a proper observance of Memorial Day.

To assist the Grand Army of the Republic and to perpetuate the patriotic teachings of that organization.

To be loyal to my Camp and the Order and faithful to my fellow members that we may work in brotherhood for these ends.

"I pledge allegiance to my Flag and to the Republic for which it stands. One nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all."

DECLARATION

SONS OF VETERANS

The Sons of Veterans, U. S. A., being the descendants of the Union soldiers and sailors of the Civil War, organized as a civic body for many years to perpetuate the memory of their fathers' service and sacrifices for the preservation of the Union, and to inculcate the principles of patriotism and love of country, do declare:

That the order will, to the limit of its power and influence, vigorously oppose all Bolshevik movements and tendencies, and all efforts that make for the destruction or impairment of our constitutional Union.

That we demand of all citizens one hundred per cent Americanism.

That we call upon Congress to provide necessary laws for the deportation of all unregenerate aliens, and those who do not in good faith seek to become citizens.

That we insist upon the energetic enforcement of these laws by the executive branch of the government.

That we believe that congress should forthwith cause to be made an extensive and exhaustive investigation of the causes of social unrest in all parts of the country, and having ascertained the causes, then to provide the remedies that will restore the peace and happiness of the whole people under unaltered American institutions.

To the accomplishment of the foregoing the Sons of Veterans, U. S. A., hereby pledge the unswerving and loyal efforts of their entire membership; and express their willingness to co-operate with all other patriotic organizations actuated by similar motives.

This order furthermore offers to the government the service of its nationwide organization with its influence in affiliated orders and social circles to distribute any propaganda of Americanism which may be authorized to combat all movements which would raise the red flag of anarchy, or which are treasonable or subversive of free democracy as handed down by the founders of this republic.

Adopted and promulgated by the thirty-eighth National encampment at Columbus, Ohio, September 11th, 1919.

"COME ON, REMORSE!"

"Come on, Remorse!" How well one remembers the cry in "Checkers," the famous racing play which held the stage so many years, played the country from end to end over and over again, and made millions for its owners. Remorse wins the rich stakes in the play, although unknown up to that time. Remorse, Checkers, Push Miller, Bert Barlow and the rest—they all come to life again in the mammoth William Fox film production of "Checkers," next Monday at Opera House, East Weymouth. Richard Stanton, who staged the picture, has taken advantage of the outdoor atmosphere to make one of the most spectacular pictures ever shown in this town.

Checkers is a reformed racetrack tout who falls in love with a Southern beauty. His adventure is beset with troubles, but he overcomes every obstacle.

POINTS TO REMEMBER WHEN PLANNING MEAL

Do Not Follow Heavy Meal With Heavy Dessert.

Sharp Contrasts in Texture Are Very Desirable in Many Instances—Prepare Same Food Materials in Various Ways.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Do not have too much heavy food at one meal. A heavy meal should not be followed by a heavy dessert, but rather by a light one and vice versa.

Do not repeat the same flavor in the same meal. Example: If you have tomato soup, do not have tomatoes served in any other way for that meal.

Courses, or at least dishes served at the same meal, should contrast with one another; a bland one, then a more highly flavored one; a hot one, then a cold one; a liquid one, then a solid one. For example: a hot main course should be followed by a fresh, crisp salad or a cold dessert; a highly flavored soup or bouillon might be followed by a creamed dish of some kind, or a bland meat, such as veal with peas.

Many times sharp contrasts in texture are very desirable—ice cream and cake, tea and wafers, cheese and crackers, cranberry or acid fruit with fowl, apples with pork, apples with beef, peas or mint with lamb, gooseberries with fowl.

Do not repeat too often the same food prepared in the same way. For instance, do not have mashed potatoes every day. Prepare them in some other way the second day, and so on.

PLENTY OF MILK IS BEST FOR CHILDREN

Will Counteract Host of Errors in Their Raising.

Many Milk Stations Have Been Established in Poorer Sections of Various Cities—Service Appreciated by Parents.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Plenty of milk for a child will counteract a host of other errors in his raising. Many a little Tony or Marie in this country has parents who believe baths, even Saturday night ones, are superfluous to their offspring. Fried peppers, coffee and other indigestibles are often given these youngsters before they have teeth. But in spite of dirt and unsuitable food, if they are given plenty of clean sweet milk most of them will live and thrive, authorities now agree.

That all children may have this necessary food milk stations have been established in the poorer sections of many cities. In these stations clean milk may be had at a lower price than the milkman can deliver it to the home. The increased amount sold at these stations is good proof that their services are appreciated by the people living near them.

In a Hartford (Conn.) milk station, when it was first established, one year ago, 30 quarts a day was the average sale. This year the average daily amount bought over its counters is 235 quarts. This station is in an Italian section where a health survey last year showed 20 per cent of the children in fair health, 10 per cent at a standstill, and 70 per cent undernourished. A survey this year showed 70 per cent of these children in fair health, 10 per cent at a standstill, and 20 per cent undernourished. The Hartford health authorities credit the marked improvement to the milk station there.

It provides plenty of milk at a reasonable price and also educates the people to its value as a food for children. Some educational work is done by means of posters. Lectures and demonstrations on use of milk are also given by the home demonstration agent supervised by the United States department of agriculture and the state college.

WATER WILL INCREASE BULK

Does Not Add Value to Cereal Dishes in Cooking—Amount of Nourishment Is Same.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The waters added to cereal foods during cooking increase the bulk of the finished dish, but not its food value. One cupful of oatmeal may make four cupfuls of porridge, but the four would yield no more nourishment than was found in the original cupful of meal. In the same way three cupfuls of flour have about the same food value as the pound loaf of bread into which it may be made.

Facial Expression.

The frequent repetition of any facial expression causes permanent alterations in the expression, and these correspond with, and suggest to the beholder, the emotional state that has predominated; so that the man who is always laughing comes to look "a jolly man," the thinker a thoughtful man, and the woman who worries begins to wear a worried look that persists.—Darwin.

SPICED VINEGAR IS USEFUL

Excellent for Making Pickles and for Flavoring Various Dishes—Use Herbs as Garnish.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Spiced vinegar is used in making pickles, for flavoring gravies, potato salad and similar dishes. For pickling it is especially valuable, as the flavor from spiced vinegar is the same all through the pickles, while if pepper, cloves and dill are added directly to the pickles the flavor is more concentrated at the places where these spices are put. The herbs from which the spiced vinegar is made may be used as a garnish by mixing them in the pickle.

An excellent spiced vinegar is made by filling a wide-mouthed bottle or a fruit jar to within two inches of the top with spiced plants of different kinds, such as slices of horse radish and onions, umbels of dill, ripe seed of white mustard and celery, green seed of nasturtiums, fine stems and leaves of tarragon, basil and sweet marjoram. A pod of red pepper may also be added. The bottle or jar is then filled with vinegar, heated to 160 degrees F., corked or sealed and left for about three weeks. At the end of the three weeks, strain the vinegar and fill in small bottles. Cork and seal with melted paraffin or sealing wax.

SIMPLE TO WASH CORDUROY

Souse Garment Up and Down in Soapy Water and When Dripping Wet Hang to Dry.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Corduroy is a kind of cotton velvet which may be washed providing it is not rubbed, squeezed, or ironed. If it is made up at home, stitch the seams with a loose stitch to prevent puckering when washed. Before laundering babies' coats or other lined garments loosen the lining at the bottom to avoid bagging. Use a solution of mild soap, or for dark colors which may streak or fade a solution of soap bark. Souse the garment up and down in a soapy water, changing the water as it becomes soiled. Rinse in several clear waters until no more dirt and soap come out. Hang the garment up dripping wet and so that it will dry in the shape in which it is worn. Dry in the wind if possible. When dry brush briskly to raise the nap.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Olive oil is a good dressing for patent leather.

Olive oil rubbed into the scalp is an excellent hair tonic.

Eggplant, like all insipid dishes, requires very careful seasoning.

Lemon juice is excellent for cleaning glass, brass and silverware.

Mustard poultices will not blister if mixed with the white of an egg.

SOY BEAN FLOUR MAKES SPLENDID BREAD, BISCUIT, MUFFINS AND GRIDDLE CAKES

WHITE BREAD
Protein Content About 8.7 Per Cent

SOY BEAN BREAD
25 Per Cent Soy Bean Meal
75 Per Cent White Flour
Protein Content About 13.8 Per Cent

Its High Proportion of Protein Makes Soy Bean Bread "High Powered."

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The soy bean, long and favorably known in the Orient, is now becoming a common foodstuff in the United States. This bean, unlike ordinary beans, contains much oil and no starch. To make the flour, the oil is pressed out of the beans and the resulting pressed cake can then be readily ground into meal. This meal or flour possesses a higher nutritive value than does wheat flour and more fat—in fact, so much fat that no extra shortening is needed when it is used.

The following recipes for the use of soy bean meal have been tested by home economics workers in the United States department of agriculture.

Biscuits.
1 cup soy-bean flour, ½ teaspoon salt.
1 cup wheat flour, ½ to 2-3 cup water.
4 teaspoons baking powder. Bake 15 minutes.

Biscuits made with any wheat-flour substitutes are better if rolled slightly thicker than those made from all wheat flour.

Muffins.
Very good muffins can be made by using half soy-bean flour and the rest mashed potatoes.

1 cup soy-bean flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder.

WHAT IS LEMON PIE FILLING

Should Contain Lemon Oil or Rind, Lemon Juice and Either Yolk or Whole Eggs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Are you exactly certain what the dealer ought to give you when you call for lemon pie filling, or what the manufacturer ought to give the dealer when he orders the same? Here is an official opinion, just pronounced through the bureau of chemistry, which is charged with the enforcement of the pure food and drugs law: "The bureau is of the opinion that lemon pie filling should contain lemon oil or rind, lemon juice, and either the yolks of whole eggs, and that the use of artificial color in such products conceals inferiority and is done for the purpose of simulating lemon pie fillings which contain lemon oil, rind, and juice, and either yolks or whole eggs.

OF INTEREST to the HOUSEWIFE

Vinegar and water will remove the taint from meat.

Dry mustard rubbed on the hands removes all smell of fish.

A stiff vegetable brush will remove the skins of new potatoes.

Cayenne pepper should be used sparingly, as it affects the liver.

Appetizers in the form of sardines are excellent luncheon dishes.

A teaspoonful of salad oil will stop a throat tickling cough at night.

ADVERTISE IN THIS PAPER!

IN THE QUEST OF COATS

In the quest of midwinter coats, we find that salespeople quote, with mad-dening calmness, prices that seem outrageously high. There is a "take it or leave it" finality about them; no one knows better than they, that good-looking wool coats, fur trimmed, are as high as the Himalayas, and good fur coats landed far out of reach of the average purse. But in midwinter we must have cold-weather coats, and we all want one that looks well in something like proportion to the money it costs. Let me introduce to you two coats that belong to a class as rich looking as possible and as good as gold, without being in the class of millionaire luxuries. They are pictured above and are fur-trimmed models made of fur fabrics.

In the matter of imitating natural furs the looms have achieved such a triumph that it takes painstaking scrutiny to tell which is which, at a little distance from the eye. Excellent fur fabrics have outclassed cheap furs for some time. In point of beauty and they excel nearly all furs in durability. Their wearing qualities are amazing. The two coats pictured are made of fur fabrics that imitate natural furs—sealskin and caracul. It will be seen that they are finished with rich, natural skins in collars and cuffs and that they are not outclassed by their trimmings. These coats are not to be classed as inexpensive except by comparison with similar coats of fur, but they look the part of the fur coat at a far less investment of money.

The three-quarter length model at the left of the picture, is cleverly designed with front-pieces extended into sash ends that terminate in silk tassels. It is full at the sides achieving the widened hip in the silhouette which fashion authorities have sponsored. The magnificent collar in a shape characteristic of the season, is of real beaver. The coat at the right is of that fur fabric that looks like the best caracul and is made in the chic Russian blouse style with collar and cuffs of kolinsky fur. Two very handsome shell buttons, heavy and substantial, look equal to their task of fastening this splendid wrap and a panel at the front supports a remarkably effective silk fringe. This finishing touch and the flare of the sleeves, betray the keenness of the designer of the coat, who seized upon these two features in the season's styles and placed them where they appear at their best. One might think that they were invented for this particular garment, they fit in with it so well.

Children's Parties.
Along with Thanksgiving and the holidays come children's parties. The youngsters are entitled to good times during their vacations and it takes only a small effort and outlay to make a party for the little folks a brilliant success. Instead of the florist one may patronize the paper department in the shops for decorations, and for favors there are the little toys, birds, animals, dolls, etc., that delight the guests and cost next to nothing. Pasteboard and tissue paper will do marvelous things for the children's party.

Mother Goose stories furnish a fund of suggestions that delight the small people who are familiar with them. "Goldilocks and the Three Bears" may give a party, for instance, with three children dressed up to represent the bears. Little home-made "Teddy bears for favors, and candy bears on the cake will make the party memorable. "Red Riding Hood and Wolf" could give a party and in a basket of red apples, each apple hollowed out a little, tiny toys or trinkets will surprise the guests. Mr. Squirrel, at his party, will have English walnuts, each containing something unexpected, and a cake that is covered and filled with nuts. Center pieces for the table will suggest themselves to the grown-ups.

Home made candies are best for little people. Butter scotch, fudge, peanut brittle and glace nuts and fruits make up a heavenly and harmless collection of these. Following are recipes for making them:

Butter scotch: Boil one and one-half pounds sugar, three-fourths cupful of water and one teaspoonful of dark molasses, until it hardens when dropped in cold water, add butter the size of an egg and a saltspoonful of salt. Stir very little and pour on greased baking sheet. Mark in squares while still warm.

Fudge: Three cupfuls white sugar, one cupful karo sirup, one cupful boiling water. Boil until brittle when tried in cold water. Let stand for a few moments after taking from the stove and then stir in the beaten whites of three eggs.

Peanut Brittle: Melt one and one-half pounds of sugar (without water) in a heavy kettle, stirring continuously. When thoroughly melted stir in one pound raw Spanish peanuts. When peanuts begin to brown, remove from the fire. Add butter the size of a walnut and a level teaspoonful of salt; stir and spread out on buttered tins.

Glaze Nuts and Fruits: Put two pounds of granulated sugar in a kettle, add one-half pint water, one-fourth teaspoonful cream of tartar. Stir until thoroughly dissolved. Place on fire and cook until very brittle, when tried in cold water. Remove from fire and drop in meat nuts and small fruits, a few at a time. Remove with a bent wire and place on oiled slabs.

BETTER CALL UP TODAY

SOME PEOPLE think ADVERTISING is simply SPENDING MONEY BUT THE wise man knows IT'S THE surest way to make more THE ONLY problem is WHAT MEDIUM to use.

CIRCULARS and hand-bills COST A LOT of money BUT YOU give them away SO NOBODY wants them ON THEIR front porches NOR IN their morning mail. THE SUBSCRIBER PAYS REAL money FOR HIS newspaper AND THAT'S why he values it MORE HIGHLY THAN A circular.

HE BRINGS his paper home SO THAT every member OF THE family CAN READ and enjoy its BREEZY, up-to-the-minute news AND PROFIT by heeding THE HOME-TOWN merchants' BID for their trade.

AND THAT'S a good reason FOR ADVERTISING IN A newspaper. AND NOT only that BUT

THE MERCHANT using hand-bills AND CIRCULARS hopes FOR TEN readers TO THE hundred bills, IF WILLIE delivers the 100.

WHEREAS the newspaper advertiser IS SURE of at least FIVE READERS to EVERY COPY of the paper AND THEY all read and heed HIS ADS.

AND THAT'S why he LOOKS pleasant AND GROWS fat in the BANK ACCOUNT. BETTER CALL up today AND HAVE our ADVERTISING MANAGER EXPLAIN.

GOOD PLACE TO WORK GOOD PLACE TO TRADE

Reference has already been made in these columns to the fact that Andrew Cully of 17 Pratt Avenue, North Weymouth, had been retired on full pay by the furniture firm of W. G. Shaw of Quincy, but the unusual kindness of the firm has attracted State wide publicity, and the Gazette is pleased to print the following from the Boston Sunday Globe:

W. G. Shaw, a furniture dealer of Quincy for the past quarter century, has gained a high reputation by the simple act of telling one of his employees that he might go home and stay there all the time, except every Saturday, when he must call at the cashier's window and draw his regular pay, without work of any kind, for the rest of his life.

The employee is Andrew Cully, a benign, twinkling-eyed, gray-bearded old gentleman, who looks and acts at 75 years of age as if his further span of life might be at least 25 years. To pay a man a good rate of wages for no work for perhaps a quarter of a century has no terrors for Mr. Shaw.

"Why shouldn't I do it?" he asks. This man is one of the best workers I ever had, and he is so honest and conscientious that when I have gone out of the city he has not only always done the work left for him, but has hunted about until he found something needful to do to keep busy until I returned.

"He has worked for our concern for 30 years, was always on the job, has done the best sort of work, is always unfailingly smiling and cheerful and, no matter how rushed he has been, has always been up to the mark and has never disappointed me in any way. Now what better reward could an employer give such a workman than to pay him his regular wages for the rest of his life and let him have a long and well-earned rest?"

Mr. Cully lives with his wife in a cozy little house, which he owns, in North Weymouth, and plans to retire to his home and do many odd jobs about the place which, he says, it has long needed. One could never think of such a man as Mr. Cully being idle, and the little place on the little seaside lane, bordered by shading trees, will doubtless be much improved when the efficient workman gets time to do the necessary repairing.

"You have no idea what a load the act of Mr. Shaw took off my mind. The future of my wife and myself had occasioned me a great deal of worry," says Mr. Cully, but now I feel just as easy in my mind as when I was a young boy. I shall do a lot of repairing about the house and then I shall have time to go sailing. That is my fad. I love to row or sail or spend time in a boat and up to a couple of years ago I always owned a boat. I love fishing, too, and shall use my brother's boat a great deal, I guess, in fishing.

"I cannot say too much in favor of Mr. Shaw. He is one of the best men who ever lived and I am so thankful to him for his act that I can never repay him. He came to me one day, knowing that I wished to retire and stay at home, and said that he and his son had talked the matter over and would let me retire, providing that I would accept full pay, just the same as if working, for the rest of my life. He said he could never find a man to do as well as I had, but would get some one to take my place in a few days. There are not many employers who would do as he has done.

"I told Mr. Shaw I would be satisfied with half pay, but he insisted that I have it all. He has made it possible for me to have a happy old age, for the pay will remove all worries from my shoulders. I own the house, having bought it from the other children of my father and mother. The old people built the house and left it to us children. I went to work for Mr. Guy, who owned this business, in 1890, and have worked up to now steadily. Mr. Shaw married the daughter of Mr. Guy and continued the business under his own name after Mr. Guy died.

"I came to this country from Wiltshire, Eng, when I was 12 years old. My older brother and father were here then. I had worked for three years before that in the old country as a boy, making fiber cocoanut matting. I came to Lowell first and went to school there for two years. Then I came to Weymouth and worked with my father and brother at shoemaking. In 1866 I quit shoemaking and started to learn the upholsterer's trade. I was about 21 then.

"I worked for Samuel Graves at upholstering in Boston and later in Weymouth for 12 years. Then I was in business in Fitchburg for about two years. My brother was Mayor of Fitchburg for several terms, 20 years ago. His name was Eli Cully. I went to work for Mr. Guy here in Quincy in 1890."

Mr. Cully speaks with every indication that he has read and studied for years, despite his hard and formerly long hours of work. A man with little chance for schooling, he has improved his mind, so that now he talks and thinks more like a Harvard professor than like a man who has always worked at a trade. He has a thick head of hair, a gray beard and rosy cheeks that would do credit to a boy. Very polite and courteous, he is the very epitome of a gentleman of the old school.

New Fish, Too.

Lord Londonderry, who narrowly escaped being killed in an airplane accident recently, is fond of telling the story of a smart lad whom one of his keepers caught one day fishing in his private waters.

"You mustn't fish here," he was told; "these waters belong to Lord Londonderry."

"Do they?" said the boy. "I didn't know that." And promptly laying aside his rod he took up a book and commenced reading.

The keeper therefore departed, but returning the same way about an hour or so afterward he found that he had started fishing again.

"Didn't I tell you that this water belonged to Lord Londonderry?" he shouted.

"Why, you told me that an hour ago," retorted the youngster. "Surely the whole river don't belong to him; his share went by long ago."

Instrument Locates Buried Gold.
After several years of experiments, O. L. Gee, a former Portland fireman, perfected what he says is an instrument that will locate buried treasure. It is on the principle of a compass and the owner says he has located several small caches of gold near Portland.

After reading the story of the buried treasure supposed to have been cached on Neah-kah-nit Mountain years ago by pirates, Lee left Portland, accompanied by his brother Robert, in 1916. They searched for the wealth until their machine located a spot near where the treasure was supposed to repose. They immediately sunk a shaft ninety feet deep, but did not locate the gold.

They have spent several months each year digging for the treasure. Recently they narrowly escaped death when a shaft caved in.—Portland Oregonian.

It was about the middle of the following afternoon when the Adventurer poked her blunt nose around a point of land, and came into full view of the squalid hamlet of Yellow Banks. A half-hour later we lay snuggled up against the shore, holding position amid several other boats made fast to stout trees, busily unloading, and their broad gangplanks stretching from forward deck to bank. The roustabouts began unloading cargo at once, a steady stream of men, black and white, burdened with whatever load they could snatch up, moving on an endless run across the stiff plank, and up the low bank to the drier summit. It chanced to be my good fortune to escape this labor, having been detailed by Mapes to drag boxes, bales and barrels forward to where the hurrying bearers could grasp them more readily. This brought me close to the forward stairs, down which the departing passengers trooped, threading their insecure way among the trotting laborers, in an effort to get ashore.

Reynolds' troops, all militia, and the greater part of them mounted, were an extremely sorry-looking lot—sturdy enough physically, of the pioneer type, but bearing little soldierly appearance, and utterly ignorant of discipline. The men had chosen officers from out their own ranks by popular election, and these exercised their authority very largely through physical prowess.

We had an excellent illustration of this soon after tying up at the landing. A tall, lank, ungainly officer, with a face so distinctly homely as to instantly attract my attention, led his company of men up the river bank, and ordered them to transport the pile of commissary stores from where they had been promiscuously thrown to a drier spot farther back. The officer was a captain, to judge from certain stripes of red cloth sewed on the shoulders of his brown jean blouse, but his men were far from prompt in obeying his command, evidently having no taste for the job. One among them, apparently their ringleader in incipient mutiny, an upstanding bully with the jaw of a prize fighter, took it upon himself openly to defy the officer, exclaiming profanely that he'd be d—d if he ever enlisted to do nigger work. The others laughed, and joined in the revolt, until the captain unceremoniously flung off his blouse, thus divesting himself of every vestige of rank, and proceeded to enforce his authority. It was a battle royal, the soldiers crowding eagerly about, and yelling encouragement impartially first to one combatant, and then another.

"Kick him in the ribs, Sam!"

"Now, Abe, you've got him—crack the d—n cuss' neck."

"By golly! that's the way we do it in ol' Salem."

"He's got yer now, Jenkins, he's got yer now—good boy, Abe."

Exactly what occurred I could not see, but when the circle of wildly excited men finally broke apart, the big rebel was lying flat on his back in the yellow mud, and the late officer was indicating every inclination to press him down out of sight.

"Hav yer hed 'nough, Sam Jenkins?" he questioned breathlessly.

"Then, blame ye, say so."

"Ah right, Abe—yer've bested me this time."

"Will yer tote them passels?"

The discomfited Jenkins, one of

"I'm Abe Lincoln of Salem, Illinois, an' I ain't got but one job right now."

whose eyes was closed, and full of clay, attempted a sickly grin.

"H—I yes," he admitted, "I'd sure admire ter dew it."

The conqueror released his grip, and stood up, revealing his full height, and reaching out for the discarded blouse, quietly slipped it on. One of the Adventurer's passengers, an officer in uniform, going ashore, another tall, spare man, had halted on the gangplank to watch the contest. Now he stepped forward to greet the victor, with smiling eyes and outstretched hand.

"Not so badly done, captain," he said cordially. "I am Lieut. Jefferson Davis of General Atcheson's staff, and may have a good word to say regarding yer efficiency some time."

The other wiped his clay-bespattered fingers on his dingy jean pants, and gripped the offered hand.

"Thank ye, sir," he answered good humoredly. "I'm Abe Lincoln of Salem, Illinois, an' I ain't got but just one job right now—that's ter make them boys tote this stuff, an' I reckon they're goin' ter do it."

With the exchange of another word or two they parted, and not until thirty years later did I realize what that chance meeting meant, there in the clay mud of Yellow Banks, at the edge of the Indian wilderness, when Abraham Lincoln of Illinois and Jefferson Davis of Mississippi stood in comradeship with clasped hands.

We had unloaded perhaps a quarter of our supplies, when an officer suddenly appeared over the crest of the bank and hailed the captain. There was a tone of authority in his voice which caused us to knock off work and listen.

"Is Captain Corcoran there? I bring orders from headquarters. You are to discontinue unloading, captain, retain the remainder of the provisions on board and prepare at once to take on men."

"Take on men? We are not to return south, then?"

"No; you're going in the other direction—up the Rock. You better get busy."

He wheeled his horse and disappeared, leaving the angry captain venting his displeasure on the vacant air. Kirby, evidently from some position across the deck, broke in with a sharp question.

"What is that, Corcoran? Did the fellow say you were not going back to St. Louis?"

"That's just what he said. We've got to nose our way up Rock river, with a lot of those measly soldiers aboard. Here you, Mapes, stop that unloading, and get steam up—we've got to put in a night of it."

"But," insisted Kirby in disgust, "I'm not going up there; aren't there any boats going down?"

"How the h— should I know? Go ashore and find out—you haven't anything else to do."

The men below knocked off work willingly enough and, taking advantage of the confusion on board, I endeavored to creep up the stairs and gain a view of the upper deck. But both Mapes and the second mate made this attempt impossible, forcing me into the ranks of the others and compelling me to restow the cargo. So far as I could perceive, no attempt to depart was made by anyone, excepting a few fellow with a red mustache, who swore profanely as he struggled through the mud, dragging a huge valise.

The situation puzzled and confused me. What choice would Kirby and the deputy make? If once up Rock river the Adventurer might very likely not return for weeks, and it did not seem to me possible that the impatient gambler would consent to such a delay. Every advance northward brought with it a new danger of exposure. These were Illinois troops to be transported—not regulars, but militia, gathered from a hundred hamlets—and many among them would be open enemies of slavery. Let such men as these, rough with the pioneer sense of justice, once suspect the situation of these two women, especially if the rumor got abroad among them that Eloise was white, and the slave-hunter would have a hard row to hoe. And I made up my mind such a rumor should be sown broadcast; aye, more, that if the necessity arose, I would throw off my own disguise and front him openly with the charge. I could do no more.

It was only an accident which gave me a clue to the real program. Mapes sent me back into the vacant space just forward of the paddle-wheel, seeking a lost canthook, and, as I turned about to return, the missing tool in my hand, I paused a moment to glance curiously out through a slit in the boat's planking, attracted by the sound of a loud voice uttering a command. I was facing the shore and a body of men, uninformed, slouching along with small regard to order, but each bearing a rifle across his shoulder, were just tipping the ridge and plowing their way down through the slippery clay in the direction of the forward gangway. Although I saw, not for an instant did my gaze linger on their disordered ranks. The sight which held me motionless was rather that of a long, broad plank, protected on either side by a rope rail, stretching from the slope of the second deck across the narrow Gulf of water, until it rested its other end firmly against the bank.

The meaning of this was sufficiently apparent. For some reason of his own, Kirby had evidently chosen this means of attaining the shore, and through personal friendship, Corcoran had consented to aid his purpose. The reason, plainly enough, was that by use of this stern gangway the landing party would be enabled to attain the bank without the necessity of pushing their way through the crowd of idle loungers forward. And the passage had just been accomplished, for, as my eyes focussed the scene, they recognized the spare figure of the deputy disappearing over the crest—a vague glimpse, but sufficient. At the same instant hands above began to draw in the plank.

There was but one thing for me to do, one action to take—follow them. Dropping the canthook, I turned aft and crept forth through a small opening into the wooden frame which supported the motionless paddle-wheel, choosing for the scene of operations the river side, where the boat effectively concealed my movements from any prying eyes ashore. I lowered myself the full length of my arms, dangling there an instant by clinging to the framework, then loosened my grip and dropped silently into the rushing waters beneath.

CHAPTER XII.

My Friend, the Deputy Sheriff.

Well below the surface, yet impelled swiftly downward by the sturdy rush of the current, sweeping about the steamer's stern, I struck out with all the strength of my arms, anxious to attain in that first effort the greatest possible distance. I came panting up to breathe, my face lifted barely above the surface, dashing the water from my eyes, and casting one swift glance backward toward the landing. Great volumes of black smoke swept forth from the funnels and my ears could distinguish the ceaseless hiss of steam.

"Who Are Yer? Frien' o' Mine?"

Again I permitted my body to sink into the depths, swimming onward with easier stroke, satisfied I had not been seen.

I swam slowly ashore, creeping up the low bank into the seclusion of a shallow, sandy gully, scooped out by the late rains. Immediately about me all was silent, the steadily deepening gloom rendering my surroundings vaguely indistinct.

Thus far I possessed no plan—except to seek her. I would venture forward, rather blindly trusting that good fortune might direct my steps aright. I would have to discover first of all, where Kirby had taken Eloise—into whose hands he had deposited the girl for safekeeping. This task ought not to be difficult. The settlement was small, and the camp itself not a large one; no such party could hope to enter its confines without attracting attention, and causing comment. Once I had thus succeeded in locating her, the rest ought to prove comparatively easy—a mere matter of action. For I had determined to play the spy no longer; to cease being a mere shadow. I proposed finding Eloise, and telling her the whole truth; following that, and assured of her support, I would defy Kirby, denounce him if necessary to the military authorities, identifying myself by means of my army commission, and insist on the immediate release of the girl. The man had broken no law—unless the wanton killing of Shunk could be proven against him—and I might not be able to compel his arrest. Whatever he suspected now relative to his prisoner, he had originally supposed her to be his slave, his property, and hence possessed a right now under the law to restrain her liberty. But even if I was debarred from bringing the man to punishment, I could break his power, and overturn his plans. Beyond that it would be a personal matter between us; and the thought gave me joy.

I attained my feet, confident and at ease, and advanced up the gully, moving cautiously, so as not to run blindly upon some sentry post in the darkness. There would be nervous soldiers on duty, liable to fire at any sound, or suspicious movement, and it was a part of my plan to penetrate the lines unseen, and without inviting arrest. I was standing uncertain, when the dim figure of a man, unquestionably drunk, came weaving his uncertain way along a footpath which ran within a yard of my position. The sudden blazing up of a fire revealed the unmistakable features of the deputy.

"Hullo," I said, happily, stepping directly before him. "When did you come ashore?"

"Hello, yerself," he managed to ejaculate thickly. "Who are yer? frien' o' mine?"

"Why, don't yer remember me, ol' man? We was talkin' 'together comin' up. I was goin' fer ter enlist."

"H—I yes; glad ter see yer. Sum hot whisky et this camp—tried eny?"

"No," I answered, grasping at the opportunity to arouse his generosity. "I ain't got no coin to buy. I'm fat broke; maybe yer cud stake me fer a bite ter eat?"

"Eat!" he flung one arm lovingly about my shoulders, and burst into laughter. "Yer bet yer life, we're a goin' ter eat, an' drink too. I don't go back on none o' ther boys. Yer never heard nuthin' like 'bout Tim Kennedy, I reckon. Eat, sure—yer know Jack Rate?"

"Never heard the name."

"What, never heard o' Jack Rate!

Ol' river man, half hoss, half alligator; uster tend bar in Saint Louee. He's up yer now, a sellin' forty-rod ter sojers. Cum up 'long with him from Beardstown. Frien' o' mine. Yer just cum 'long with me—thas all."

I permitted him to lead me, his voice never ceasing as we followed the dim trail. I made out little of what he said, nor did I question him. The trail ended before a two-room log cabin, so deeply hidden in the woods as to be revealed merely by a glimmer of light shining out from within through chinks in the walls. Tim fumbled for the latch and finally opened the door, lurching across the threshold, dragging me along after him. There were two men at a sloppy table, a respectable looking white woman stirring the contents of a pot hung over the open fire, and a fellow behind the bar, attired in a dingy white apron. It was all sordid enough, and dirty—a typical frontier grogshop; but the thing of most interest to me was the proprietor. The fellow was the same red-mustached individual whom I had watched disembark from the steamer that same afternoon, slipping in the yellow mud as he surmounted the bank, dragging his valise along after him. So it was this fellow passenger who had given these fugitives refuge; it was his presence in these parts which had decided Kirby to make the venture ashore. He glanced up at our entrance, the glare of light overhead revealing a deep, ugly scar across his chin and a pair of deep-set, scowling eyes.

"Back in time fer supper, hey, Kennedy," he growled, none too cordially. "Who's yer frien'?"

"A feller whut's goin' ter enlist. He's all right, Jack," the deputy hiccupped thickly. "Le's liquor, an' then we'll eat. I'm payin' the bill—so whut's it ter yer?"

"Nuthin' 'tall; eny frien' o' yers gits ther best I have."

He set out a squat bottle on the bar, and thinking it best to humor the both of them I poured out a stiff drink, fully aware that Rate was observing my features closely.

"Seen yer afore sumwhar, ain't I?" "I reckon," I replied indifferently, watching Tim fill his glass. "I worked my way up on the boat; saw yer on board."

"Sure; that's it; 'tain't in my line fer ter forgit a face. Yer ain't enlisted yet?"

"No; I reckon I'll wait till maunin', an' clean up a bit furst. How 'bout sum soap an' water 'fore I eat?—an' yer cudn't loan me a razor, cud ye?"

"Wal, I got plenty o' water, an' maybe cud scare up sum soap. Tim yer he's got a razor, an' if he's a frien' o' yers, I reckon he mought lend it ter yer."

The deputy gulped down his drink, and smacked his lips, clinging with one hand to the bar, regarding me lovingly.

"Sure; he's a friend o' mine. Shave him myself soon's I git sober. Whut's that? Yer can't wait? Oh, all right! then, take it yerself. Mighty fin' razor, ol' man."

Rate found me a tin basin, water, a bit of rag for a towel, and a small, cracked mirror, in which my reflection was scarcely recognizable. He was a man of few words, contenting himself with uttering merely a few comment on Kennedy, who had dropped back into a convenient chair and buried his face on the table.

"Tim's a good fellow, an' I never saw him so blame drunk afore," he said, regretfully. "He an' Kirby hed a row, an' I reckon thet's whut started him drinkin'."

"A row; a quarrel, you mean?" forgetting myself in surprise. "Who's Kirby?"

"Joe Kirby; yer sure must know him if yer a river man. Slim sorter feller, with a smooth face; slickest gambler ever was, I reckon."

"Why, of course," getting control of myself once more. "We picked him up, 'long with Tim, down river. Hed two women with 'em, didn't they? run-away niggers?"

Rate winked facetiously, evidently rather proud of the exploit as it had been related to him.

"Wal, ther way I understan', they wa'n't both o' 'em niggers; however, that was the story told on board. This yer Joe Kirby is pretty slick, let me tell you. One o' 'em's a white girl, who just pretended she was a nigger. I reckon ther even Kirby didn't catch on ter her game at furst; an' when he did he was too blame smart ter ever let her know. She don't think he knows yet, but she's liable fer ter find out mighty soon."

"But he cannot hold a white woman," I protested stoutly.

"Can't, hey! Wal, I reckon there are ways o' even doin' thet, an' if thar be, Kirby'll find it. I reckon she won't find no chance ter raise a holler fer he's got her tied good an' strong."

"Do you mean," I asked, horrified, "that he will compel her to marry him?"

"Sum smart little guesser, ain't yer? I reckon she's in a right smart way ter do it, et thet."

"And was this the cause of the quarrel between Kirby and Kennedy?"

"Wal, I reckon it was; leastwise Tim wudn't be mixed up in the affair none. They hed it prutty blame hot, an' I reckon thar'd bin a dead deputy if hedn't bin fer me. Tim thought I was a prutty gud frien' an' cum over yer ter liquor, an' eat. Ther joke ov it is, he never know'd that Joe hed told me all 'bout the fix he wuz in, afore we cum ashore. H—, it was all fixed up whut was ter be done—only we didn't expect the steamer was goin' on north. Thar's sum boys wantin' a drink; see yer agin."

I finished shaving, making no attempt to hurry, busily thinking over this new situation. In the first place why had Rate told me all this? I felt convinced the man had some purpose in his conversation, and that he had not finished all he intended to say, when the entrance of customers compelled his return to the bar. His parting words implied that. Perhaps the revolt of the deputy made it necessary for the conspirators to select another helper to properly carry out their nefarious scheme, and Rate had decided that I might answer. I hoped this might prove the explanation and determined to seek the earliest opportunity to impress upon that individual the fact that I was desperately in need of money, and decidedly indifferent as to how it was obtained.

The two soldiers, whose entrance had interrupted our talk, remained at the bar drinking until after I had completed my toilet, and were still there listening to a story Rate was telling when the slatternly white woman announced that supper was ready to serve. Tim slept soundly, while the other men remained engrossed in their game of cards. Rate glanced about at these as though to reassure himself that they were intent on their play, then, removing his apron, he crossed the room and drew up a chair opposite me.

"All right, Sal," he grunted shortly. "Bring on whut yer got."

He remained silent, staring moodily at the fire, until after the woman had spread out the dishes on the table before him. Then his eyes fell upon the fare.

"Nice looking mess that," he growled, surveying the repast with undisguised disgust. "No wonder we don't do no business with thet kind of a cook. No, yer needn't stay—go an' make up them beds in the other room. I'll watch things yere."

I judged the fellow had come over intending to resume our interrupted conversation, but hardly knew what he had best venture. I decided to give him a lead.

"I ain't got no money, myself," I began to explain, apologetically, "but Tim thar sed he'd pay my bill."

"Sure, that's all right; I ain't a worryin' none. Maybe I might put yer in an easy way o' gettin' hold o' a little coin—that is if ye ain't too blame particular."

"Me!" I laughed. "Well, I reckon I don't aim fer ter be thet. I've bin ten years knockin' 'bout between New Orleans an' Saint Louee, steamboatin' mostly. Thet sort o' thing don't make no saint out'n eny kin'd man, I reckon. What sort'a job is it?"

He eyed me cautiously, as though not altogether devoid of suspicion. "Yer don't somehow look just the same sort o' chap, with them ther whiskers shaved off," he acknowledged soberly. "Yer a sight better lookin' then I thought yer was, an' a sight younger. Wha was it yer cum frum?"

"Frum Saint Louee, on the boat, if thet's whut yer drivin' at."

"Tain't whut I'm drivin' at. Whar else did yer cum frum afore then? Yer ain't got no bum's face."

"Oh, I see; well, I can't help that, kin I? I was raised down in Mississippi, an' run away when I was fourteen. I've been a driftin' 'long ever since. I reckon my face ain't goin' ter hurt none so long as the pay is right."

"No, I reckon maybe it won't. I've seed sum baby faces in my time thet sure hed the devil behind 'em. Whut's yer name?"

"Moffett—Dan Moffett."

He fell silent, and I was unpleasantly aware of his continued scrutiny, my heart beating fiercely, as I endeavored to force down more of the food as an excuse to remain at the table. What would he decide? Finally he spoke once more, but gruffly enough, leaning forward, and lowering his voice to a hoarse whisper.

"Wal! now see yere, Moffett, I'm goin' fer ter be d— plain with yer. I reckon yer whut yer say ye are, fer thar ain't no reason, fer as I kin see, why we should lie 'bout it. Yer flat broke, an' need coin, an' I'm takin' ye at yer own word—that ye don't care overly much how yet git it. Thet true?"

"Just 'bout—so it ain't no hangin' job."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Solitude.

What period do you think I recall most frequently and most willingly in my dreams? Not the pleasures of my youth; they are too rare, too much mingled with bitterness and now too distant. I recall the period of my seclusion, of my solitary walks, of the fleeting but delicious days that I have passed entirely by myself, with my beloved dog, my old cat, with the birds of the field, the birds of the forest, with all nature and her inconceivable Author.—Rousseau.

What "Slow" Accounts Mean

"SLOW" ACCOUNTS mean something more than the mere matter of delay in receiving payment of bills.

THEY MEAN DUPLICATION OF EFFORT, the maintenance of records and additional office work that would be unnecessary if such accounts were paid within the reasonable specified time.

BUT MOST OF ALL they mean that effort which might be devoted to necessary tasks essential to the comfort, convenience and efficiency that you derive from your telephone service, is wasted on what should be unnecessary tasks.

UNSHAKEN TESTIMONY

Time is the test of truth. And Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test in Weymouth. No Weymouth resident who suffers backache or annoying urinary ills can remain unconvinced by this twice-told testimony.

Mrs. P. J. Fryer, 56 Phillips St., Weymouth, says: Doan's Kidney Pills were fine for backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble. I have had pains in my back over my kidneys at times and I have used Doan's and have been relieved. Doan's Kidney Pills have been a reliable kidney remedy for us. My mother had faith in them and I remember seeing them in the home when I was a girl in Belfast, Ireland.

(Statement given May 5, 1913)

On March 20, 1917 Mrs. Fryer said: "My faith in Doan's Kidney Pills is as strong today as ever. Doan's have never failed to give me wonderful relief."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Fryer had. Foster-McBurn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

To the sentiment,—"The Old Plymouth Colony—her principles are the corner-stone of this Republic—so long as they are held sacred in the government of this nation its prosperity is assured," Hon. Benjamin Hobart, of Abington, formerly a member of Congress, and now ninety-two years of age, was called upon to respond, and, coming upon the platform, surprised the audience by the clearness of his intellect, the distinctness of his enunciation, and his great bodily vigor.

He commenced by alluding to the fact that he had been a teacher in one of the public schools of Weymouth, seventy-five years ago, and proceeded to speak in detail of the various and important changes which had taken place in this vicinity and throughout the whole country, during the period of his personal recollection—exhibiting an acquaintance with current events and a memory of the past, wonderfully accurate for a gentleman of his great age.

Mr. Hobart was followed by Hon. George White, Judge of the Probate Court for Norfolk County, in response to this sentiment,—"The Judiciary of Massachusetts—since 1776 it has created a system of jurisprudence that is at once an honor, a protection and a blessing to all," who spoke as follows:

Mr. President:—With reluctance I speak to the sentiment "The Judiciary." I feel, however, that this is a family gathering, and that I have a right to be here and to speak in virtue of my ancestors, all of whom on my father's side, for about two hundred years, were born in Weymouth; and, besides, there are names of men of Weymouth origin which may fitly be called to remembrance in response to your toast.

About two hundred and fifty years ago there lived in sight of this hill where we are, and in that part of Weymouth now called Old Spain, a man by the name of Thomas White. When he came to this shore, or whence he came, I, by diligent study, cannot find out. Whether he was one of Weston's men of unsavory memory, or whether he came from Weymouth, England, with "another sort of people in 1624," or a little earlier or later, is uncertain.

From this obscure settler there can be traced, along the various lines of his descendants, men of every kind widely diversified occupations,—very many useful citizens and many distinguished public men; some of whom were shoemakers, some blacksmiths; others farmers, merchants, bankers, lawyers, judges, historians, physicians, one a President of a College; others, slaveholders—yes, holders of slaves here in Weymouth; some were soldiers serving in the wars of their times (the French and Indian war, the Revolution, the war of 1812, and the Secession war); and others followed the sea, one of whom sailed with Capt. John Manley in the far-famed privateer the "Schooner Lee," which performed such signal service against the British shipping off here in Massachusetts Bay, in the early days of the Revolution.

This Thomas White lived and died in Old Spain, and he and many of his line lie buried in the neighboring burial ground. Some of his descendants have lived on the banks of Weymouth River and on Fore River ever since. Some moved up to the head of the waters, on the Braintree side as well as on the Weymouth side; some pushed on to South Weymouth, and hence on to the country now Holbrook, Randolph, Brockton, Bridgewater and Taunton. The blood of this man can be traced by the records in many men and many women now living, whose lives and characters, because of their public spirit, their intelligence, their moral worth, make them worthy of mention when Weymouth celebrates her birthday,—the Louds, the Webbs, the Hunts, the Kingmans, the Whites, the Haywards, the Aldens, the Turners, and many others.

But coming more to the subject of your sentiment, I will speak of the lawyers. Samuel White, of Taunton, born in Braintree, was a lineal descendant, in the fourth degree, from this Thomas White, of Weymouth. A graduate of Harvard College, the first lawyer ever settled in Taunton, one of the few barristers in the Massachusetts Colony prior to the Revolution, eminent as a lawyer and orator; for more than twenty-five years he was Speaker of the House of Representatives or member of the Governor's Council.

As speaker, in 1765, he gave his official signature to the Resolve of the House of Representatives, calling the first convention of the colonies to consider the Stamp Act of Parliament, and take measures in relation thereto; and so may be regarded as among the first who entered into open and active resistance to the unlawful acts of the mother country. He died in 1769, and so failed to share in the war of the Revolution.

His grandsons were Francis and William Baylies, both eminent as lawyers, one of whom (Francis) was the historian of Plymouth Colony, a member of Congress for six years, and rich in learning, talents and virtues; the other, a fine speaker, the compeer of the first lawyers of his day, often arrayed against Daniel Webster.

Anna White, sister of Samuel White, of Taunton, whom I have just mentioned, was the grandmother of Samuel Sumner Wilde, one of the Justices of the Supreme Judicial Court of this Commonwealth for thirty-five years. Silence White, of the fourth generation from Thomas White, of Weymouth, was the grandmother of Lemuel Shaw, the late Chief Justice, who presided in the Supreme Court for thirty years. These judges were simple, sturdy Puritans, and their names make no inconsiderable share of the common-wealth and grandeur of our State.

Another man deserves remembrance on this day. In 1745, Richard Cranch came to this country from Kingsbridge, England. He was a watchmaker by trade. In 1750, he removed from Boston to Braintree (now Quincy), and, subsequently, he became a resident of Weymouth. Here, in Weymouth, he married a daughter of Rev. William Smith, sister of Abigail, the wife of John Adams, which John was the first Chief Justice of the Superior (now called Supreme) Court of Massachusetts, in virtue of an appointment made in 1775, by "the Council of the State of Massachusetts."

This Richard Cranch, with his beautiful wife, not long afterwards returned to Braintree bearing with them their infant son William, who was born in Weymouth. The father (Richard) studied law, became a member of the bar, and was appointed Judge of the Court of Common Pleas for the County of Suffolk. William (the son) was graduated at Harvard College, studied law, and, after a brief practice at the bar, was appointed one of the assistant judges of the United States Circuit Court for the District of Columbia; and five years later was appointed by President Jefferson Chief Justice of that Court, and, in virtue of that office, became sole Judge of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.

Chief Justice Cranch was conscientious and persistent in his opinions to the extreme, yet he was a man born to be loved and venerated. He was the progenitor of many gifted and lovely men and women (lawyers, physicians, clergymen, painters, poets, artists and singers), some of them of rare talents and genius.

Thanks'givin' Days from History's Page

By Anthony H. Euwer
Illustrations by the Author

Once every year the President
Proclaims a gen'ral day
For folks to get together and Hold services and pray.
And eat roast turkey by the peck
With cranberries and dresin',
To show how gratefulness
They are for every blessin'.

But when we gaze down through the maze
Of history and fiction,
You'll find lots more Thanks'givin'
Times
That came without prediction;
Thanks'givin' times when fate did seem
Most direful, dark and murky,
Nor celebrated with ice cream
Nor cranberries nor turkey.

When poor John Smith was just about Almost burned at the stake,
And Pokahontas begged the chiefs
To save him for her sake,
And when he clasped the maiden dear
And pressed her to him tight,
I guess it was Thanks'givin' Day
For Johnny Smith all right.

And when he clasped the maiden dear
And pressed her to him tight.

When to the Curfew Bessie clung
Until the great bell ceased,
Then ran and told old Cromwell bold
Who'd just come from the East,
And for her deed got him to heed
Her Basil's woeful plight,
I guess it was Thanks'givin' Day
For Bess and Bas all right.

When little Willie Tell so brave
Stood 'neath the apple red,
And watched the arrow pointed toward
The region of his head,

Then felt the pish—the juice go swish
Down o'er his cheeks so white,
I guess it was Thanks'givin' Day
For little Bill all right.

When that there kid chucked in his fist
Right through the dike's small hole,
And so saved Haarlem from the flood
That mighty soon would roll,
Saw some one comin' so that he Could rest and stretch a mite,
I guess it was Thanks'givin' Day
For little Dutch all right.

When that there kid chucked in his fist
Right through the dike's small hole.

When Jonah for three goozy days Flopped 'round the whale's dark tum,
Then fin'ly felt him give a gulp
Till Jonah had to come,
A landin' him all safe and live
Out in the air and light,
I guess it was Thanks'givin' Day
For Jonah boy all right.

A landin' him all safe and live
Out in the air and light.

When honest George decided that 'Twas best to tell the truth
To keep himself from gettin' licked,
Way back there in his youth,

And then thought how he had escaped
The birch's woeful smite,
I guess it was Thanks'givin' Day
For honest George all right.

When what's-his-name of ancient fame
Beheld the lion's woe,
And got down on his knees and plucked
The thorn frum out his toe,
And when for that the lion he,
Did neither growl nor bite,
I guess it was Thanks'givin' Day
For both of them all right.

And got down on his knees and plucked
The thorn frum out his toe.

And when one day, that hollow tree
Bruce saw and crept inside 'er,
While o'er the hole a web was wove
By that kind hearted spider,
Which his pursuers seen' there,
Passed by as well they might,
I guess it was Thanks'givin' Day
For Bobby Bruce all right.

While o'er the hole a web was wove
By that kind hearted spider.

When Sister Anne from Blue Beard's tower
For succor long did gaze,
To save her sister from the power
Of her hub's scandalous ways,
And down the road a cloud of dust—
Oh joy! Oh dear delight!
I guess it was Thanks'givin' Day
For Blue Beard's wife all right.

And when the check for these here lines
Comes through the wintry weather,
To keep my soul and body both
On friendly terms together,
And I can go and feed my face
In some swell place that night,
I guess 'twill be Thanks'givin' Day
For truly yours, all right!

BLESSED WITH GOOD FORTUNE

For That, Among the Numbers of Other Mercies, the Nation Should Be Humbly Grateful.

It was with large, round pumpkins and bursting cornucopias and heaped haymows that Thanksgiving day came to be associated by most of those now living. Or, reduced to even lower limits, turkey and cranberry sauce and mince pie. We thanked a little and ate much.

But there have been other kinds of Thanksgivings in America. And there is another kind today. We meet to celebrate the gifts of God to the lucki-

Pulling for Luck

est nation on the face of the earth.
The record is a long one. Let us, on this day of all Thanksgiving days, forget nothing. Let us, in a mood of gratitude and humbleness, recount our blessings and try to realize just how lavish has been our good fortune and just how deep is our obligation to repay.

It was in a time of starvation happily ended that the first Thanksgiving was celebrated in Massachusetts bay.
All those earliest sentiments of gratitude for plenty we can feel anew today as we have vaguely felt them for the past many years. We have a land that is rich beyond all the dreams of those discoverers who sought the riches of the East. Such is America, ours for the taking.

But it is not upon these blessings that we dwell today. In fact, it was precisely these material good things of which we had become surfeited and which we took too easily for granted in the days before the war. Theirs is never the power to hold a nation fifty humble or keen for the labor of living.
It is rather to the Thanksgiving days of the Revolutionary war, of the Civil war, that we turn with understanding now. The Continental congress ordained a number. So did Gen. George Washington. So did President Lincoln, in 1863. Here, in these events that made our nation and saved it, stands the substance of old gratuities with which our hearts of today can feel akin. For Washington himself, for all the great hearts and minds that fought the war of the Revolution, and having fought it transformed its inchoate ideals into a document and a union of surpassing life and vigor, we can give thanks. For Lincoln and all the gallantry of arms that preserved America we can give thanks. For our share in the great war and for the deeds of our allies we can give thanks.
It is all one record of bounty. By comparison, our material harvests seem small indeed. The founding of America, the building of America, its salvation through the years, its high post today —was there ever such a continuous record of luck, of the granting of great men, of the uprising of fine emotions, of the wisdom of great minds to construct and the strength of great hearts to uphold! A thousand chances might have destroyed. The least delay here, the smallest blunder there, would have subtracted America from the world—or, brought us to the year 1919 riven or disgraced.

As it is, we know and see that we have been blessed beyond all hope and belief. For a moment we may be tempted to be overproud and confident.
But not for long. We cannot but bow our heads and be very thankful and, if we are wise of head and sound of heart, dedicate ourselves with a new resolve to the mighty tasks which so much good fortune lays upon us.—

Formerly Was Oyster King.

Jacob Ockers, known as the "Oyster King," who died recently at his Long Island (N. Y.) home, was the first exporter of oysters to Europe, and his name came to be known in all markets where the blue point oyster was found in foreign countries. His foreign shipments the first year amounted to only 1,000 barrels. Later his export business became the largest of its kind in the United States, and amounted to 30,000 barrels annually.

BOSCHEE'S SYRUP.

In these days of unsettled weather look out for colds. Take every precaution against the dreaded influenza and at the first sneeze remember that Boschee's Syrup has been used for fifty-three years in all parts of the United States for coughs, bronchitis and colds, throat irritation and especially for lung troubles, giving the patient a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectoration in the morning. Made in America and kept as a household remedy in the homes of thousands of families all over the civilized world. Try one bottle

On the Contrary.

Marion had been out several evenings in succession and looked tired, so mother suggested she retire early instead of going out again that even-

"Well, is sister making up her mind to stay in?" He replied: "I should say not, she's making up her face to go out."

India Needs American Goods.

The fact that the Bombay Electric Tramway company, Bombay, India, recently placed an order for 130 tram-

RASCALS

Biliousness, Headache, Colds, Constipation, driven out with "Cascarets"

Why take nasty cathartics, sickening salts, or stomach-turning oils to drive these rascals out? Let gentle, harmless Cascarets remove the liver and bowel poison which is keeping your head dizzy, your tongue coated, your skin sallow, your breath offensive, and your stomach sour. Get a box of Cascarets at the drug store and rid your liver, stomach and bowels of the excess bile, poisons, and waste which are keeping you miserable. Cascarets never gripe, never sicken, never inconvenience.
They cost so little and work while you

When Cork Is Driven in Bottle.

When a cork slides down inside a bottle it is very difficult to get it out —unless one has the necessary tools, and they are not always available, writes Victor H. Todd, in Popular Science Monthly.

A good way to extract it is to grease the neck of the bottle with vaseline, then hold the bottle under cold water.

When the bottle is as cold as possible spear the cork with a hat pin, or even shake it until it blocks the neck of the bottle and sets straight with the neck. Then gradually heat the bottle or pour hot water over it and the expanding air will generally force the cork out with a slight pop.

Conditional.

"But we simply must have a cook!"
wailed Mrs. Newlywed tearfully. "I've never lived in a house without one."
"Well, if it's as bad as that, mum, I'll come," replied the hesitating candidate. "I don't mind staying so long as I don't have to do any of the cooking."

Some folks never think seriously about anything but salads.

Smackless chewing gum would also be a great boon to humanity.

ST. CHARLES WOMAN WAS FORTUNATE

It Was a Lucky Day for Mrs. Wietheolter
When She Read About Doan's

"I had such awful cutting pains in the small of my back and hips, I often had to cry out," says Mrs. Ernest Wietheolter, 550 Madison St., St. Charles, Mo. "The pain was knife-like and I couldn't turn in bed, in fact I was almost helpless. My feet and ankles swelled badly, my hands were puffed up and there were swellings under my eyes. I often got so dizzy I had to sit down to keep from falling and my health was completely broken down. The kidney secretions pained terribly in passage and in spite of all the medicine I took, I kept getting worse until I was a wreck."

Mrs. Wietheolter

"By chance I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and bought some. After I had used half a box there was a change and I continued to improve; the pains, aches and swellings left and my health returned."

Sworn to before me,
WM. F. WOLTER, Notary Public.
ALMOST TWO YEARS LATER,
Mrs. Wietheolter said: "I think as highly of Doan's as ever. Whenever I have used them, they have benefited me."

 Belgium's demand for Dutch territory on the left bank of the Scheldt, or failing that, the internationalization of the river, has come acutely before the peace conference with the protest of Holland against the transfer of any Dutch interests. The peace conference sub-commission is now studying the subject.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

A Strike for Freedom.
 Unionism in a slightly different phase is being used by students of Shanghai, who have in their organization some 20,000 of their number, one-fourth of whom are girls. These unionists desire—not shorter hours, not other teachers, but they have struck for freedom of speech and the preservation of the freedom of the press. The movement, it is reported, is spreading to other cities. Thus come the evidences of the great democratic movement in China.

Taxing the Millionaires.
 Under the new scale of income tax imposed by the recent United States revenue bill every citizen in receipt of $150,000 or more a year must pay at least half of it to the state.
 Mr. Henry Ford, for example, is said to have an income of $25,000,000 a year, of which the revenue authorities will claim between $15,000,000 and $20,000,000—a sum sufficient to keep 1,000 families in modest comfort forever.

But even Mr. Ford gets off lighter than Mr. John D. Rockefeller, who is reputed to have an income of $100,000,000 a year. Mr. Rockefeller's contribution to the treasury, it is said, will not fall short of $80,000,000 for the current year—a sum which represents 2,000 times his weight in gold.

Famous Long-Distance Runner Loses Five-Mile Race to Trotter on English Course.

Alfred Shrubbs, the famous long-distance runner so well remembered in this country for his appearances years ago in marathon runs, is at present on a home visit to Horsham, England, from Canada. Shrubbs reappeared on the track at his native town one day last month, after training for three weeks. He ran a five-mile race with a six-year-old trotting horse, Kitty M., in aid of the funds of the local cricket club. This was the first time Shrubbs had figured in a match of the kind on the other side of the Atlantic, and much interest was aroused by the event. The conditions were that the horse, owned by Joseph Burton of Horsham, should draw a four-wheeled vehicle with two occupants, the total weight being 22 stone. In the event of the horse breaking into a gallop it was to be turned completely round and the distance recovered at a trot. No whip was allowed. The horse won by about a lap and three-quarters. The horse's time was 26:1, and Shrubbs finished in 28:8 1-5.

HEADACHE Often Caused by Acid-Stomach

Yes, indeed, more often than you think. Because ACID-STOMACH, starting with indigestion, heartburn, belching, food-repeating, bloating and gas, if not checked, will eventually affect every vital organ of the body. Severe, blinding, splitting headaches are, therefore, frequent occurrence as a result of this upset condition.

Take EATONIC. It quickly banishes acid-stomach with its sour blood, pain and gas. It aids digestion—helps the stomach get full strength from every mouthful of food you eat. Millions of people are miserable, weak, sick and ailing because of ACID-STOMACH. Poisons, created by partly digested food charged with acid, are absorbed into the blood and distributed throughout the entire system. This often causes rheumatism, sciatica, cirrhosis of the liver, heart trouble, ulcers and even cancer of the stomach. It robs its victims of their health, undermines the strength of the most vigorous.

If you want to get back your physical and mental strength—be full of vim and vigor—enjoy life and be happy, you must get rid of your acid-stomach. EATONIC you will find the very help you need and it's guaranteed. So get a big 50c box from your druggist today. If it fails to please you, return it and he will refund your money.

HAD CHRONIC BRONCHITIS FOR TWENTY-SIX YEARS NOW WELL AND HAPPY

THIS IS WORTH READING

The experience of Mr. E. J. Tou-palik, 1438 Rose street, LaCrosse, Wisconsin, is chiefly remarkable on account of the length of time he was afflicted.

He writes: "I have been suffering with chronic bronchitis for twenty-six years and every winter I would catch cold and become so hoarse I could not speak for six or eight weeks. I could get only temporary relief."

"This winter I was taken with Grip and was in awful shape. A fellow workman advised me to take PE-RU-NA. By the time I had used three-fourths of a bottle, the hoarseness was gone, also that tired feeling. I am on my second bottle. Hereafter PE-RU-NA will be constantly in my house. It is the best medicine ever put up for the purpose."

For any disease due to catarrh or catarrhal conditions, PE-RU-NA is equally dependable. Coughs, colds, catarrh of the head, stomach trouble, constipation, rheumatism, pains in the back, side and loins, bloating, belching gas, indigestion, catarrh of the large and small intestines, are some of the troubles for which PE-RU-NA is especially recommended.

PE-RU-NA can be purchased anywhere in either tablet or liquid form.

 "Aren't you afraid somebody will steal that diver of yours?"
 "No," said Mr. Chuggins. "I'm leaving it around in that apparently careless manner as a trap. Some automobile robber is going to drive off with it, not knowing its ways; and the first time it strikes a street car track or a railroad crossing it's going to stop short and render the entire crew liable to capture."

WORSE THAN DEADLY POISON GAS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. It attacks young and old alike. In most cases the victim is warned of the approaching danger. Nature fights back. Headache, indigestion, insomnia, lame back, lumbago, sciatica, rheumatism, pain in the loins and lower abdomen, difficulty in urinating, all are indication of trouble brewing in your kidneys.

When such symptoms appear you will almost certainly find quick relief in GOLD MEDAL Haarle Oil Capsules.

This famous old remedy has stood the test for two hundred years in helping mankind to fight off disease. It is imported direct from the home laboratories in Holland, where it has helped to develop the Dutch into one of the sturdiest and healthiest races in the world, and it may be had at almost every drug store. Your money promptly refunded if it does not relieve you. Be sure to get the genuine GOLD MEDAL Brand. In sealed packages, three sizes.—Adv.

"Your Feet must be RIGHT, Son"

So says Uncle Sam to all of America's young manhood.

The Tru-pedic Shoe is the very best answer to this nation-wide demand for better fitting footwear, because it is built upon new principles which INSURE proper fitting shoes.

What distinctly marks Tru-pedics from the others, is the fact they are made in three types on the same style toe-inflate, straight and outflare. Science says "All normal feet are of one of three types and not of one standard type." This fact is now established after years of scientific research and study.

The Tru-pedic Shoe, in the right type for your foot, will prove to be one of the most attractive, as well as best fitting shoes, you ever had. Come in and try on all THREE types.

GOOD PLACE TO WORK
GOOD PLACE TO TRADE

He has never smoked, except, as he explained, when a boy he had tried it. His good health he attributes to good habits and constant work. "Good health comes from contented work," he says, "and good habits. By good habits I mean early to bed and early to rise, regularly in eating and sleeping and working happily. That is what I have always done, worked happily."

"I must unconsciously have felt what was coming to me, for my working hours have always been happy ones. I have always thought, while at work, what a happy situation for a man to have a good job, steady work and a good employer."

"I tried to enlist in 1861 in the army, but was rejected, as I was not old enough or strong enough. I finally got in at the last call for troops in 1864 and served nearly a year."

Mr. Cully is a past commander of Reynolds Post 58, G. A. R. He enlisted in Co. G, 4th Massachusetts Heavy Artillery.

RETIREES FROM THAYER

Dr. William Gallagher, for nearly a score of years headmaster at Thayer Academy, Braintree, has announced his resignation, effective at the end of the present academic year. In a letter to the trustees he says that as he has reached the age of 70, at which his predecessor resigned, and learning that the trustees have planned a reorganization of the academy, an undertaking for which he believes a younger man would be better fitted, he has decided to retire.

Dr. Gallagher went to the Thayer Academy from the Boston Latin school on the retirement of Prof. J. B. Sewall. He is a brother of the late Charles T. Gallagher, the Boston attorney, who died suddenly a few weeks ago.

LEGION COMMANDER

Col. Franklin d'Olier, the first national commander of the American Legion, is a Philadelphia cotton yarn merchant. When he returned from France last June, where he had served in the quartermaster corps with distinction, he devoted himself to the organization of the American Legion and, with Col. Theodore Roosevelt, the younger, gave up his entire time to seeing that the Legion should have a right start.

When the United States entered the war Col. d'Olier promptly volunteered his services. He was commissioned a captain and sent to France to organize the salvage system, whereby he saved hundreds of thousands of dollars to the American government.

For this he was successively promoted to major and to lieutenant-colonel, was awarded the distinguished service medal by the United States and made an officer of the Legion of Honor by the French government.

Col. d'Olier has lived all his life either in Burlington, N. J., where he was born, or in Riverton, N. J., where he now has his home. He is a descendant of John Woolman, the Quaker preacher and reformer, and his great uncle was Robert T. Conrad, the first mayor of the consolidated city of Philadelphia in 1854-55.

Col. d'Olier was born April 28, 1857. He was graduated successively at the Van Rensselaer Seminary, Burlington, N. J., and Princeton University, class of 1898.

Col. d'Olier is married and has three children. His wife was Miss Helen Roberts Kitchen, daughter of Theodore Kitchen of Philadelphia.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Treaty and Covenant of League Killed for Present by the Action of the Senate.

BOTH SIDES DISOWN BLAME

Ratification With Modified Reservations May Come at Next Session—Efforts to Avert Coal Shortage Disaster—President Wilson Summons New Industrial Conference.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

The treaty with Germany, including the covenant of the League of Nations, is dead for the present so far as the United States is concerned. Everyone knows that, but opinions as to who killed it differ irreconcilably.

The lethal dose administered to the pact in the senate was compounded of stubbornness, desire for revenge, personal pride, partisanship and desire to protect or less imitations. Who elements the writer.

The firm his most are a little too late might have been reached which would have been measurably satisfactory to all except a few irreconcilables—so few that they would have been snowed under. But when Senator Hitchcock took to Mr. Wilson in his sick room the news that Senator Lodge and his followers had adopted the committee list of reservations, the president declared he would pigeonhole the treaty if it were ratified in that shape, and asked the Democratic senators to vote solidly against the ratification. He gave no hint that he would accept any compromise, and the Republicans, with the few Democrats who had stood with them all through the fight, thereupon brought the matter to a final vote at once.

For four and a half hours there were roll calls and parliamentary maneuvers in the course of which Hitchcock vainly tried to get a vote on a mild reservation resolution, but the Republicans were too angry to listen to him. Twice the senate voted on the Lodge resolution of ratification with reservations and twice it was defeated, the first time by 39 to 55 and the second time by 41 to 51. Between these roll calls a vote was taken on Underwood's resolution for unqualified ratification. This was beaten, 38 to 53. On the Lodge resolution 13 Republicans voted in the negative both times. These senators had declared themselves against the treaty and league unreservedly. The mild reservation Republicans could have been captured for a compromise if Mr. Wilson and Senator Hitchcock had started on that line earlier, but as it was Lodge was able to hold them in line throughout.

While the treaty is admittedly dead, it may be brought to life at the regular session which begins Monday, December 1. If President Wilson re-submits it to the senate and shows a disposition to accept modified reservations, it is not unlikely that it will be ratified in such a way that the other powers will acquiesce. The alternative before the senate will be adoption of the resolution introduced by Senator Lodge just before adjournment Wednesday night and referred to the committee on foreign relations without debate. This declares the state of war between the United States and Germany to be at an end. It requires the concurrence of the house but, according to general practice, no action by the president follows.

Senator Borah, one of the irreconcilables, who wants to keep the United States wholly aloof from the affairs of the rest of the world, predicts that the treaty, with the league covenant included, and with the Lodge reservations somewhat modified, will ultimately be ratified. According to Mr. Hitchcock, many of the reservations are objectionable chiefly because of the language in which they are couched. Advice from London and Paris lead to the belief that if such objections were removed the other great powers would not hesitate to accept the American reservations. They all feel that without the participation of the United States the League of Nations would be a phantom thing, and in the words of General Smuts: "The machinery of the league is wanted to save civilization from dissolving into fragments, from falling into decay. It alone can save tottering Europe."

One London correspondent says most Englishmen with a knowledge of world affairs would not be displeased to see the league plan fall, because they desire an Anglo-Franco-American alliance rather than a league in which every little nation would have equal powers with the great nations.

French officials were disappointed but not surprised by the action of the American senate. They are more interested just now in the fate of the Franco-American defense pact. It is taken for granted that the allied powers will put the Versailles treaty into effect not later than December 1. Before this is done, Germany must sign the protocol to the treaty. The German delegates are objecting to the provision requiring them to make reparation for the warships sunk in Scapa Flow and want to argue the question.

so small that the situation is growing decidedly desperate. Many trains have been cancelled and industries all over the country are becoming alarmed.

When he opened the conference between the operators and the mine union leaders in Washington, Secretary of Labor Wilson told them they must get together. Later Fuel Administrator Garfield laid before the scale committees figures that demonstrated these two things:

That the 60 per cent increase demanded by the miners is unreasonable and impossible.

That the operators have a margin heretofore paid out in excess profit taxes upon which to base an increase of wages to the miners without necessitating a rise in the price of coal to the public.

Dr. Garfield then told the conferees that the country must and should have coal, and while he uttered no threats, it was the belief in Washington that if an agreement were not reached, the government would resort to extreme measures. What these would be can only be conjectured, though it may be it would follow the example of Kansas and North Dakota, where the state has taken over the operation of the mines by proclamation of the governor. Again it can only be guessed how, in such case, laborers would be obtained.

Meanwhile Director General Hines of the railroad administration is doing everything possible to conserve the nation's supply of coal and to distribute it equitably. He has forbidden any unnecessary use of fuel by railroads and industrial plants. Also he has placed a censorship on all news concerning the coal situation because, he said, of false rumors that had been attributed to officials of the administration. Mr. Hines is especially endeavoring to keep as much traffic and industry moving as is possible and is revising freight traffic to reduce unnecessary mileage. The announced priority in allowances and deliveries is being continued. So far there has been no embargo placed on freight.

In Colorado another strike of coal miners was called on Friday by the district president because of allegations that not all the striking miners had been given re-employment. Those who were not taken back, said the operators, were connected with the I. W. W. Hundreds of miners in the New River fields of West Virginia who had returned to work quit again because the operators had discontinued the "check off" system for the collection of union dues.

President Wilson has taken the advice of the group representing the public in the recent futile industrial conference and has called another, the delegates to which are not divided up into groups. He has invited 17 men to be members of this new conference and has asked them to meet in Washington, on December 1. The citizens thus honored are:

Secretary Wilson of the labor department; former United States Attorney-General Thomas W. Gregory; former United States Attorney-General George W. Wickersham; former Food Administrator Herbert C. Hoover; former Secretary Oscar S. Straus of the commerce department; Henry M. Robinson of Pasadena, Cal.; Prof. Frank W. Taussig, former chairman of the tariff commission; former Governor Samuel W. McCall of Massachusetts; former Governor Martin H. Glynn of New York; former Governor Henry C. Stuart of Virginia; Dr. W. O. Thompson of Ohio State university; Richard Hooker of Springfield, Mass.; George T. Slade of St. Paul; Julius Rosenwald of Chicago; Owen D. Young of New York city; H. J. Waters of Manhattan, Kan.; Stanley King of Boston.

In his letter of invitation the president says: "It is not expected that you will deal directly with any condition which exists today, but that you may be fortunate enough to find such ways as will avoid the repetition of these deplorable conditions."

The bolshevik, while still ostensibly trying for peace with the Baltic na-have captured 28,000 of Kolchak's men at Omsk. General Denikine also has given ground before the bolsheviks in southwestern Russia. The campaign of General Yudenitch against Petrograd has collapsed and after retreating to Estonia he resigned his command in the effort to avoid internment of his troops by the Estonians. Some 20,000 of his men, it is reported, joined the bolshevik army.

In Vladivostok there was a two days' rebellion headed by General Galda. After bloody combats in the streets and suburbs Galda was wounded and captured and the revolt was quelled.

D'Annunzio pulled off another spectacular stunt, which may or may not mean anything. Leaving Fiume, he proceeded with some warships to Zara where amidst the plaudits of the populace he formally added the Dalmatian coast to the Italian domain. Spalato, he promised, should come next.

The general elections in France resulted in a great rout of the radicals. They lost many seats in the chamber and Clemenceau's victory was so pronounced that his elevation to the presidency of France is considered not unlikely.

Real trouble with Mexico looms as a result of the arrest of Consular Agent Jenkins at Puebla on charges connected with his abduction and ransom. The government warned Mexico that Jenkins must be released and that any further molestation of him would "seriously affect the relations between the United States and Mexico, for which the government of Mexico would assume sole responsibility." The Mexicans accused Jenkins of collusion with the bandits who kidnaped him.

At the request of the government the Supreme court is expediting its hearing of the cases for and against the war-time prohibition act and the enforcement law. Arguments began Thursday and the court promised an early decision. In this connection it was officially stated that the president would make no move to rescind the war-time prohibition act until peace had been formally declared. It is now predicted that the "wet" period, if there is any, will be very short.

Secretary of the Treasury Glass has entered the senate as successor to the late Senator Martin of Virginia. Mr. Glass accepted the appointment on the advice of President Wilson. It was said his place at the head of the treasury would be filled by John Skelton Williams, whose appointment as controller of the currency has not been confirmed by the senate.

Does Ignition give you trouble?

Very often something besides the magneto is to blame for faulty ignition.

Frequently it's poor gasoline that fails to vaporize properly and therefore ignites reluctantly and burns slowly and incompletely.

You can easily eliminate this ignition trouble by standardizing on SOCONY Motor Gasoline. It is carefully refined and uniform in quality wherever you buy it—and you are never far away from a garage or service station that sells SOCONY.

Fill up on SOCONY and once your carburetor is adjusted for this quick-burning fuel, you are sure of plenty of power on a lean mixture that burns up completely—that gives big mileage per gallon in all weathers.

At filling time look for the red, white and blue SOCONY Sign.

Grippers Attached to Truck Gathering Potatoes in Field to Full Truck Capacity.

Comparatively few farmers could afford to purchase a motortruck just for hauling to and from the farm. Many truck manufacturers and salesmen apparently have the idea that for hauling to and from the farm is where the greatest need for the truck comes; this is simply a lack of conception of the farmer's hauling requirements.

The most important need for the truck is on the farm itself where its economy and convenience will be most felt. On most farms there are ten cases where the truck is needed for hauling about the farm to one for hauling to or from the farm. The man who now owns a tractor and motorcar should consider the possibilities of the truck as a means of still further reducing the horse and man labor requirement in his business.—Power Farming.

ELECTRIC CAR IS ADAPTED TO CITY

Periodic Recharging of Batteries Makes It Impossible to Go Long Distances.

OUTLYING STATIONS SCARCE

Greater Mileage Obtained From Battery Freshly Charged—Testing With Piece of Metal Common Fault—Use Voltmeter.

The electric vehicle, whether truck or pleasure, is of necessity a city machine. The periodic recharging of the storage batteries makes it impossible for the car to travel very great distances from its base of supply, for the charging stations in outlying districts are few and far between.

The construction of a battery is comparatively simple. It consists of a positive plate (of a reddish brown color) and a negative plate (of a grayish color), separated by a ribbed wood or hard rubber separator. The framework of a plate, which, in battery technique, is called a grid, consists of lead, and into this the active material is pressed. The active material is made up of red lead mixed with proper chemicals for the positive plate, and pure lead of a spongy character for the negative.

Arrangement of Plates.

A number of these plates, sufficient to give the desired amperage, are connected to their respective terminals and put into a container or jar of hard rubber, after which dilute sulphuric acid, and distilled water is added which forms the electrolyte. The positive plate has a negative plate placed on either side of it.

The Electric Car Is Only as Good as Its Battery; Take Care of It.

The 110-ampere-hour cells, so much used on business cars, are connected in series in batteries of 40 to 45 cells to secure the full working capacity.

A simple explanation of a battery, when charging or discharging, is that the positive plate expels or breathes out the electrolyte on charging and soaks up or inhales it on discharging. This also explains why a battery will give greater mileage on a fresh charge, losing it when the car is left in the garage for any length of time.

The best way to ascertain the battery's condition is by the use of a hydrometer syringe. A fully charged cell will read about 1.275 to 1.300 points and a discharged cell around 1.100.

Common Testing Fault.

A common fault is to test a battery with a piece of metal, such as a wire, screwdriver, etc., getting a spark by a direct short circuit. Don't do this, for it causes the plates to buckle and crack. A voltmeter is the only instrument that can safely be used, other than a hydrometer. A cell will read about 2.2 volts on a voltmeter.

When charging a battery the electrolyte will heat up to a degree depending upon the rate of charging.

The Storage Battery Is Supposedly a Complicated Contrivance, but It's Very Simple to Understand.

This causes evaporation, and the electrolyte must be replenished with distilled water to its accustomed level.

All wiring on the car should be periodically inspected for damaged insulation, especially if acid has been spilled upon it by any mishap, for the acid eats through the wire insulation in a very short time. Bear in mind that the electrical power in a battery is limited, and everything done to conserve it will mean a saving of expense and labor. All movable contacts should be cleaned frequently, for dirt, grease, and foreign substances prevent the controller working properly and prevent good contact being made, which wastes current. The gearing and wheels should be looked over and greased about once a year.

Causes of Trouble.

Dragging brakes, poor contact, under-inflated tires, also cause a surprising amount of trouble.

Be sure to keep the battery solution above the plates. Do not let the temperature exceed 100 degrees Fahrenheit when charging. Do not let the battery stand idle when discharged. Keep the battery and all its connections clean. Follow the manufacturer's instructions when charging.

Use the hydrometer to ascertain the density of the solution. Avoid excessive use of current.—H. Worthman, Jr., in Popular Science Monthly.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

Keep off car tracks and out of ruts.

The motortruck on the farm is not coming. It's here.

Dim your lights when approaching another auto on the road.

Do not allow your storage battery to become ruined through neglect.

Cultivate the habit of coasting around corners or going into second speed.

IN ANOTHER KEY

Simple Logic.

An Irishman was brought before a magistrate on a charge of vagrancy, and questioned. "What trade are you in?"

"Your honor, a sailor."

"You in the seafaring line? I question whether you have ever been to sea in your life."

"Shure, now, and does your honor think I came over from Ireland in a waggin'?"—Blighty (London). D

NEXT QUESTION.

"I have just completed me fare well tour."

"And did you fare well?"

Vocalization.

The katydid puts on display Great eloquence from day to day. It lifts its voice the evening through and never says a thing that's new.

She Didn't Find All.

"I found a letter in your coat pocket that you had not mailed."

"Is that all you found in my pocket?"

"That is all there was in it."

"Oh, no, it's not."

"What else, I'd like to know?"

"A rip under the sleeve, but, of course, you were not looking for any thing like that."

A Polite Tailor.

Uncle—Who was the gentleman who spoke to us so politely?

Nephew—That was my tailor, uncle, who has been wanting to make your acquaintance for a long time.

How It Is Done.

Walt—Jim sure is making his money go a long way these days.

Bill—I wish I knew how. (What's he doing?)

Walt—Oh, he sent a check to China the other day.

Two of a Kind.

Jim—What will papa say if he knows you touched liquor?

Jack—He knows it already.

Jim—What did he say?

Jack—He said, "Well, Jack, I don't mind if I do."

One Was.

"Did you think the tale Miss Gladys told was made up on its face?"

"I don't know about the tale, but she was."

His Advantage.

"Binks, I understand, is very much run down."

"Well, he ought to be able to build himself up. He's an architect."

Yes, Who?

"Here's a man who claims that a knowledge of Greek and Latin is necessary in order to write English correctly."

"But nowadays who considers it necessary to write English correctly?"—Life.

Natural Inclination.

"Why is it that a pretty girl would rather have silly compliments paid her than get bits of real solid information?"

"Because she doesn't care for anybody to give her a wrinkle or two."

Two Ways of It.

She—Why did you break off so this morning when I was talking to you over the telephone?

He—Because while you were calling me up my boss was calling me down.

Some Fall.

She—What do you think of the new nursemaid, dear?

He—She looks capable, my dear, but she is so terribly tall. Think what a distance poor baby will have to fall when she drops him.

Couldn't Be Cashed.

Hewitt—I had a terrible dream last night.

Jewett—I am prepared for the worst; tell it.

Hewitt—I dreamed that it was 1926 and that, when I tried to get a beer check honored, it was returned marked "no funds."

Her Task.

"I hear the cook is really the mainstay of their family."

"Well, I know they always call upon her in the time of knead."

Don't "Follow the Leader"

The "leader" is an ancient artifice employed by the so-called "economy stores" to create the impression that their prices are low.

They sell an article of standard brand several cents cheaper than it can be bought elsewhere—oftentimes cheaper than the dealer himself can buy it.

Now, if these stores carried out this policy on all their goods they would be doing business at an actual loss. Why then, do they make this sacrifice on some standard goods? Because they expect to get it back with good interest on other and unidentified goods which the uninitiated think they are getting cheap because the "leader" was cheap!

Real economy is in dealing when you have absolute confidence in the grocer.

OLD COLONY CLUB

Again the dramatic members of the Old Colony Club lived up to their past reputation when on Thursday, Nov. 20, in the Fogg Opera House they presented in a most finished manner the ludicrous play "The New Boy." The scene was laid in Birchgrove, Dulwich, and Dr. Candy, its principal, recalled to mind the pedagogue of bygone years. It was an afternoon of fun and laughter following "The New Boy" through his trying experiences.

Candy was sold during the afternoon and in spite of sugar conditions there was a generous supply.

While the guests were assembling and between the acts, music was furnished by the following orchestra: Fannie Merchant, piano; Lena Thomas, violin; Theo Keith, cornet.

Mrs. Hanson, the club president, welcomed members and guests of the afternoon in her usual pleasing manner.

The next meeting will be held Dec. 4, when the club will listen to Charles C. Keith on "Men of Tomorrow" interspersed with Field and Riley poems. Mrs. Bicknell, soloist.

My friend, have you heard of the city "Yawn"?
On the banks of the river "Slow," Where blooms the "Wait-a-While" flower fair
Where the "Some-Time-Or-Other" scents the air
And the soft "Go-Easys" grow?
It lies in the valley of "What's the Use?"
In the province of "Letter Slide"
That "Tired Feeling" is native
there
It's the home of the listless "I Don't Care"
Where the "Put It Offs" abide.

DISHES WITHOUT MEAT.

Peanuts are the cheapest form of protein if purchased in large quantities. A nut loaf if well seasoned makes a very wholesome dish.

Nut Loaf.—Take one and one-half cups of mixed ground nuts, two cups of bread crumbs, one egg, one teaspoonful of poultry dressing, one tablespoonful of minced onion, one cupful of milk, and one-half teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of pepper and a half cupful of hot water with a half teaspoonful of beef extract. Mix thoroughly and stand for twenty minutes, then pack into a bread pan, brush with corn oil and bake in a moderate oven.

Nut and Bean Sausage.—Take one cupful of cooked beans, one cupful of finely ground peanuts, one cupful of cooked rice, one cupful of finely ground peanuts, one cupful of cooked rice, one cupful of bread crumbs, two tablespoonfuls of minced parsley, one teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of sage, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, and one-half cupful of milk. Mix well, form in flat cakes, roll in finely ground peanuts or peanut flour, and fry in vegetable fat.

Vegetable Cutlets.—Take two cupfuls of cooked, sifted squash or mashed parsnips, two-thirds of a cupful of bread crumbs, one beaten egg, half a tablespoonful of fat, one and one-half cupfuls of coarsely ground black walnut meats. Season with salt and pepper and shape into cutlets. Fry in hot vegetable fat and serve with a white sauce and minced green pepper.

Peanut and Sweet Potato Cakes.—Combine the following ingredients in the order given: three cupfuls of mashed seasoned sweet potatoes, one tablespoonful of peanut butter, one tablespoonful of sweet fat; one egg and one and one-half cupfuls of ground peanuts with a bit of sage. Shape into flat cakes and fry as usual. Serve with baked apples or tart apple sauce. A handful of walnut meats, an apple or two or a pear, with a bread and butter sandwich and a glass of milk, furnishes a well balanced meal sufficiently nourishing for the average adult.

Self condemnation with is allied thoughts and emotions has been productive of far greater loss in initiative, in will-power, and of far greater degree of lowered vitality, both mental and physical, than any of us have perhaps realized.

WHAT SHALL WE HAVE TO EAT?

The daily question in twenty million homes, is "what shall we have for dinner?" and those who are responsible for the health and happiness of the individuals in these homes, find it necessary to do much thinking if they avoid a monotony in diet.

Tomato Soup.—A simple tomato soup which is easily and quickly prepared: Put four tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, when melted and bubbling hot add four tablespoonfuls of flour, cook until smooth, then add one cupful of milk and one cupful of strained tomato with a pinch of soda. Season with salt and pepper and serve at once.

Brown Stew.—Take three or four pounds of the shoulder of beef, with a generous piece of suet. Try out the suet and fry in it, one or two small chopped onions and a medium sized carrot also chopped; add the meat and turn until well browned on both sides; season with salt and pepper, add water and simmer for three or four hours until tender. A half hour before ready to serve add a few small-sized potatoes to the stew and brown them by basting occasionally.

Tapoca and Pears.—Bake a dish of tapoca with canned pears and juice, adding a bit of butter and a grating of lemon if desired. Serve with a slightly thickened sauce made from the pear juice, or whipped cream and sugar may be used if preferred.

Peas, Pickles and Peanut Sandwiches.—Chop a few sour pickles, add a cupful of cooked peas, add a handful of minced peanuts. Arrange on slices of orange, garnish with parsley and serve with a boiled dressing.

Boiled Dressing.—Take equal parts of well beaten eggs and vinegar and cook in a double boiler until thick. For a vegetable salad, mix equal parts of dressing and whipped cream; for a fruit salad use one part dressing and three parts cream, with the proper seasonings.

Drink less and breathe more Eat less and chew more.
Waste less and save more.
Preach less and do more.

ECONOMICAL MEAT DISHES.

In these days a dish which tastes good, is satisfying and at the same time reasonable in price, needs no other recommendation.

Mock Terrapin.—Cut cooked calf's liver into dice. Put a tablespoonful of butter into a saucepan, add salt, pepper and paprika and cook until the butter is slightly brown, then add two tablespoonfuls of flour and enough beef stock made by using beef extract and water to make a moderately thick sauce. Add a little chopped parsley, half a cupful of cream, two hard cooked eggs cut fine, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and the liver. Cook until the liver is heated through, add two tablespoonfuls of jelly or any canned fruit juice and serve at once on buttered toast.

Escalloped Veal with Potato.—Mince cold cooked veal very fine. Butter a baking dish and put a thin layer of veal on the bottom, sprinkle with chopped onion and cover with a layer of seasoned mashed potato, add another layer of veal, onion and seasonings and cover with potato. Add milk to moisten, cover and bake until thoroughly heated. Remove the cover and brown.

Beef Olives.—Take slices of rare roast beef and roll each around a thin slice of bacon which has been fried until transparent but not crisp. Tie and boil rapidly for five minutes, drain, remove the strings. Add the fat from the bacon to some roast beef gravy, season with catsup or Worcestershire; boil up once and pour over the olives. Serve very hot.

Corned Beef Hash.—Chop the cooked corn beef very fine, then add the chopped vegetables, using three times as much or more than the meat. Put into a frying pan and moisten with some of the liquor left from the boiled dinner. Serve hot with a poached egg on each portion. This makes a good luncheon dish.

Creamed Liver.—Use chopped leftover cooked liver, add to a rich white sauce and serve on buttered toast. This makes a good breakfast dish.

We judge by a guess, by a fancied slight;
We give our fellows a mere glance
each,
Then brand them forever black or white.

EASY LUNCHEON DESSERT.

A dessert for the noonday meal should be a very light one such as a dish of fresh or canned fruit, a cookie or small cake with the hot drink. There are, however, many desirable desserts which may be served in small amounts which are appropriate.

Jelly Fluff.—Take half a glass of jelly and beat the white of one egg; beat until stiff and the mixture will stand alone. Heap in sherbet cups and top with a spoonful of whipped cream or the white of egg beaten with sugar.

Baked Pears With Lemon Sauce.—Use large firm pears; core, but do not peel; place in a baking dish; add sugar, bits of butter and lemon juice with the grated rind. Bake with this during the baking, adding a little water if needed. Serve hot or cold with cream or a thin boiling custard.

Caramel Cornstarch Pudding.—Brown a half-cupful of sugar until it forms a sirup in a smooth frying pan, then add a pint of boiling milk; stir until the caramel is dissolved; add two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch to a little cold milk. Pour into sherbet cups; garnish with a spoonful of whipped cream topped with a piece of preserved ginger.

Rice Pudding.—Place a half-cupful of rice in a baking dish with two quarts of milk, a half-cupful of brown sugar and a half-cupful of raisins; flavor with cinnamon or nutmeg and bake three hours in a slow oven until the rice has absorbed all the milk.

Waffles.—Waffles with cold sirup makes a most delightful dessert for a luncheon. Beat thoroughly one egg; add two cupfuls of sour milk; mix and sift together one teaspoonful of soda and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder with two cupfuls of flour. Add to the first mixture with one tablespoonful of melted shortening. Beat well and bake on a hot waffle iron.

Snowballs.—Spread cooked rice an inch thick over small squares of coarse muslin wet in cold water. In the center place a canned peach, pear or apricot. Tie carefully and steam ten minutes. Remove the cloth and serve with a sauce made from the fruit juice.

SOY BEAN FLOUR MAKES SPLENDID BREAD, BISCUIT, MUFFINS AND GRIDDLE CAKES

WHITE BREAD
Protein Content About 8.7 Per Cent

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The soy bean, long and favorably known in the Orient, is now becoming a common foodstuff in the United States. It is, unlike ordinary beans, contains much oil and no starch. To make the flour, the oil is pressed out of the beans and the resulting pressed cake can then be readily ground into meal. This meal or flour possesses a higher nutritive value than does wheat flour and more fat—in fact, so much fat that no extra shortening is needed when it is used.

The following recipes for the use of soy bean meal have been tested by home economics workers in the United States department of agriculture.

Biscuits.

1 cup soy-bean flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup wheat flour, ½ to 2-3 cup water, 4 teaspoons baking powder. Bake 15 minutes. Biscuits made with any wheat-flour substitutes are better if rolled slightly thicker than those made from all wheat flour.

Muffins.

Very good muffins can be made by using half soy-bean flour and the rest mashed potatoes. 1 cup soy-bean flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup white flour.

SOY BEAN BREAD
25 Per Cent Soy Bean Meal
75 Per Cent White Flour
Protein Content About 13.8 Per Cent

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

1½ to 1¾ cups liquid, 1 egg. Or—1 cup soy-bean flour, 1 egg, 1 cup mashed potatoes or cooked rice, 1 cup liquid, 1 tablespoon sugar. These muffins should cook slowly in a moderate oven for 30 minutes. All soy bean breads brown more quickly than other hot breads.

Griddle Cakes.

1 cup soy-bean flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup white flour, 2½ to 3 cups liquid, 2 eggs, 1 teasp. salt.

Steamed Soy-Bean Brown Bread. 2 cups corn meal, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 cups soy-bean meal, 2 teaspoons soda, 2 cups graham flour, 1 cup molasses, 3 teaspoons salt, 4 cups sour milk.

Sift together the meals, flour, salt, baking powder, and soda. Combine molasses and sour milk and add to dry ingredients. Stir to make a thick batter. Put into greased molds. Cover and place in fireless cooker vessel with a little water in the vessel and place over a flame. Steam for one-half hour. Then place in fireless cooker with hot soapstone for three hours. This will make two loaves in pound coffee cans.

PLENTY OF MILK IS BEST FOR CHILDREN

Will Counteract Host of Errors in Their Raising.

Many Milk Stations Have Been Established in Poorer Sections of Various Cities—Service Appreciated by Parents.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Plenty of milk for a child will counteract a host of other errors in his raising. Many a little Tony or Marie in this country has parents who believe baths, even Saturday night ones, are superfluous to their offspring. Fried peppers, coffee and other indigestibles are often given these youngsters before they have teeth. But in spite of dirt and unsuitable food, if they are given plenty of clean sweet milk most of them will live and thrive, authorities now agree.

That all children may have this necessary food milk stations have been established in the poorer sections of many cities. In these stations clean milk may be had at a lower price than the milkman can deliver it to the home. The increased amount sold at these stations is good proof that their services are appreciated by the people living near them.

In a Hartford (Conn.) milk station, when it was first established, one year ago, 30 quarts a day was the average sale. This year the average daily amount bought over its counters is 235 quarts. This station is in an Italian section where a health survey last year showed 20 per cent of the children in fair health, 10 per cent at a standstill, and 70 per cent undernourished. A survey this year showed 70 per cent of these children in fair health, 10 per cent at a standstill, and 20 per cent undernourished. The Hartford health authorities credit the marked improvement to the milk station there.

It provides plenty of milk at a reasonable price and also educates the people to its value as a food for children. Some educational work is done by means of posters. Lectures and demonstrations on use of milk are also given by the home demonstration agent supervised by the United States department of agriculture and the state college.

WATER WILL INCREASE DULK

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The waters added to cereal foods during cooking increase the bulk of the finished dish, but not its food value. One cupful of oatmeal may make four cupfuls of porridge, but the four would yield no more nourishment than was found in the original cupful of meal. In the same way three cupfuls of flour have about the same food value as the pound loaf of bread into which it may be made.

SPICED VINEGAR IS USEFUL

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Spiced vinegar is used in making pickles, for flavoring gravies, potato salad and similar dishes. For pickling it is especially valuable, as the flavor from spiced vinegar is the same all through the pickles, while if pepper, cloves and dill are added directly to the pickles the flavor is more concentrated at the places where these spices are put. The herbs from which the spiced vinegar is made may be used as a garnish by mixing them in the pickle.

An excellent spiced vinegar is made by filling a wide-mouthed bottle or a fruit jar to within two inches of the top with spiced plants of different kinds, such as slices of horse radish and onions, umbels of dill, ripe seed of white mustard and celery, green seed of nasturtiums, fine stems and leaves of tarragon, basil and sweet marjoram. A pod of red pepper may also be added. The bottle or jar is then filled with vinegar, heated to 160 degrees F., corked or sealed and left for about three weeks. At the end of the three weeks, strain the vinegar and fill in small bottles. Cork and seal with melted paraffin or sealing wax.

SIMPLE TO WASH CORDUROY

Souse Garment Up and Down in Soapy Water and When Dripping Wet Hang to Dry.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Corduroy is a kind of cotton velvet which may be washed providing it is not rubbed, squeezed, or ironed. If it is made up at home, stitch the seams with a loose stitch to prevent puckering when washed. Before laundering babies' coats or other lined garments loosen the lining at the bottom to avoid bagging. Use a solution of mild soap, or for dark colors which may streak or fade a solution of soap bark. Souse the garment up and down in a soapy water, changing the water as it becomes soiled. Rinse in several clear waters until no more dirt and soap come out. Hang the garment up dripping wet and so that it will dry in the shape in which it is worn. Dry in the wind if possible. When dry brush briskly to raise the nap.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Olive oil is a good dressing for patent leather.

Olive oil rubbed into the scalp is an excellent hair tonic.

Eggplant, like all insipid dishes, requires very careful seasoning.

Lemon juice is excellent for cleaning glass, brass and silverware.

Mustard poultices will not blister if mixed with the white of an egg.

BLOUSE STYLES FAVORED FOR EVENING COSTUMES

It is evident that blouses and smocks are aspiring to rival evening frocks and the chances are that they are going to succeed. There is no end to the fanciful ways in which they are made and nothing is too extravagant in the way of trimming them. For dinner and theater wear they have advantages and they appear in brilliant and light colors, and in combinations of two colors in materials, with decorations that call into play many additional hues. The peplum blouse, the apron blouse and the smock have a gay future ahead of them.

Georgette crepe, chiffon and net with chantilly and gold-run laces newly recruited in their company are the filmy mediums in which evening blouses are made. Worn with skirts of black satin they achieve a toilette that may be worn with assurance.

Among color combinations, emerald or even more vivid greens with black are distinctive. Copper colored crepe with gold lace, champagne with black embroidery, peacock blue and light green show the fondness for virile colors. There is a new sort of decoration that looks like the finest beadwork done in many colors. But it is a sort of paint put on in dots set close together and appears in motifs on girdles of georgette like the blouse. Blouses in one color are enlivened with rich girdles of gold or silver brocade. Embroideries in silk and in beads, often used together, and occasionally mock jewels and gold tissue confess that nothing is too splendid for the blouse which is to be worn in the evening, and narrow bands of dark fur find themselves placed to the best advantage on lace and georgette.

Two pretty examples of the mode are shown here. In one of them crepe de chine appears with satin in an odd, original model with woodbine leaves in silk and beads, embroidered on the satin. It has an apron at the front, bloused at the waistline and bordered with the embroidered satin. The long sleeves flare at the wrist and are finished with a satin band. Pale gold and turquoise blue are, as always, happy together in the blouse at the right. Blue beads give a good account of themselves as a trimming and the sleeves challenge us to pronounce them the most graceful of the many styles that help to make the season interesting.

Velvet Becomes Satin's Rival

Just how it happens has never been explained, but it happens every little while that a certain style seizes the attention, simultaneously, of women all over the length and breadth of the land. Merchants wake up some morning to find that apparently every woman has made up her mind over night that she wants one kind of fabric, one particular color, one style. Just now it seems that every woman wants a velvet gown, in addition to the satin frock for which there has been a universal demand. It seems that the shops saw this wave of demand rolling in, and that designers and manufacturers were prepared for it.

Designers require ample materials for frocks and they have determined on chiffon velvets in very wide widths, and the finest grades of velvet, as best suited to their purposes. These are used for afternoon and evening dresses. The heavier grades of velvet will answer for suits, but the more flexible stuffs are liked for everything and chiffon velvets are in such demand that they bring very high prices. The best grades of velvet are by no means cheap. By way of recompense, velvet frocks are very simply designed and fussy decorations are conspicuous by their absence on them; so that the minimum of goods is required.

lines—and this arrangement of the material is borrowed from a Paris designer who introduced it early in the season. Aside from this small vagary, it is plain. The bodice has a plain back and surplice front filled in with flesh-colored georgette. One side of the front is extended into a soft girde, finished at the front with a handsome beaded ornament. The long sleeves have a turned-back frill of velvet. The small muffer collar is a separate affair that swatches the neck in soft folds and buttons at the side. It may be taken off indoors.

Satin gowns reveal that their designers are more or less devoted to draped skirts, the model pictured being among the simplest of these. In this frock a smock of satin, split to the waistline at the left side, is covered with a sunburst pattern and points made of silk braid couched on. The design is an Aztec inspiration pure and simple and a long girde of satin ending in tassels repeats it. A plain turndown collar and deep cuffs of the satin are important details in this frock and help to account for its distinction.

Batik decorations in all their high colorful effects will unquestionably be seen to a great extent in autumn blouses, overblouses and negligees of all kinds.

Dainty Little Christmas Gifts in Cretonne

By DOROTHY PERKINS

Dainty gifts covered in cretonne are certain to find a welcome in any household, and such a variety of things can be made that you will have no difficulty in filling a want of each one whom you wish to remember on Christmas day.

The unique pair of book ends in Fig. 1 are made of sirup cans. The secret of making satisfactory book ends is to properly weight them so they will not upset, and the book ends illustrated are weighted by filling the cans with sand.

Cretonne with small patterns is the most desirable for small articles, and patterns with dark backgrounds are preferable for articles such as the book ends, which are likely to soil through much handling. Sew a piece of cretonne around the sides of each can, then by means of a gathering string gather the cloth as indicated in Fig. 1. Sew a fancy button, or a cretonne covered button, to the center of the top.

Fig. 2 shows a handy twine holder made of a sirup can. A hole must be pierced through the exact center of the can bottom as an outlet for the string (A, Fig. 3), and holes one-half inch apart must be pierced through the top rim to provide a means of fastening the top edge of the cretonne. The holes can be perforated by means of a nail and hammer. Gather the cretonne on the bottom, and turn the top edge over the rim and sew through the perforations in the rim.

Make a hanger for the twine holder out of cretonne or ribbon.

Hanging Workbox.

The hanging workbox in Fig. 4 requires a square cardboard box. Remove two adjacent sides of both the box and cover (Fig. 5), then stitch the cover to the box (Fig. 6). The cretonne may either be stitched over the open edges of the box, or be glued to the cardboard. Sew a doubled strip of cretonne, or a ribbon, to the open corners for a hanger.

Phone Directory.

The dainty telephone book in Fig. 7 provides a handy directory for numbers used frequently, and numbers which may be wanted quickly in cases of emergency. The covers are of cardboard 6 inches wide and 8 inches long, and are hinged together by the cretonne covering. Lap the cretonne over the edges as indicated in Fig. 8, and glue it to the cardboard, and make a pocket on one edge, to hold a pencil. Cut sheets of writing paper of the right size to extend a trifle over the lapped edges of the cretonne, and glue them in place; then divide the paper into spaces, and index the spaces (Fig. 8). A fancy work ring provides a hanger.

HOME-MADE ORNAMENTS FOR THE CHRISTMAS TREE.

By A. NEELY HALL.

Suppose that you prepare some homemade Christmas-tree ornaments like those in the illustrations, to go with the ornaments which you have, for this year's tree. They will help to cover the tree, and, not only that, they will make your tree more interesting because they will be different from anything you can buy.

The pretty spear top ornament in Fig. 1 is made of a sheet of letter-paper rolled into a cornucopia, with a thread spool glued in the open end (Figs. 2 and 3), and a small silk-spool slipped over the small end (Figs. 3 and 4); then all is covered with tinfoil, and a tassel made of pieces of red, white and blue paper, slashed into fringe (Fig. 5), is fastened in the apex. Tinfoil can be obtained from a florist.

Unless you can have electric lights, it is better not to light the tree at all, than to run the risk of its catching fire. But unlit candles make pretty ornaments, so I have shown a home-made holder in Fig. 6. This is made by wrapping a clothespin with tinfoil so the upper edge of the tinfoil projects to form a cup for the candle (Fig. 8). Wrap the end of the candle with tinfoil to make it fit the cup (Fig. 7). The clothespin sets down over the tip of a branch, as shown in Fig. 6, and the weight made of a marble or piece of clay, wrapped in tinfoil (Fig. 9), is suspended by thread from one leg of the clothespin (Fig. 6), to balance the holder.

Little Santa Claus dolls like that shown in Fig. 10, to straddle the tree branches, are pretty and easily made. The bodies are clothespins, with trouser legs of red paper (A, Fig. 11) slipped over the ends (Fig. 12), a red paper coat (B and C, Fig. 11), glued close to the head of the pin (Fig. 13), cotton whiskers (D, Fig. 11), a red paper peaked hat (E), and eyes marked with ink upon the clothespin head.

The airship in Fig. 14 has a balloon with ends made of the halves of an egg-shell (A, Figs. 15 and 16).

The ends are connected by a cylindrical piece (B) rolled out of cardboard, to which they are glued; and a strip of cardboard (C) is glued along each side. The car is a small box, and the propeller (D) is pivoted to its end with a pin. Threads suspend the car from the balloon, and others suspend the balloon from the Christmas tree. Paint the balloon red and the car yellow.

Probably you have prepared colored popcorn strings, but I wonder if you have made strings of cranberries and glass beads? Fig. 17 suggests a way to alternate the beads and cranberries so they will present the form of glass ball strings. To make the cranberries sparkle like glass balls, coat some with glue and sprinkle with the powdered mica sold for imitation snow, and gild others with gold bronze—the kind sold for decorating radiators, or wrap in tinfoil.

BETTER CALL UP TODAY
SOME PEOPLE think ADVERTISING is simply SPENDING MONEY BUT THE wise man knows IT'S THE surest way to make more WHAT MEDIUM to use.

CIRCULARS and hand-bills COST A LOT of money BUT YOU give them away SO NOBODY wants them ON THEIR front porches NOR IN their morning mail.

THE SUBSCRIBER PAYS REAL money FOR HIS newspaper AND THAT'S why he values it MORE HIGHLY THAN A circular.

HE BRINGS his paper home SO THAT every member OF THE family CAN READ and enjoy its BREEZY, up-to-the-minute news AND PROFIT by heeding THE HOME-TOWN merchants' BID FOR their trade.

AND THAT'S a good reason FOR ADVERTISING IN A newspaper, AND NOT only that BUT THE MERCHANT using hand-bills AND CIRCULARS hopes FOR TEN readers TO THE hundred bills, IF WILLIE delivers the 100.

WHEREAS the newspaper advertiser IS SURE of at least FIVE READERS to EVERY COPY of the paper AND THEY all read and heed HIS ADS.

AND THAT'S why he LOOKS pleasant AND GROWS fat in the BANK ACCOUNT. BETTER CALL up today AND HAVE our ADVERTISING MANAGER EXPLAIN.

(Congregational)
East Weymouth
Rev. Edward Torrey Ford, pastor. The joys and blessings of the Thanksgiving season should warm our hearts with a renewed interest in the Christian Church, which is daily ministering our Heavenly Father's best gifts to human life and need. It is profoundly true that the Church seeks not glory, but you. If on the other hand, it sometimes appears to be over much in quest of your offerings, please remember this is for no selfish purpose of its own, but for the sake of imperative causes which cannot be denied. By liberal support of these efforts, you are making an investment in the future yielding largest dividends to the investor. Among the many blessings to be grateful for let us not forget Christ's Church. And may we evidence our gratitude by regular and active association with its service of Christ in the wider program of Christian usefulness.

SHUBERT THEATRE, BOSTON

Fred Thompson is responsible for the musical comedy book and Adrian Ross and Percy Greenbank for the lyrics. Two extremely popular and successful composers must be reckoned with for the music—Lionel Moncton and Howard Taylor, who will be remembered in the country through "A Chinese Honey-moon," "The Orchid," "A Runaway Girl," "The Arcadians," "The Girls of Gottenberg," "The Girl Behind the Counter" and numerous attractions in which their music was employed.

MAJESTIC THEATRE, BOSTON

"John of Arkansas." Arthur Hammerstein's latest musical comedy offering, begins its Boston engagement at the Majestic Theatre next Monday night, and from all reports Boston lovers of fun and music have a rare treat in store for them. Although any production bearing the Hammerstein imprint may be expected to be more than ordinarily good, this, the product of Oscar Hammerstein 2nd's pen, and Arthur Hammerstein's managerial direction, is said to be doubly excellent.

First of all it has as a basis a very definite and a very funny plot, for which Herbert P. Stothart has provided a score said to be the most tuneful of the year. Then Mr. Hammerstein has assembled for the piece one of his famous distinctive choruses said to be the most delectable occurral treat of several seasons. And lastly a notable and efficient cast of youthful and enthusiastic players is provided to romp through the divertissement.

WEYMOUTH HIGH

HOLDS QUINCY HIGH

FOR A TIE 7-7

Weymouth High boys are well pleased that their football team held Quincy High for a tie last Friday. It was a great game.

The Quincy Patriot reports the game as follows: The most exciting gridiron game of the season was played Friday at the Oval when Quincy and Weymouth battled for honors but which resulted in a tie of 7 to 7. Right half-back Breen of Weymouth made a dash around left end, from the 25 yard line in the remaining three minutes of the game and Havelin kicked through, tying the score.

Hap Davis intercepted a forward pass in the first quarter and made a sensational zigzag run for 20 yards. Mullarkey pushed the ball over through left tackle and Jack Wentworth kicked for the big lead of 7. Hannon was taken out in the first half as a result of an injured hip, while Young dropped out in the third quarter with a bad knee.

A fine forward pass was made by the visitors in the last quarter and right-end Proctor was not downed until he reached the one-yard line. Sad news followed. Proctor was off-side. The fighting Weymouth lads returned to the 40-yard line with fire in their eyes. Many of their aerial plays worked in spite of the fact Quincy had prepared a fine defense for them.

In the fourth period Weymouth started a real drive and went down the field to the Quincy 20-yard line and then threw a perfect forward pass but out of bounds, being the last down the ball was passed to Quincy. The home eleven returned the same fighting drive, but the scrappy visiting lads broke it up.

Capt. Bennett, Hannon and Holden played a fine game, while Jackson and Davis played the offensive well. Some fine tackling ability was shown by Jenkins, Robertson and Shaw. Valcenti was the star for Weymouth.

Quincy has not trimmed Weymouth for five years, but the local lads have not lost in the past two years. This year a 7-7 tie and last year a scoreless tie.

Marine Corps Drum Honored. Glory was not won by men alone on the battle fields of the world war, says the Popular Mechanics Magazine. To illustrate, there is the bass drum which returned from France recently with a regiment of the marine corps, decorated with a wound stripe and four service chevrons. These marks of honor were painted on one head of the instrument, as shown in a photograph illustrating the article. The wound stripe was considered appropriate after the drum had been damaged by a bursting shell.

Recognized Her. Some one went by our house in a car and spoke to my little sister, who was in the yard. She did not recognize the person at the time, but later found out it was an acquaintance and said: "I knew it was Eva. I just knew it was her tune" (meaning her voice).—Exchange.

LONGEST LIFT BRIDGE

This is the longest lift bridge in the world, recently completed at Chicago for a railway. It is 300 feet long, has a balance weight of nearly a million pounds and took two years in building.

The Tarantula.

The scientific name of that American spider called the tarantula is cteniza Californica, and it is one of the trap-door spiders. It is common in New Mexico, Arizona and California. According to Kingsley this spider digs its hole in a fine soil which when dry is nearly as hard as brick. These spider holes are sometimes nearly an inch in diameter and vary in depth from two to three inches to nearly a foot. The mouth of the hole is enlarged and then closed by a thick cover which fits it tightly. That cover fits into the mouth of the hole very much as a cork does in the neck of a bottle.

Fooling the Pests.

"What can I do," asks Smallholder to keep the birds from destroying my plums, apples and pears? The best way is to sell the orchard when they are asleep. The simple creatures will go on destroying some one else's plums, apples and pears without discovering the deception that has been practiced upon them.—Punch.

"H—, thar ain't really no manner o' risk at all. Yer don't even hav' ter break the law, fer as I know. It's just got fer ter be done on the dead quiet, an' no question asked. I'll tell yer all yer need ter know. 'Tain't such a long story. This yere Joe Kirby he's a frien' o' mine; I've know'd him a long time, an' he's in a h— of a fix. Here's how it all happened: Thar was an ol' planter livin' down in Missouri at a place called Beaucare's Landin'. His name was Beaucare, an' he hed a son named Bert, a good-fer-nuthin' cuss. I reckon, Wal, this Bert runned away a long while ago, an' never cum back; but he left a baby behind him—a gurl baby—which a quadroon slave give birth to. The quadroon's name was Della, an' the kid was called Rene. Gilt them names in yer head. Ol' Beaucare he knew the gurl was his son's baby, so he brought her up 'long with his own daughter, who was named Eloise. They was both 'bout the same age, an' nobody seemed ter know thar was a nigger. Fer sum reason ol' Beaucare never set her free, nor the quadroon neither. Wal, Kirby he heard tell o' all this sunwar down the river. Yer see he an' Bert Beaucare run together fer a while, till Bert got killed in a row in New Orleans. I reckon he tol' him part o' the story, an' the rest he picked up in Saint Louee. Enyhow, it looked like a d— good thing ter Kirby, who ain't passin' up many bets. Ol' Beaucare was rich, an' considerable of a sport; people who hed sed the gurl sed they was both ol' em beauties an' Eloise—the white one—hed an independent fortune left her through her mother. So Kirby, he an' a feller named Carver—a tin-horn—planned it out betwixt 'em ter copper ol' Beaucare's coin, an' pick up them gurls along with it."

"But how did they do that?"

"Luck mostly, I reckon, an' Kirby's brains. The plan was ter git Beaucare inter a poker game, ease him 'long a bit, an' then break him, land, niggers, an' all. They didn't figure this wud be hard, fer he was a dead game gambler, an' played fer big stakes. It was luck, though, what giv' 'em their chance. Beaucare hed sum minin' claims up on the Fevre, an' hed ter go up thar. It's a long, lonesome trip, I reckon, an' so the other two they went 'long. They got the ol' chap goin' and comin', an' finally coddled him 'long till he put up his big bet on a sure hand. When he found out what hed happened the ol' gent got so excited he flung a fit, an' died."

"Leaving Kirby ownin' all the property?"

"Every picanune, niggers an' all. It was sum sweep, an' he hed signed bills o' sale. Wan't nobody cud git it away from him. Wal, Joe he didn't want fer ter make no fuss, ne scarce the gurl none, so he went down ter Saint Louee an' made proof o' ownership afore a judge he know'd. Then, with the papers all straight, he, an' the sheriff, with Tim yere, the deputy, run up the river at night ter serve 'em quietly on the daughter—the white one, Eloise. Kirby he didn't aim ter be seen at all, but just went 'long so thar wudn't be no mistake. Yer see, them papers had ter be served afore they cud take away the niggers. Kirby was goin' ter sell them down river, an' not bother 'bout the land fer a while, till after hed hed a chance ter shine up this yere gurl Eloise. Hed never seen her—but, enyhow, he got that notion in his head."

"She was the daughter; the white one?"

"Sure; he hed the other by law. Wal, when they all got thar, nobody was home, 'cept one o' the gurls, who claimed fer ter be Rene—the one who was a nigger, that Kirby owned. Nobody know'd which was which, an' so they hed ter take her word for it. They cudn't do nuthin' legal till they found the other one, an' they was sittin' round waitin' fer her ter turn up, when the nigger gurl they was watchin' got away."

"How'd she do that?"

"Don't nobody seem ter know. Damn funny story. Way they tell it, somebody must'r knocked Kirby down an' run off with her. Whoever did it, stole the boat in which Kirby an' the sheriff cum up the river, an' just naturally skipped out—the sheriff's nigger an' all. It was a slick job."

"Of course they chased them?"

"Best they cud, not knowin' which way they'd gone. They reckoned the whole bunch must'r got away together, so the sheriff he started fer Saint Louee, an' the others got onto a troop boat what happened ter cum 'long, and started north. 'Long 'bout the mouth of the Illinois they caught up with a nigger-stealer named Shunk. They hed a fight in an' about his cabin, an' sum killin'. Two of the women got away, but Kirby an' Tim got hold o' this gurl what hed claimed ter be Rene, an' a mulatto cook who was y-er workin' fer Shunk. I reckon maybe yer know the rest."

"I know they was run down by the Adventurer, an' hauled aboard. But how did Kirby learn his prisoner was white? Did she tell him?"

"I should say not. It was the mulatto cook who told him, although, I reckon, he hed his doubts afore that. I knew she wusn't no nigger the first minute I got eyes on her—they cain't fool me none on niggers; I was raised 'mong 'em. But so fur's the gurl's concerned, she don't know yet that Kirby's found out." He emitted a weak laugh. "It sorter skeered Joe ter be caught 'way up yere in this kinty, kidnappin' a white gurl. He didn't know what the h—i ter do till I give him a p'inter."

"You were the one who suggested marriage?"

"Wal, I sed she cudn't do nuthin' 'gainst him onct he was married to her. I thought o' that right away. Yer see this was how it happened: Kirby sed he'd like fer ter marry her, an' I sez, 'Why not, then? Thar's an ol' bum ov a preacher yere at Yellow Banks, a sorter hanger-on ter one o' them militia companies, what'll do eny d—n thing I tell him to. I got the goods on him, an' he knows it."

"But she wouldn't marry me," he says; 'yer don't know that gurl."

"Don't I? I asked sarcastic. 'Wal, thar ain't no gurl ever I see yet that won't marry a man if the right means are used. How kin she help herself? Yer leave it ter me."

"And he consented?"

"He was d—n glad to, after I tol' him how it cud be done. But Tim he wudn't go in with us, an' thet's why we got ter have another man. Come on over ter the bar an' have a drink, Moffett; them other fellers are goin' ter eat now."

The diversion gave me opportunity for a moment's thought. The plan was a diabolical one, cold-blooded and desperate, yet I saw no certain way of serving Eloise, except by accepting Rale's offer. I did not even know where she was concealed, or how I could lay hands on Kirby. The genial Rale pushed out a black bottle and we drank together.

"Wal," he said, picking up the conversation where it had ended, quite satisfied with his diplomacy, and wiping his lips on his sleeve. "What ye say, Moffett? Thar's a hundred dollars in this job."

"What is the gurl?"

"Oh, I reckon she ain't fur away; we kin find her all right. I got ter know 'bout yer furst. Are yer game?"

"I'm game 'nough, Jack," assuming a familiarity I thought he would appreciate. "Only I don't want'r jump inter this yere thing without knowin' nuthin' 'bout it. What is it yer got lined up fer me ter do?"

He helped himself to yet another liberal drink, and I was glad to note that the fiery liquor was already beginning to have its effect, increasing his recklessness of speech.

"All right, Dan; have another one on me—no? Wal, h—i; I s'pose I might as wal' tell ye furst as last. Thar ain't nuthin' fer eny o' us ter git skeered about. We got it all yanned. We don't want this affair talked about none, do we? I reckon not. So we planned it out this way: Thar's a frien' o' mine got a shack down on Bear creek, 'bout twenty mile below yere. He sells red-eye ter barge an' keel-boatsmen, what tie up ter nights. Wal, he's all right—a h—i o' a good feller. What we aim ter do is run the gurl down thar ternight, unbekn'st ter enybody. I reckon yer kin ride a hoss?"

"Yes; so thet's my job?"

"Thet's the whole o' it. Yer just got ter stay thar with her till Kirby kin git away, without nobody thinkin' enything 'bout it. It's d—n easy money, ter my notion."

"Thar's a Hundred Dollars in This Job."

I thought swiftly. There were several questions I wanted to ask but dare not. It was better to trust to luck, for I must lull, not arouse suspicion. Thus far the affair had played wonderfully into my hands; if I could maintain my part to the end there ought to be no reason why the gurl should not be saved uninjured.

"Why, if thet's all I got ter do fer a hundred dollars," I said gayly, "I'm yer man, Jack. An' how soon will Kirby be comin' down ter this yer place on Bear creek?"

"In a day er two, I reckon. Soon's thar's sum boat headin' down the river. Yer see, this yer's all camp; thar ain't no fit place whar we kin hide the gurl, an' make her keep her mouth shut. Them blamed soldiers are a-moosin' 'bout everywhar, an' if she onct got talkin' our goose wud be cooked. Furst thing we got ter do is git her outer this camp."

"Ternight, yer sed?"

"'Bout midnight; yer'll go—hey?"

"I reckon; yer got the money?"

With his eyes fastened on the two men eating he counted out some gold pieces on the bar and shoved them over to me, keeping them under cover of his hand.

"Thar's half o' it, an' the rest is yers when ye bring back the hosses."

"How many hosses? Who's a-goin'?"

"Three o' yer, Kirby's fer sendin' the mulatto gurl 'long. She's a free nigger an' might let her tongue wag. Now listen, Moffett; I'm a-goin' out putty soon ter git things ready, an' I'll leave Sal yere ter tend bar. Now git this: thar's a right smart trail back o' the cabin, leadin' straight down ter the creek, with a spring 'bout half way. Thar ain't no guard down thar, an' ye can't miss it, even in the dark. The hosses will be thar et midnight waitin' fer yer. All ye got ter do is just put them two gurls on an' ride away. Yer don't never need ter speak ter 'em. Yer understand? All right, then; have another drink."

I shook my head.

"But how'm I goin' ter git ter this place—whatever it's called?"

"Thar ain't no trouble 'bout that; all ye got ter do is ride straight south till yer cum ter the creek, an' yer thar. It's Jenkins' crossing yer after."

"I reckon thar ain't eny Indians, er nuthin'?"

"H—, no; they're all t'other direction; nuthin' worse'n wolves. Say, though, yer might have trouble with them gurls—got a gun?"

"No."

He reached back into a small drawer under the shelf and brought out an ugly looking weapon, tried the hammer movement with his thumb, and handed it over to me with a grin.

"Some cannon, an' I want it back. Don't fail at midnight."

"An' thar ain't nuthin' fer me ter do till then?"

"Not a thing; take a nap, if yer want'r. Sal kin wake ye up. I reckon I won't be back till after yer off."

I sat down in a chair and leaned back against the wall, tilting my hat down over my eyes and pretending to fall asleep. Through half-closed lids I managed to see all that transpired in the room, and my mind was busy with the approaching crisis.

Rale busied himself for some minutes before putting on his hat, counting over some money, and filling his bottles from a reserve stock underneath the shelf. Tim slept peacefully on, but had slightly changed his posture, so that his face was now upturned to the light. The sight of his familiar features gave me an inspiration. He was, undoubtedly, an honest fellow, and had quarreled with Kirby over this very matter, refusing to have any hand in it. He had supposed up to that time that he was doing no more than his duty under the law. If I could arouse him from drunken stupor he might even be willing to work with me in the attempt to rescue Eloise. Rale disappeared through the rear door, after exchanging a few words with the woman, and did not return. I waited motionless for some time, fearful lest he might come back. Suddenly the front door opened noiselessly and Kirby entered, advancing straight toward the bar. Sal served him, answering his questions, which were spoken so low I could not catch the words. His eyes swept the room, but the hat concealed my face, and he only recognized Tim. He paused long enough to bend above the upturned features of the unconscious deputy, not unpleased, evidently, to discover him in that condition.

"The d— old fool," he muttered perhaps not aware that he spoke aloud. "Rale has got him fixed, all right."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Kirby and I Meet.

Sal remained seated behind the bar, nodding, and so soon as I felt reasonably assured that she was without interest in my movements, I leaned forward and endeavored to arouse Kennedy. This was by no means easy of accomplishment, and I was compelled to pinch the fellow rather severely before he sat up angrily, blurring out the first words which came to his lips:

"What the devil—"

His half-opened eyes caught my gesture for silence, and he stopped instantly, his lips widely parted.

"Meet me outside," I whispered, warningly. "But be careful about it."

The slight noise had failed to disturb the woman, and I succeeded in slipping through the unlatched door without noting any change in her posture. Tim, now thoroughly awake, and aware of something serious in the air, was not long in joining me without, and I drew him aside into a spot of deeper blackness under the trees. He was still indignant over the pinching, and remained drunk enough to be quarrelsome. I cut his muffled profanity short.

"That's quite enough of that, Tim," I said sharply, and was aware that he stared back at me, plainly perplexed by the change in my tone and manner. "You are an officer of the law; so am I, and it is about time we were working together."

He managed to release a gruff laugh. "You—you d— bum; h—, that's a good joke—what'r yer givin' me now?"

"The exact truth; and it will be worth your while, my man, to brace up and listen. I am going to give you a chance to redeem yourself—a last chance. It will be a nice story to tell back in St. Louis that you helped to kidnap a wealthy young white woman, fer a drink. His name was Gaskins; I hed him up fer mayhem onct. I'll bet he's the duck, for he hung round Jack's place most o' the time. Whatcha want me ter do?"

"It has seemed to me, Tim," I said thoughtfully, "that the best action for us to take will be to let them place the girl in my hands, just as they have planned to do. That will throw them entirely off their guard. Once we succeed in getting her safely away, and remain unknown ourselves, there ought to be very little trouble in straightening out the whole matter. My plan would be to either ride around the camp in the night, and then report the whole affair at headquarters, or else to strike out direct for Fort Armstrong across country. Do you know any place you can pick up a horse?"

"That's a slew ov 'em round yere," he admitted. "These fellers are most all hoss-soldiers. I reckon I cud cinch sum sort o' critter. Yer want me 'n'g?"

"Perhaps not, Tim. Your disappearance might cause suspicion, and send them after us. My plan is to get away as quietly as possible, and let them believe everything is all right. I want a day or two in which to work, before Rale or Kirby discover we have not gone to Bear Creek. I'll meet them alone at the spring down the trail, but shall want you somewhere near by. You see this is bound to mean a fight if I am recognized—likely three against one; and those men wouldn't hesitate at murder."

"I reckon not, an' it wudn't be their furst one nether. Looks ter me like yer was takin' a big chance. I'll be thar, though; yer kin bet on thet, an' ready fer a fight er a foot race. This is how I size it up—if thar ain't no row, I'm just ter keep still an' low; an' if a fracas starts I'm ter jump in fer all I'm worth. Is thet the program?"

"Exactly—that's my idea."

"Wal, then, I'm prayin' it starts; I want just one crack et thet Kirby, the ornary cuss."

We talked the whole matter over in detail, having nothing better to do, and endeavoring to arrange for every probability, yet did not remain together for long.

I felt nervous, anxious, eager for action. The time dragged horribly. What if something unforeseen should occur to change Rale's plan? My God! if I only knew where it was they had concealed the girl.

The two of us explored about the silent cabin, but discovered nothing. There was no light visible in the rear room, nor any sound of movement within. The two windows were closed, and the door locked. We found a convenient stump in the woods and sat down to wait where we could see all that occurred about the cabin.

It was nearly twelve before even the slightest sound near at hand indicated the approach of others. I was already in an agony of suspense, imagining something might have gone wrong, when the dull scuffling of horses' hoofs being led cautiously up the trail to my right broke the intense silence. I listened to assure myself, then shook Tim into wakefulness, leaving him still blinking in the shadow of the stump, while I advanced in the direction of the spring. I saw nothing of Rale until he spoke.

"That yer, Moffett?"

"Yes; what's yer party?"

I caught a view of his dim outlines, as he stepped slightly forward, reassured by my voice.

"They'll be yere; thar's a bit o' time ter spare yet. I aimed not ter keep 'em waitin'. Here, this is yer hoss, an' yere's the leadin' strap fer the others. Better tie it ter yer pommel, I reckon, so's ter leave both yer hands free—yer might hav' need fer 'em. We'll tend ter mounthin' the gurls, an' then all ye'll hav' ter do will be ter lead off. Better walk the hosses till yer git crost the creek, so the sojers won't hear yer. Got that?"

"I reckon I hav', an' sense 'nough ter know it without bein' told. Did yer think I wanted ter be caught on this job?"

"All right, but thar's no harm a tellin' yer. What's Tim gone to?"

"I reckon he don't even know hisself; he's sure sum drunk."

Rale chuckled, patting the side of the horse next him.

To Take Baby's Picture.

Anyone who has tried it knows it is a difficult task to take an indoor picture of an active child. By placing the subject near a sunny window, but not in the direct sunlight, and with a sheet fixed at one side, high enough so that it reaches above the subject's head, good results may be obtained. If the child sits on the floor, the sheet will be high enough thrown over two chairs.

"Stay in School."

Does it pay to continue your studies? Education means a successful and useful life; it pays the individual. Education means efficient workers; it pays the nation. Show this to your parents and ask them what they think about it. Stay in school.—Colorado Agricultural College News Notes.

using your office as a cloak for the crime, and, besides that, killing two men to serve a river gambler. Suppose I was to tell that sort of tale to Governor Clark, and give him the proofs—where would you land?"

He breathed hard, scarcely able to articulate, but decidedly sober.

"What—what's that? Ain't you the feller that was on the bout? Who—who the devil are yer?"

"I am an officer in the army," I said gravely, determined to impress him first of all, "and I worked on that steamer merely to learn the facts in this case. I know the whole truth now, even to your late quarrel with Kirby. I do not believe you realized before what you were doing—but you do now. You are guilty of assisting that contemptible gambler to abduct Eloise Beaucare, and are shielding him now in his cowardly scheme to compel her to marry him by threats and force."

"The d— low-lived pup—I told him what he was."

"Yes, but that doesn't prevent the crime. He's all you said, and more. But calling the man names isn't going to frighten him, nor get that girl out of his clutches. What I want to know is, are you ready to help me fight the fellow? Block his game?"

"How? What do ye want done?"

"Give me a pledge first, and I'll tell you."

"Did you say ye was an army officer?"

"Yes, a lieutenant; my name is Knox."

"I never know'd yer."

"Probably not, but Joe Kirby does. I was on the steamer Warrior coming down when he robbed old Judge Beaucare. That was what got me mixed up in this affair. Later I was in that skiff you fellows rammed and sunk on the Illinois. I know the whole dirty story, Kennedy, from the very beginning. And now it is up to you whether or not I tell it to Governor Clark."

"I reckon yer must be right," he admitted helplessly. "Only I quit cold the minute I caught on ter what was up. I never know'd she wa'n't no nigger till after we got yere. Sure's yer live that's true. Only then I didn't know what else ter do, so I got blin' drunk."

"You are willing to work with me, then?"

"Yer kin bet I am; I ain't no gurl-stealer."

"Then listen, Kennedy. Jack Rale told me exactly what their plans were, because he needed me to help him. When you jumped the reservation, he had to find someone else, and picked me. They mean to pull off the affair tonight. Here's the story."

I told it to him, exactly in the form it had come to me, interrupted only in the recital by an occasional profane ejaculation, or some interjected question. The deputy appeared sober enough before I had finished, and fully grasped the seriousness of the situation.

"Now that is the way it stacks up," I ended. "The girl is to be taken to this fellow's shack and compelled to marry Kirby, whether she wants to or not. They either intend threatening her, or else to actually resort to force—likely both. No doubt they can rely on this renegade preacher in either case."

"Jack didn't name no name?"

"No—why?"

"Only thar uster be a bum hangin' round the river front in Saint Louee who hed preacher's papers, an wore a long-tailed coat. Thar wa'n't no low-down game he wudn't take a hand in

NORTH WEYMOUTH

FIRE DISTRICT.

One of the earliest hand engines in Weymouth was the "Washington". The following constitution and bylaws of the "North Weymouth Fire District," adopted in 1845, will be of interest. The book was kindly loaned to the Gazette by Willie P. Hersey of 78 Green street.

Constitution and Bylaws.

Art. 1—The Company shall be distinguished by the name of the Washington Engine Company, No. 1.

Art. 2—The officers of this company shall be a foreman, and two assistant foremen; a clerk, who shall be treasurer; a foreman of the suction hose, and a foreman of the leading hose; also, two suction hosemen, two leading hosemen, two axemen, and two stearers; all of whom shall be appointed by the board of engineers, annually, in the month of May, or when a vacancy occurs.

Art. 3—The chief engineers shall contract with one or more persons to keep the engine house, engine, hose and apparatus clean, bright, and in good order. He shall also contract with one or more persons to provide horses to draw the engine when the alarm of fire is given.

Art. 4—The foremen and two assistant foremen shall constitute a standing committee, whose duty it shall be to examine and approve all bills before being paid by the treasurer. All excuses for non-appearance at drill meetings, fires or alarms, must be made to one of the standing committee, and if such excuse be satisfactory, they may excuse the same.

Art. 5—The foreman shall preside at all meetings of the company, and direct all operations of the company and the engine at drill meetings and fires.

Art. 6—The two assistant foremen shall have charge of the pipe at drill meetings, and fires. If the foreman be absent from any meeting, the senior assistant foreman present shall discharge the duties of foreman; and if all three be absent, the clerk shall discharge those duties.

Art. 7—The clerk shall keep a fair and true record of all transactions of the company, call the roll at the time hereinafter stated for the drill meetings, and immediately on the return of the engine from a fire, or alarm, he shall stay with the engine while working at a fire, and see that no member leaves the engine without permission of the foreman; he shall obtain from the chief engineer certificates for all new members. In the absence of the clerk, the roll may be called by any person designated by the foreman. As treasurer, he shall keep a correct account of all moneys received and expended, and pay all accounts against the company which are approved by the standing committee.

Art. 8—The foreman of the suction and leading hose shall superintend and assist in their location and extension at drill meetings and fires; and during a drill or fire, shall catch and manage their respective hose. They shall also see that the lanterns and torches are cleaned and trimmed by the person or persons employed by the chief engineer. The four assistant hosemen may work at the brakes except when their services are required by their foreman, and shall carry the lanterns and torches at all fires by night.

Art. 9—At the alarm of fire each member shall repair to the engine and continue with it until it is housed; and when at a fire, shall assist in working the engine, or perform any other reasonable duty which the foreman may require; and if any member shall leave the engine while at a fire, without special permission from the foreman, he shall pay a fine of one dollar.

Art. 10—The company shall meet at the engine house the first Saturday in April, May, June, July, August, September, October and November, for the purpose of working the engine and transacting any other business; and on the first Saturday in December, January, February and March, for examining the engine and appendages thereof, and to see that the engine is in good order, and ready for use. The clerk shall call the roll in April, May, June, July, August, September, October and November, at sunset; December, January, February and March, at half past five o'clock.

Art. 11—Any member that shall be absent at first roll call from any monthly meeting, shall pay a fine of twelve cents, unless detained by sickness.

Art. 12—At an alarm of fire, the church bell in said fire district shall be rung as an alarm for each engine man and hose man to repair to the engine and continue with it until dismissed by their foreman.

Art. 13—If any member of said company shall be absent at roll call, at the return of the engine from an alarm of fire, where the engine did or did not work, he shall pay a fine of fifty cents. But if the fire, or alarm, proves to be more than two miles from the line of said fire district, either way, these penalties shall not be binding.

Art. 14—Any person wishing to become a member of said company may make his wishes known to one of the standing committee, whose duty it shall be to report his name to the chief engineer.

Art. 15—Any member of the company, except officers, may avoid a fine by sending a proper substitute to assist in working the engine, either at drill meetings or fires; but the said substitute shall have no voice in any transactions of the company; and the member sending him shall be liable to pay any fine which may occur by his substitutes breaking these rules.

Art. 16—If any person shall be guilty of disorderly conduct, or disobedience to officers, he shall pay a fine of twenty-five cents. If guilty of the second offence, he shall pay fifty cents; and the foreman shall report him to the chief engineer, who may remove him from the company.

Art. 17—In case of fire, the chief engineer may call upon any person at the fire to assist in the extinguishment of the fire in said district; and if such person or persons being called upon by the chief engineer or his assistants, by his order, shall refuse to perform any reasonable duty, he shall pay a fine of two dollars.

Art. 18—The clerk shall ring the bell five minutes before the time appointed for drill meetings, and call the roll at the time appointed in each month. If any member shall leave a drill or business meeting before it is adjourned, without leave of the presiding officer, he shall be fined twenty-five cents.

Art. 19—The annual meeting of the North Weymouth Fire District shall be held on the first Monday in May.

DAYS OF DIZZINESS

Come to Hundreds of Weymouth people. There are days of dizziness; spells of headache, languor, backache; sometimes rheumatic pains. Often urinary disorders. Doan's Kidney Pills are especially for kidney ills. Endorsed in East Weymouth by grateful friends and neighbors.

J. W. Snow, gardener, 73 Chard St., E. Weymouth, says: "I strained my back lifting some two years ago and it affected my kidneys. My back ached and I was lame and sore mornings. When I straightened up quickly, a stitch took me in my back. I had to get up often at night to pass the kidney secretions and they were highly colored and burned. I had headaches and dizzy spells. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. Two boxes of Doan's entirely cured me and I haven't had any kidney trouble since."

In response to the sentiment,—"The Medical Profession—honored among us by the life-long and faithful services of a White, a Tufts, a Fife, and a Howe," Dr. W. C. B. Fife, of Boston, a native of Weymouth, spoke as follows:—

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:—The sentiment you have carried to the medical profession of Weymouth, past and present, floats on the surface of the bubbling, foaming sea of wit and eloquence we have just listened to, like a veritable toast on the surface of that generous liquor known as punch.

As to properly compose this, many very different ingredients must combine—the spirit, the sugar, the acid, and sometimes the medicinal herb, mint,—you have, after the fashion of French cooks, who sprinkle beefsteaks with assafetida to give a delicate flavor, appealed to the medicine men of the tribe of Weymouth to add their somewhat grim presence and unsavory associations to the glorious combination stirred up here to-day. Apropos of punch, I did not mention water, because it is generally agreed that every drop of water spoils the punch.

Our noble medical predecessors, who practised round about this hill at and before the coming of this hill at and before the coming of the first settlers of Weymouth, were, doubtless, of the same school as those who to-day, in Western Indian villages, work miracles with bears' claws and prairie dogs' bones shaken in medicine bags (not saddle-bags), and by frantic howls and dances prolong the attention and applause of their clients until the forces of nature bring the wind, or the rain, or the cure of the sick, or whatever their services shall have been retained for. Throughout the world, whether among the red, white, black or gray, this old, false, magical school of medicine exists.

Let us turn from the magicians of the profession to the mark of the same. You are not to look for them as clothed in gaudy robes, gay with astrological symbols; but perhaps you may encounter them as the quiet gentlemen at your side, who, though their "Hands that the rod of empire might have swayed, Close at your elbow stir their lemonade."

The old magicians worked, and do to-day work, the almost worn-out theatrical machinery of superstition and deceit; the magi, the eternally grand, eternally reliable forces of nature.

It is by a knowledge of the natural sciences that the medical man of to-day works out the solution of the problems submitted to his consideration, with a certainty and a celerity that seem like a realization of the stories of the ancient necromancers, and this knowledge is becoming each day more and more an absolute necessity to his daily occupation. By the application of the laws of light and optics, he can, with his ophthalmoscope, drag from the eye a secret, unwhispered even to the reeds; his laryngoscope reveals the machinery of the voice of the prima donna, which seems as ethereal as the voices of the angels may be fancied to be; his microscope counts the globules of the blood and marks their courses, and the electric and galvanic forces at his command wring from the muscles the story of the poisonous lead, be it from the pipe of the druggist's soda fountain, or from the lily white laid on the cheek of beauty.

His knowledge of the laws of chemistry tells you of the poison lurking in your houses, wells and streams; in the food you eat, in the water you drink, in the clothes you wear, in the air you breathe. With it he is able to form substances which heal diseases, or mitigate the suffering of those which cannot be healed. In his proudest aspects he stands before you, not holding, as sometimes depicted, a bag of simples in his hand for the cure of diseases already contracted, but as a guide, a counsellor, an angel (if you allow me the expression), to proclaim, to point out baneful things in your path; in short, to enforce the homely old saying, that "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of remedy."

Recognize, then, the true medicine man. Recognize him in the sanitarian who seeks to give you the essentials of health. How great is sanitary science; greatest, perhaps, of all. Would you, most profitably to yourselves, employ your medical men? go with them to your schools, to your houses; examine with them your streams and wells; ask of them not the cure but the prevention of the wasting typhoid, the loathsome smallpox, the scarlet-clad destroyer of your children. Give the air you breathe to their keeping; and, oh, guard with jealous care the air that blows over your hills; suffer it not to be polluted for any increase to your treasury.

Mr. Chairman, let us pause here an instant, and in silence do honor to the memory of the late Dr. George Derby, our sanitary champion of Massachusetts, our Bayard: "Sans peur et sans reproche."

Mr. Chairman, the sentiment given by the toast-master includes the names of four of the elders of the profession in Weymouth—I might have said masters—who have gone to their rest: White, Tufts, Howe and Fife. Of the first I cannot speak understandingly. Honored and true he was doubtless. His ashes repose in a little burying-ground, seldom, I fancy, visited, on Pleasant Street, South Weymouth. The name of Dr. Tufts, scholar and patriot, high in the councils of the early day of Massachusetts, will always be remembered. Howe, physician, statesman, soldier, firm, uncompromising guardian of liberty, will also dwell long in the memory of the present generation, at least. Of the fourth it does not become me to speak. His name is a household word in Weymouth, and no word of mine could add to its honor.

Mr. Chairman, while we applaud the Medical Profession for its constant and rapid advances, we sometimes sigh for the habits of close observation (made imperatively necessary from lack of modern appliances), the ripe judgment, the extensive experience, the fortitude in the face of the profession in Weymouth. They did run well. Through storm and calm they went in the stern, unflinching exercise of duty. No sick or suffering were foreign to them. They rest from their labors and their works do follow them.

Mr. Chairman, the medical men of Weymouth I know do, I am sure they ever will, so honor in their lives and self-sacrificing, studious physicians of Weymouth, who have passed beyond, that when their wheels shall have ceased forever from rattling, and the new doctor goes their old rounds, he shall hear from all the verdict that he never, never, can know as much or be so good and kind as the old doctor who has gone.

Mr. Chairman, I know that it will be thus; Forsaith common report, there is balm at the Landing and a physician there; that the Old South Parish is guarded by a Tower of strength, and the East ever blest by the presence of a beneficent Fay; that a Piper makes glad the hearts of ancient Spain, and that he who bears the name of the Nortons and the Quineys may ever be trusted as a wise and bold counsellor.

Mr. Chairman, as the true science of medicine and surgery advances towards those higher regions of Art, whose boundaries at last meet and become one with nature, it leaves, and leaves forever, whatever dull clouds of superstition, ignorance or error may have hung about its base, and soars at last into the full brightness and beauty of truth, ever the fortress of the strong.

"As some tall cliff that lifts its awful form,
Swells from the vale and midway leaves the storm;
Though round its breast the rolling clouds be spread,
Eternal sunshine settles on its head."

HOW MRS. BOYD AVOIDED AN OPERATION

Canton, Ohio.—"I suffered from a female trouble which caused me much suffering, and two doctors decided that I would have to go through an operation before I could get well."

"My mother, who had been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, advised me to try it before submitting to an operation. It relieved me from my troubles so I can do my house work without any difficulty. I advise any woman who is afflicted with female troubles to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial and it will do as much for them."—Mrs. MARIE BOYD, 1421 5th St., N. E., Canton, Ohio.

Sometimes there are serious conditions where a hospital operation is the only alternative, but on the other hand so many women have been cured by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after doctors have said that an operation was necessary—every woman who wants to avoid an operation should give it a fair trial before submitting to such a trying ordeal.

The letters constantly being published from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

PISCO'S

The Barker Luck

By A. W. PEACH

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Rose Barker faced the issue bravely as she had faced other difficult problems in days past. Without any particular ability except willingness to work hard, she had won her way into the good will of the great real estate firm, and was about to enter on the new duties of the position, when the grave but kindly faced physician had told her the cause of the harassing pain in her side, and ended with a statement that involved the word "operation."

On the evening that the verdict had been given, her faithful and unobtrusive lover, Elmer Horton, who had worked in her old office came to see her; and before she realized what he was doing, in his quiet way he had drawn from her some of her fears and doubts. The steadfast love in his eyes—and they were not handsome eyes—may have been the cause.

"It's the Barker luck, Elmer," she said, smiling bravely. "Alone in this big, big world—"

"You forget me," he broke in, his steady eyes twinkling.

She choked an instinctive desire to hug him. "You old dear, how faithful and kind you have been to me; and you know I never can love you."

"Perhaps," he answered, smiling at her mood.

"Ah, I wonder!" Then her smile twisted a bit. "Well, I must have it done; but the money end of it—I'm poor as Job's turkey—was it Job's turkey? Hold on!" Her chin was quivering, but her eyes were smiling. "I have one thousand dollars after all. Did you know that?"

He professed great astonishment. "Some one did love me enough to give me one thousand dollars." She hunted through an old wallet that evidently contained cherished treasures, and drew out a crumpled check. "You remember old Mr. Pruitt—"

"Do I? He used to sit and ramble on by the hour with you while I was only asking for five minutes to make love to you."

She shook her head warningly. "None of that. Well, I did try to be good to him. He was a little out of his head, you know. Just before his last sickness he came in and gave me this check with a great flourish. You know he always talked of having money. I'm glad he thought he had. Poor old tender-hearted man, the landlady told me the city had to bury him at its own expense." Her eyes shadowed.

He took the check quickly. The writing was so erratic that it hardly made sense. Clearly enough, it was the vagary of an unbalanced mind, yet it did represent a pleasant memory; and Horton sought to divert her mind from the last thought she had spoken.

She sensed his effort, however, and smiled back. "Elmer, it's the Barker luck; and I'm going to face it in the way father and mother did. Tomorrow I go to the hospital. I am going to let them do as they want to with me; and afterward—why, afterward—"

She looked at him with stricken eyes. She knew that weeks must pass after the operation before she would be strong enough to take up work once more; and where was the money coming from to enable her to live as she should and grow strong during those weeks?

He took up the check in desperate fingers, stirred by the look in her eyes. "Say, Rose Bee, endorse this check; and I'll try to get it through. Perhaps the old chap did have this money!"

"What are you thinking about? That check is some old thing he had around. See how yellow it is! He was a little crazy. No, don't be foolish."

He held his fountain pen toward her.

"Indorse here, please," he said, directly.

"All right, sir," she assented, making a game of it.

He folded the check and placed it carefully in his pocket. Then he looked at her hungrily. "Rose, is there anything I can do?"

"Please don't look at me that way," she rose, her face white. "You have been so good to me, so faithful and kind—I wish I could reward you. He had risen, and she put her hands on his shoulders and looked into his eyes. "But I can't give you anything except my thanks. You might—send me a few flowers—if—good-by!"

His big heart could not speak through his slow mind. He said awkwardly: "I'll remember. And Rose Bee, remember that the Barker luck may take a turn. You know the old saying modernized—'It's a long lane that has no ashbarrel.' So buck-up—and be of good cheer! Good-by!"

She smiled at his "modernized saying," because she knew he wished her to; but after he had gone she stood long in silence, and realizing as she never had before that the man who had gone carried with him a soul that, like gold, would wear brighter with the years.

When she awoke into a pain-filled, ether-scented world, the first glance of her sick eyes fell upon the flowers—his gift. The sight held and checked her sinking soul. She drifted away to sleep, anchored to a love that would not let her go.

When again she awoke, the smiling nurse said to her: "Here is a short note which I was told must be given you just as soon as possible. Would you like it now?"

Her blurred eyes read: "Dear Rose Bee—Your luck has turned. I took the check to a bank; they put it through for me; and the money came back! Old Pruitt must have known his time was short, and thinking of your kindness to him in an unkind world, gave you all he had. He loved you. So do I, Elmer." And in a smaller envelope she found bills that totaled $500, and a note: "The rest you can have when you want it. I kept it in the bank."

The noises of her tumbling world died away into peace. It was the old man's gift, and there was nothing to do but accept it. It meant weeks in the country, strength regained, a new desire to live.

She secured a private room, special care, and spent two weeks in the hospital. Just once, Elmer came to see her. She found his quiet, whimsical ways very restful and enjoyable; and she asked him to come again. He failed to appear, sending a brief note that he could not get away from his work again; and then she remembered how pale and tired he looked. The thought worried her, his failure to come annoyed her, and in both failure and annoyance she made a new discovery of how much the awkward, big-hearted friend meant to her.

She went back to a village in the hills, and there began to regain rapidly the strength she needed for her work. Only one thing marred the happy days—the money he had sent her was about gone—surgeon's, nurse's, and the hospital bills had mounted up more rapidly than she thought, she reasoned; so she wrote him.

Mr. Stafford, in whose family she was staying, happened to be going to the city, and he volunteered to take the note to Elmer.

Her first surprise came in the evening, when she was called into the front room of the house and found Elmer waiting. She went to him gladly, instinctively, and then paused, the thrill in her heart dying. She wanted to put her arms around his neck and tell him just how much he had been to her, but the look on his face arrested her. The same old hungry look of love was in his eyes, but his haggard face was lined and changed. "Rose Bee, I have come to make a confession," he said tensely. "I didn't—there is no money—"

"What—what—what do you mean?" "There isn't any more money," he repeated desperately. "I knew the check was no good; I didn't have the courage to take it to the bank. I borrowed from the firm—and I worked night and day to raise the rest and pay back some I borrowed. I knew you wouldn't take it—so I thought of this scheme of making believe the check was good. I—I—had to tell you. I couldn't get hold of any money to send you. Do you—hate me for it?"

From astonishment, amazement, to tender understanding she wept as she listened. At his last boyish question she laid her face against his shoulder and drew his arm about her. "Hate you, my dear, great-hearted boy," she said gently; "why, let me tell you what I have been learning these weeks—I love you!"

"Rose Bee!"

A hoarse cough broke the spell. Mr. Stafford stood in the doorway. "Say, if you young folks will forgive me, I want to tell you something. I talked with Horton, and he told me the story of the check. I'm a curious old cuss, and just for the fun of it, 'cause I could understand how Pruitt loved this girl—I guess you do, too, Horton—I had my bankers telephone to that country bank the check was on, while I was in the city; and I just got home and I had to give you the news—that check just covers the balance old Pruitt had in his country bank! Elmer should have tried to cash it, but I guess everything is all right now!"

Elmer looked at Rose Bee, and Rose Bee looked at Elmer, in the immortal speech of heart to heart; and then, as she kissed him, she announced, smiling through the mist in her eyes:

"Dear, the Barker luck has busted!"

In the Mesa Verde Region.

The Mesa Verde region, writes Arthur Chapman, has many attractions besides its ruins. It is a land of weird beauty. The canons which seam the mesa, and all of which lead toward the distant Mancos river, are, in many cases, replicas of the Grand Canon of the Colorado. While the summer days are warm, the nights are cool, and the visitor should bring plenty of wraps besides the clothing and shoes necessary for the work of climbing around among the trails. Little horse-back riding can be done.

It is a country of active foot work, just as it was in the days of cliff dwellers themselves. But, when one has spent a few days among the cedars and jack pines of the Mesa Verde, well named "Green Table" by the Spaniards of early days, he becomes an enthusiast.

Talk in the Rhineland.

The confusion of tongues that the war has caused is hit off in the following conversation reported in an exchange: "When two Americans meet on the street of any Rhineland town this dialogue results: 'Bon jour, buddy; where were you gesterabend?' 'Last evening? Why, I was schlafen.' 'Schlafen nix!' 'I hope to step in your mess kit if I wasn't schlafen. Where were you?' 'Schololade party, and so-me time—take it from me. Three fraulens—sweil jakes—beaucoup cognac, and piano spleen. Krank head dies morgen.'—Outlook.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Stop a minute and think what it means to say that "Green's August Flower" has been a household remedy all over the civilized world for more than half a century. No higher praise is possible and no better remedy can be found for constipation, intestinal troubles, torpid liver and the depressed feeling that accompanies such disorders. It is most valuable for indigestion or nervous dyspepsia and liver trouble, coming up of food, palpitation of heart, and many other symptoms. A few doses of August Flower will relieve you. Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a running sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. PETER'S PARTNER

By JACK LAWTON.

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

Far down on the lonely beach was the clubhouse, its door barred for the winter; farther still, quite alone, stood a little house where Peter lived. Old Peter's house was never closed during all the seasons. Each springtime found him whistling with fresh cheer as he planted flowers in his tiny garden, and during the gay months of summer, Peter's porch was usually occupied by eager youngsters from cottages up shore in search of the pretty shell beads or ornaments, which Peter loved to give them.

Now a golden October gave to sea and land one last gift of summer, and Peter sat sunning himself on the porch in his rush-bottomed chair.

A girl came presently like a scarlet bird flying across the sands. Her hair was wind-blown and her cheeks as crimson as the sweater she wore.

"Daddy Peter!" she cried, "when will you remember to wear your coat when you sit outdoors. The air is chill, even in this sunshine." She had reached his side now, seating herself on a step beneath him.

Her appearance brought to old Peter's face a dozen kindly wrinkles of humor and tenderness.

"You will get back at me with your babying, Nell," he said, "just because I happened to bring you up that way."

"You did bring me up Daddy Peter," the girl said softly, "from the time my parents perished in this same smiling sea. I'll never forget that—it was a good bringing up, too. You could not have done more for your own blood."

She raised solemn eyes to his. "I will never forget my debt to you," she said. The words were like a covenant.

"Debt," scoffed the old man. "Why child, you've paid me over and over again in kindness."

"I will always be kind," the girl added firmly. She lowered her eyes to hide sudden tears.

"Sometimes," said Peter, "I have an uncomfortable fancy that young Dave and you care for each other, but that you won't admit the caring to him for fear your going would leave me in the lurch. Nell!" he spoke earnestly. "You wouldn't let any nonsense like that keep you from your happiness."

"You are imagining, Daddy Peter," the girl laughed. She patted his wrinkled hand and arose as a young man came swinging toward them.

"I thought," said the big young man, strangely shy, "that you might walk to town with me, Nell."

"Of course," urged Peter. "Go, girl." And Nell went.

The old man looked up surprised as a visitor came walking up.

"Good evening," greeted the stranger. "You won't remember me, but I used to come and sit in your porch while my grandchildren begged for shells. We stopped at the hotel. Today such a longing came over me to smell salt water again and to breathe in the air that I had my daughter's chauffeur drive me out. You see, sir," he added, as Peter offered his own comfortable chair, "I was brought up close to the sea; my father was a fisherman. Well—I made a bit, but no other place has ever spelled home to me. As I get older I seem to want to be near the water. That's why my daughter brought me here last summer. But it wasn't the same." The old gentleman sighed. "One can't take comfort with Jeannette and her children some way, even if Jeannette is my daughter. John—that's her husband, he means well. John's decent to me. But—" the old stranger studied the face of the old seaman, "I wonder," he mused, "if you can possibly know what it means to feel one's self in the way, to be borne with, you understand, and treated pleasantly, but 'in the way'?"

"No," Peter answered, "I don't know what it means to feel like that. I do as I please. No one about to be bothered. Nell, my foster daughter, is teaching school and boarding. She thinks she has got to stay near me, to run in and keep me from being lonely. I'll confess that I get lonesome, evenings. Otherwise my life is pretty happy. I read the books I like, and smoke my pipe, and I'm a master hand at cooking. Winters, with the wind howling 'cross the beach, and my fire abetting inside, some apples baking, mebbe, and me in the lamplight there with the evening paper" said Peter blissfully, "that's peace."

"Yes," excitedly agreed the stranger. "It's freedom and pleasure the year round, I can see that. Then, the feel—of the sea!"

"This is what I came about today. I've been thinking the thing over since I watched you last summer. Could you take a partner in—freedom? Myself, sir, I'd be more than content with my books and you to talk to. Will you share your home, if my money keeps it going?"

Peter's knotted hands grasped the porch rail. A gleam came into his faded eyes.

"Are you sure you mean it, stranger?" he asked. "I bin sitting here today wondering how I could manage through another winter. I don't tell Nell my troubles for I want her to marry the man she loves. I was trying to say good-by to my home; now you come and offer to keep it for me. Can I—refuse?"

"I hope not," the old gentleman answered gravely.

From the sea came a breeze rustling the crimson leaves of the porch vines. Impulsively the old man clasped hands and on their faces was the light of peace.

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleansed and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

TWIN BROTHERS ARE OPPOSING CENTERS

Callahan Brothers Play on Opposing Teams.

One of the most remarkable rivalries ever seen on the gridiron, if not in all athletics, is that between Mike and Tim Callahan, twin brothers, who are opposing centers on the Yale and Princeton football teams.

Left—Tim Callahan, captain and center for Yale. Right—Mike Callahan, captain and center for Princeton. Tim and his brother resemble one another in build and both also have wonderful football records behind them. The Yale captain during the war was in the navy and a member of "Cupid" Black's eleven. His play came very near gaining him an All-American service team position.

In some cases brothers are starring on the same teams. Yale has the Wells twins, one of whom is playing a halfback position on the varsity team, while the other as a lineman on the second team is fast making a name for himself. The Horweens are two of Harvard's best backfield players, Ralph doing the punting.

Pennsylvania has a pair of nifty ends in the Miller brothers, both of whom are stars of the brightest luster. Heinie formerly captained the Quakers, while this is Ray's first year as a varsity player. Northwestern university also has a pair of ends who are brothers, and twins, the Marrows.

FRED PLAISTED KEEPS BERTH

Veteran Will Have Charge of Rowing Equipment at Columbia—Will Do No Coaching.

Fred Plaisted, who for five years was assistant coach in charge of the Columbia University freshmen crews under direction of Jim Rice, has been re-engaged by the Columbia authorities to serve as general assistant at the Union Boat clubhouse, where the Columbia oarsmen will make their headquarters. Plaisted will not be required to do any coaching because of his advanced years, but he will have full responsibility for keeping the barges, racing shells, sweeps and all other equipment at the boathouse in order.

Plaisted is one of the best known of professional oarsmen this country has developed. He was at his prime in the seventies, when the Ward brothers were sweeping all before them. He won many races, both as a single sculler and teamed in crews with other professionals. His first college engagement was with Bowdoin and later he was in charge of all equipment at Yale. He first came to Columbia in 1913 and served as Rice's assistant. He continued with the Blue and White oarsmen last season, and was nominally in charge of the crew, although he divided authority with Eugene Giannini.

Fred Plaisted.

BAR ALL GERMAN ATHLETES

Will Not Be Permitted to Participate in Olympic Games in 1920 in Belgium.

German and Austrian athletes have been barred from the Olympic games in 1920 and may be perpetually disfranchised from participation in all international sports.

This announcement was made recently at a dinner at the University club by Elwood S. Johnson, director of "Y" athletics in the A. E. F., who has just returned from a conference with the Belgian Olympic committee. By mutual agreement the enemies of the allies will be denied admission next year, and France and Belgium will propose to make the ineligibility perpetual, Johnson said.

The games will be held next year in an immense stadium outside of Antwerp that was built by the Germans during their occupation and used for training soldiers and their "turn vermins."

JIMMY SMITH QUITE LUCKY BALL PLAYER

A ball player who is not a regular on a championship team, but who draws a share of a world series purse, is naturally counted very fortunate. Jimmy Smith, utility infielder of the Reds, has "sat out" his second world's series, and for the second time received a neat sum of money without having to work for it.

Smith received $5,207.01 as his share of the series money between the Reds and White Sox. All he had to do for this "gob" of cash was to run for Sherwood Magee, pinch hitter, and to get into an argument with Eddie Collins.

In 1917 Jimmy was with the Giants, and drew down a bundle of coin in the fall, though he did not take part in the series with the White Sox.

Don't blast your liver and bowels, but take "Cascarets."

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, bad taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach and colds.

Are you keeping your liver and bowels clean with Cascarets, or shocking your insides every few days with Calomel, Salts, Oil and violent pills?

Cascarets work while you sleep; they cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Cascarets never gripe, sicken or cause inconvenience and Cascarets cost so little too.—Adv.

Selah! The word Selah, which occurs so frequently in the Psalms, is usually believed to be a direction to the musicians who chanted the Psalms in the temple. Mattheson, the great musical critic, wrote a book on the subject in which, after rejecting a number of theories, he came to the conclusion that it is equivalent to the modern "da capo," and is a direction that the air or song is to be repeated from the commencement to the part where the word is placed.

KINCAIDE IN COMMAND

The policing of the city of Boston was placed in charge of Col. Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy, commander of the 14th Massachusetts State Guard regiment who took command of the 3rd provisional regiment on Nov. 16.

Col. Kincaide was placed in charge of Boston policing at eight A. M. The third Provisional regiment is augmented by the First Motor Corps, First Cavalry (for emergency work) and the Second Ambulance company. The Third is made up of picked men from the First and Second Provisional Regiments, which have been doing police work in Boston. The force of guardsmen now in the city has been reduced to approximately 2000 officers and men.

EVANGELINE COMING

The best loved work of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, the famous poet, will be shown on the screen next week, when the William Fox big special production, "Evangeline," with Miriam Cooper in the title role, will open at the Odd Fellows Opera House at East Weymouth next Monday and Tuesday evenings.

"Evangeline" the poem achieved instant success not only in America, but all over the world, and within a few years was translated into every civilized tongue.

A comparable success is predicted for the Fox film version as it adheres most faithfully to Longfellow's exquisite dramatic poem, in addition to being the most beautiful of all motion picture productions.

A common declaration has been that such a work as "Evangeline" was not susceptible of successful translation to the screen—that its exquisite beauty as set forth in poetry could not be conveyed to an audience by means of the camera, and that any attempt must prove a dismal failure.
